

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

BY

HENRY B. WHEATLEY, ESQ. F.S.A.

DE QUINCEY said of a certain book that it was 'the dearest thing in creation, even dearer than a door nail,' but one might very naturally expect a mediæval linguistic Dictionary to be a still more dead thing. The object for which it was compiled has long ago been fulfilled, and it has been superseded for centuries. But, curiously enough, although useless for its original purpose, it has become a priceless record of the language. Old Dictionaries have long been used by commentators to illustrate the language of our national classics. Thus Douce frequently quotes from Huloet's Abcedarium Anglico-Latinum in his Illustrations of Shakespeare, but the late Mr. Albert Way was the first scholar to recognize the utility of an old Dictionary as a whole, and to devote years of labour to the illustration of the words in the oldest English-Latin Dictionary extant. His varied learning peculiarly fitted him for the task he had undertaken, and the tools with which he worked—a fine collection of Dictionaries—he bequeathed to the Society of Antiquaries. In 1843 the first part of his edition of the Promptorium Parvulorum sive Clericorum appeared, and twenty-two years afterwards the volume of 563 pages was completed. The Promptorium exists in several editions in MS. which date from about the year 1440. It was printed by Pynson in 1499, by Julian Notary in 1508, and by Wynkyn de Worde in 1510, 1512, 1516, and 1528. There is a greater variety of Latin-English Dictionaries, but this was apparently the only available English-Latin Dictionary, and in consequence it was frequently reproduced. All honour, therefore, is due to Geoffrey, the Norfolk Grammarian, who shut himself in his cell in order to compile a much needed work for the use of his countrymen. The difficulty of the undertaking must have been very great in those days when the facilities for compilation were comparatively few.

Among the works used by Mr. Way was a MS. belonging to Lord Monson, and entitled Catholicon Anglicum. It may be interesting to the reader to know how this work has at last got into print. In the Report of the Early English Text Society for 1865 it was announced that a series of old English Dictionaries would be issued, to commence with two of the earliest and most important printed ones, namely, Huloet's Abcedarium and Baret's Alvearie. When the preface to the Promptorium Parvulorum was published in 1865, my attention was drawn to the Catholicon Anglicum therein described. I wrote to Mr. Way respecting the MS., but he knew nothing about it since it had been lent to him by the late Lord Monson, and he had used it in his notes. I then communicated with Lord Monson, but he could not at first find the book. Before, however, the issue of a second edition of the Report his Lordship's MS. had come to hand, and he most kindly lent it to me for the purpose of being copied¹. This was done by Mr. Brock, who afterwards added the additional entries from another MS. In 1866 the new edition of Levins's Manipulus Vocabulorum appeared, and the Catholicon Anglicum was placed on the list of works to be done by the Early English Text Society. It was soon found that Huloet's and Baret's fine old volumes contained so much matter that it would be inexpedient to print them on account of the great cost. Another MS. of the Catholicon was found in the British Museum Library, and this was collated with Lord Monson's MS. I had intended to edit the work, but various circumstances prevented me from putting it in hand. Another editor proposed to relieve me of the labour, but he also was forced to relinquish his intention. At length Mr. Herrtage came forward and undertook to edit the Dictionary, and again Lord Monson most kindly lent us his valuable MS. for the purpose of verifying the proofs as the work was being printed. Thus this interesting book, which remained for so many years on the list of work to be done, is at length placed on the more satisfactory list of work accomplished. In a comparatively short period, considering the large amount of research required for the preparation of the notes, Mr. Hertridge has produced a volume worthy to stand by the side of Mr. Way's Promptorium, and higher praise than this could scarcely be given to the book. It is curious to compare the Catholicon with the Promptorium, and to see how thoroughly different the two Dictionaries are. The Promptorium is the fuller of the two, and contains, roughly, about 12,000 words, while the Catholicon has about 8000 words¹.

The Catholicon is specially valuable as a dated Dictionary. At the end of the book we read: 'Explicit Catholicon in lingua materna. Anno domini 1483;' but the fact that there is another MS. in the British Museum of a rather earlier date opens up a curious question as to the origin of these Dictionaries. Mr. Way suggests that Lord Monson's MS. may be the author's holograph, but this opinion is scarcely tenable, more particularly as he himself mentions the older MS. in the British Museum, to which Sir Frederic Madden had directed his attention. Although these are evidently the same Dictionary, certain differences, as indicated by Mr. Hertridge in his Introduction, show that there must have been a still earlier original from which both were taken, whether directly, or indirectly through intermediate copies we cannot now tell. Another point which we are unable to settle is this: Were all these MSS. called Catholicon Anglicum, or was this a name given specially to Lord Monson's manuscript? Any way, the author is quite unknown. We can hardly doubt but that there were other English-Latin Dictionaries besides the Promptorium and the Catholicon, which have been lost, and this opinion is the more probable, as both these appear to have been compiled in the Eastern Counties, and it seems hardly probable that other districts were behind their neighbours in the production of these most necessary books.

It would be a curious inquiry if we were able to learn how these Dictionaries were compiled. In the case of Latin-English Dictionaries there is no difficulty, as there were many sources from which the words could be drawn, but it is different with regard to those in which the English is first, as we do not know of the existence of any earlier list of English words than that found in the Promptorium.

The names attached to the old Dictionaries are curious and worthy of a passing notice here. They give a distinctive character to the several works, which the works would not possess if they were called by the general title of Dictionary. 'Promptuarium' is a more correct form than 'Promptorium,' and means a storehouse or repository. Wynkyn de Worde uses this word in his edition, but Pynson and one of the manuscripts have Promptorius. Johannes de Janua, or Januensis, a native of Genoa in the thirteenth century, appears to have been the first to use the word Catholicon as the title for a Dictionary. His work was very highly esteemed, and it was a very natural proceeding for the unknown English lexicographer to appropriate so well known a title. A Catholicum Parvum, the first printed Latin and French Vocabulary, was published at Geneva in 1487, and a few years afterwards appeared a Catholicum Abbreviatum at Paris, which was reprinted by Jean Lambert at the same place in 1506. The Medulla Grammaticæ or Grammatices is a Latin-English Dictionary existing in a large number of manuscripts. This is attributed to Geoffrey, the Dominican Friar who compiled the Promptorium; and if this really be so, this Worthy must extort our admiration as the author both of the first Latin-English and the first English-Latin Dictionary. The first Latin-English Dictionary printed in England is the Ortus Vocabulorum, which is largely founded on the Medulla. - Another interesting old Dictionary is the Vulgaria of William Horman. Mr. Herrtage mentions this in his Introduction as a work that would well repay reprinting, and I may remark here that the late Mr. Toulmin Smith undertook to edit this book for the Early English Text Society, and in the Second Annual Report, 1866, it is announced with his name in the list of future publications. The death of this excellent worker in the midst of his labour on the volume of English Gilds, however, caused this Dictionary to be dropt out of the list in future years. Peter Levins adopted the title of Manipulus Vocabulorum for his interesting old rhyming Dictionary, and John Baret gives his reasons for calling his Dictionary An Alvearie. He set his scholars to work to extract passages from the classics, and to arrange them under heads: 'Thus within a yeare or two they had gathered togethir a great volume, which (for the apt similitude between the good scholars and diligent bees in gathering their wax and honey into their hive) I called then their Alvearie, both for a memoriall by whom it was made, and also by this name to encourage other to the like diligence, for that they should not see their worthy prayse for the same, unworthily drowned in oblivion.' To come down to rather later times, it may be mentioned, in conclusion, that Thomas Willis, a school-master of Isleworth, named his Dictionary, 1651, Vestibulum. Mr. Way has given a most full and careful account of the early Dictionaries in the Preface to his edition of the Promptorium, and I may, perhaps, be allowed to draw the attention of those interested in Lexicographical history to my 'Chronological Notices of the Dictionaries of the English Language' ¹.

It is hardly necessary now to enlarge upon the value of these old Dictionaries, as that is very generally allowed, but I cannot resist giving an instance of how the Promptorium has settled satisfactorily the etymology of a difficult name. When Mr. Alderman Hanson, F.S.A., was investigating the history of various fruits, he was somewhat puzzled by the term 'Jordan almonds' applied to the best kind of sweet almonds, and he set to work to look up the authorities. He found a definite statement in Phillips's New World of Words (6th ed. by Kersey, 1706), to the effect that 'the tree grows chiefly in the Eastern countries, especially in the Holy Land near the river Jordan, whence the best of this fruit are called "Jordan almonds."' The same statement is made in Bailey's Dictionary in 1757 (the botanical portion of which was edited by no less a person than Philip Miller), and in many other books. In J. Smith's Bible Plants (1877) we read, 'the best so-called Jordan almonds come from Malaga, and none now come from the country of the Jordan.' The author might very well have added that they never did come from that place. The merchants of Malaga, who export the almonds, are equally at sea as to the derivation. One of them told Mr. Hanson that the general opinion was that a certain Frenchman, called Jourdain, early in this century, introduced an improved method of cultivation. This suggestion was easily negatived by reference to the fact that Jordan almonds were mentioned in printed books at least as far back as 1607. At last Mr. Hanson found his clue in the Promptorium, where we read, 'Iardyne almaunde, amigdalum jardinum.' The difficulty was overcome, and the Jordan almond stood revealed as nothing more than a garden or cultivated kind of almond.

In contrasting Mr. Herrtage's edition of the Catholicon with Mr. Way's edition of the Promptorium a very interesting point must needs become apparent. Mr. Way annotated and explained the difficulties of his text with the most unwearied patience, but his authorities were to some extent limited. He himself helped to create the taste which has induced so many scholars to come forward and rescue the monuments of our language from destruction. Every one of Mr. Herrtage's pages bears evidence of the large amount of work which has been done since the Camden Society first issued the Promptorium. Publications of the Early English Text Society are quoted on every page, and Stratmann and Mätzner are put under frequent contribution. We thus see that the labours of late years have already brought forward a rich harvest of illustration, by means of which the difficulties of our beloved tongue are gradually being cleared up. Many words once in use are doubtless irrecoverably lost, but still much has been garnered up. Those who have not attempted to register words can hardly realise the difficulties in the way of the Dictionary maker. All honour, therefore, to those who have overcome the difficulties, and in this band of honest workers the anonymous compiler of the Catholicon Anglicum occupies a prominent place. The difficulties are truly great, but the lexicographer has his compensation, for there is a pleasure in the registration and illustration of words which he only knows who has set his mind to the work with earnestness and enthusiasm.

INTRODUCTION.

Plan of the Work, § 1, p. xiii. — Description of the MSS: Lord Monson's, § 2, p. xiv; the Addit. MS, § 3, p. xvi. — Plan of Collation, § 4, p. xvi. — Quotations and Notes, § 5, p. xviii. — Words unexplained, § 6, p. xix. — Dialect of the MSS, § 7, p. xx. — The Medulla Grammaticæ, § 8, p. xxi. — Authorities quoted in the Notes, § 9, p. xxii. — Helpers in the Work, § 10, p. xxiv. — Conclusion, § 11, p. xxv.

So well known is the present work, now for the first time printed, from the extensive and admirable use made of it by the late Mr. Way in his edition of the 'Promptorium Parvulorum,' that it can require little or no introduction to the students of our language beyond that given by Mr. Wheatley in his Preface. I will, therefore, confine myself to an explanation of the plan and principles of this edition, with a very few remarks on the MSS. and their dialect and peculiarities.

§ 1. My intention throughout in preparing this volume was to make it a companion to the Promptorium, and this intention I have endeavoured to carry out by marking with an asterisk or a dagger respectively such words as were either annotated by Mr. Way, and did not therefore so much require any further annotation on my part, or such as were peculiar to the Catholicicon. So far as it has been possible I have besides tried to give quotations and references, not to be found in Stratmann or any such standard work of reference. As a rule I have not given quotations from authors later than the sixteenth century, but this, of course, I have not been always able to manage. The Wills & Inventories published by the Surtees Society have been a perfect mine of wealth to me; unfortunately I had not the advantage of them at the beginning of my work, and I have therefore been obliged to give my quotations from them for the earlier letters in the additional notes. With regard to these latter, although I perfectly understand and appreciate the inconvenience attending the existence of a double set of notes, and the risk which exists of additional notes being overlooked, I do not know that any apology for their presence is necessary¹. In any work of this class it is absolutely unavoidable that fresh, and in many cases better, illustrations of words will crop up after the sheets have been printed off. Extended reading has brought extended knowledge, and the value of these additions—and I believe that much of value will be found in them—will be, I think, the best apology for their existence.

I adopted Lord Monson's MS. as the basis of my text: first, because it was the fuller and more correct of the two, besides which it was ready copied out for me; and secondly, because it was perfect. The difference in date between the two MSS., if there is any difference, can be but a few years, and was not of itself of sufficient importance to counterbalance other considerations. The Addit. MS. has lost one leaf at the beginning and two at the end, besides three in the body of the work. It is, moreover, so full of palpable and gross errors both in the English and Latin, from which Lord Monson's MS. is free, that I had no hesitation in relegating it to a second place, to be used only for the purposes of collation and of filling up gaps. One most curious point about it is that while up to S it contains far fewer words than Lord Monson's MS., from that letter on it has more than double the entries. Why this is so it is, of course, impossible to say: the entries are here given in full.

§ 2. Lord Monson's MS. of the Catholicon is a thick paper volume measuring 8½ inches by 6. It is perfect, and in almost as good condition as when it left the scriptorium. It consists of

16 quires or 192 leaves¹, 182 of which contain the text, followed by 6 blank. Then on leaf 189 comes the list of terms of relationship reprinted at the end of our text. This list is in a different hand from that in which the main body of the book has been written, and appears, to me at least, to be the same with that in which the corrections and additions have been made in the original scribe's work. These corrections are few in number, the copying having been on the whole very carefully done. Mr. Way was of opinion that it was probable that this MS. was the author's holograph², but this is very doubtful, and is contradicted by the fact that the corrections are in a different hand. In addition to this, in the next paragraph Mr. Way speaking of the Addit. MS. 15,562, assigns to it the date of 1450. But the handwritings are essentially different. Either, therefore, the date assigned to the Addit. MS. must be wrong, or Lord Monson's MS. can not be the author's holograph. But I do not believe that 1450 is the correct date of the Addit. MS. More probably it was compiled about 1475, the date assigned to it in the Museum Catalogue. The numberless, and frequently most extraordinary, mistakes in the Addit. MS. show clearly that it was a copy from an earlier MS., and probably written from dictation.

On the back of the last leaf of Lord Monson's MS. is the following: 'Liber Thome Flowre Succentor ecclesie Cathedralis beate Marie Lincoln. Anno domini M.ccccc.xx;' on which Mr. Way notes³ that he could not find the name of Thomas Flower, sub-chanter, in the Fasti of Lincoln, but that a John Flower occurs among the prebendaries of that church in 1571. He adds that the owner of Lord Monson's MS. may have been of Lincoln College, Oxford, since a Thomas Flower was one of the proctors of the University in 1519⁴. Immediately above this, in faded ink, is the following entry, unmentioned by Mr. Way: 'Anno domini millesimo cccc^{mo} lxxx^{mo} ix^o, Anno regni regis Henrici 7ⁱ, post conquestum quintodecimo,' which is interesting as an instance of the application of the term 'conquestus' to the accession of Henry VII.

The principal authorities cited in the work are, as Mr. Way says, Virgil, Ysidore, Papias, Brito, Hugutio, the Catholicon, the Doctrinale, and the Gloss on the Liber Equivocorum of John de Garlandia, but only Hugutio and the Liber Equivocorum occur at all frequently. A large number of hexameter verses occur, probably, as Mr. Way suggests, from some work of John de Garlandia. The meaning of some of them is not at all clear.

The compiler frequently distinguishes with great acumen between the various shades of meaning of the several Latin equivalents of some one English word.

§ 3. The Addit. MS. 15,562, is a small quarto volume on paper containing originally probably 145 leaves, of which one has been lost at the beginning, as already stated. It is also defective at the end, the last word in it being Wrathe, so that probably two leaves have been lost at the end. It is written in a small and, at times, rather cramped hand. Spaces are frequently left vacant in the letters for additions of words. It was purchased by the Museum at Newman's sale in 1845. Though not so correct as Lord Monson's MS. it has at times helped to an elucidation of some difficulties, and the correction of some errors in the latter. A considerable difference of opinion appears to have existed as to the date of the MS. as stated in § 2. Mr. Way assigned it to 1450, while Halliwell, who in the second volume of his Archaic Dictionary, frequently quotes from the Addit. MS., refers to it sometimes as 'MS. Dictionary, dated 1540¹,' sometimes as 'MS. Dictionary, 1540²,' at other times as 'MS. Dict. c. 1500³,' and again as 'Cathol. Angl. MS.⁴.'

§ 4. A few words will explain the method adopted in printing the collations of A. I have not thought it necessary to give every variation of spelling; the omissions, however, are very few in number, and only occur where the difference in spelling is very trifling. The order in which the words are arranged is not the same in the two MSS., nor are the Latin equivalents given in the same succession. In the case of all words which are found only in A. and not in Lord Monson's MS. I have printed an A in brackets (A.) at the end of the word; as Armyd; armatus (A.). And when I have inserted various readings from A. in the text I have enclosed them in brackets and appended the letter (A.): thus the entry 'a Cropure (Cruppure A.); postela (postellum A.)' is intended to show that the reading of Lord Monson's MS. is 'a Cropure; postela;' and that of the Addit. MS. 'a Cruppure; postellum.'

⁴ See Timmer, p. 875.

After the first few pages I have, in order to economise space, omitted the inflexional endings of the genitive cases of nouns, and the feminine and neuter genders of adjectives. But no alteration has been made in the text without due notice in the notes¹. I have expanded the contractions, showing the expansions as usual by the use of italics: ℥ and ñ I have treated as representing lle and ne respectively; but ñ I have printed as it stands, it being doubtful what is the exact value of the mark of contraction. The author has throughout used vbi for 'see' or 'refer to,' and participium for our 'adjective.'

The method adopted in the compiling and arranging the numerous notes required for the work was as follows: I first went carefully through the whole of the MS., comparing each word with its representative in the Promptorium, and in cases where no such representative could be found marking the word with a dagger (†). Where I found that Mr. Way had already annotated the word I marked it with an asterisk (*). I am afraid instances will be found of words, to which I have attached a dagger, really occurring in the Promptorium, under a slightly different form, sufficiently different to escape my notice.

The reading of books for the purpose of getting together illustrative quotations was a long and heavy, but far from disagreeable task. Most of the books written previously to the middle of the 15th century had, of course, been already read by Stratmann, Mätzner, and others, but all of a later date I had to read through myself, as well as all belonging to the earlier period which had been printed by the various Societies since the publication of those dictionaries.

§ 5. I have in every case been careful not to repeat any of Mr. Way's quotations or remarks on any word, except for some special reason. This will to a great extent account for the fact that after the letter P my notes become much more frequent and full. It is much to be regretted that Mr. Way was unable to annotate the third part of the Promptorium (from R to the end) as fully as he had the preceding letters. There are many, very many, words in this third part of the greatest interest and importance to the student and philologist, and well deserving of the same careful and learned treatment as was bestowed by the editor on the letters A—R. And not a few words, too, are difficult to understand, and perhaps almost unintelligible to the ordinary reader without a note.

It will be readily seen that the annotation of the two works has been carried out on very different lines. Mr. Way, from his apparently inexhaustible store of archæological lore, has enriched the Promptorium with notes and quotations bearing rather on the history of that which is represented by the word, than upon the history of the word itself as shown by its use in various authors, while my notes are almost entirely devoted to the latter object.

I have endeavoured to be especially careful about the correctness of the quotations and references, feeling that on this depends a great deal of their value. But in a work of this kind, in which so many hundreds of quotations are brought together, mistakes can not be entirely avoided, and I can only trust that their number is comparatively infinitesimal.

The experience which I have gained as Assistant-Editor of the Philological Society's new English Dictionary of the trouble, the vexation caused by, nay, even the almost absolute worthlessness of quotations the references to which are either imperfectly or incorrectly given, has taught me the extreme importance of correctness and fulness in this particular. Unfortunately my experience came too late for me to carry into practice in every instance the fulness of reference which I should now wish to see. I have tried, therefore, to make up for this, as far as lay in my power, by giving as full and complete as possible a list of the authorities quoted from, with particulars as to the editions used, and the dates of the original works. The dates, although, of course, in many cases only approximate, will, as I know from experience, be found of great service, and should, in fact, be always given in works of this kind. The time which it will save to students, none but those who have had the trouble of hunting up authorities as to the date of a MS. can appreciate.

I much regret now that I did not from the beginning arrange the quotations according to their chronological order of composition. The point did not occur to me until I began to use Mätzner's Wörterbuch, when I at once recognised the mistake into which we had both fallen, and the great inconveniences arising from it, although these inconveniences, owing to the relatively small number of quotations given by me, will not, I think, be so much felt as in the case of the fuller work.

It was also suggested to me that I should re-arrange the words in their strict alphabetical order, but I do not see that the advantageousness of such an arrangement is so apparent as to call for the amount of time and labour involved in its preparation. As a rule, the words are in a very close approximation to the strict alphabetical order, and I have therefore contented myself with altering the position of such few words as were by some accident inserted in the MS. a long way from their proper position.

I have followed Mr. Way's lead in endeavouring rather to illustrate by contemporary or earlier quotations the words given in the Catholicon, than to enter on the difficult and dangerous ground of etymologies.

§ 6. There are a few words of which, notwithstanding all my exertions, I have been unable to obtain any satisfactory explanation. Such are 'to Bacon; displodere;' 'Bebybeke;' 'a Bychdoghter; epialtes;' 'Blossom, colloquintida;' 'to Blunder; *balandior*¹;' 'to Calle a hawke; stupare;' 'Common slaughter; dalitaria ; 'Fawthistelle ; labrum Veneris ; 'Fox fire ; glos ; 'a Martinett ; irristiticus ; 'to Ouergett ; equiparare ; 'to Pok ; sinciare ; 'Severouse ; 'a Skaunce ; 'a Smytt ; oblectamentum ; 'Splete ; ignum ; 'to Springe ; enervare ; 'Talghe lafe ; congiarum ; 'a Welpes ; and a few others. As to any of these I shall be glad to receive suggestions.

§ 7. It is a difficult matter in the case of a work of this class, in which we have only isolated words on which to base an opinion, to decide exactly as to the birth-place or dialect of the author : and this difficulty is increased by the fact that of the copies which have come down to us neither in all probability is the autograph of the compiler, but the work of a scribe. We can, however, in the present instance assert with considerable confidence that the compiler was a native of one of the northern counties. Mr. Way was of opinion that the dialectical peculiarities of the MS. indicated that it was compiled in the north-eastern parts of England, and in this he was most probably correct. He pointed out that the names of Norwich, Lincoln, York, Richmond, Ripon, Durham and Carlisle occur in it, but we can hardly attribute much importance to this fact, inasmuch as we also find London, Salisbury, Bath, Oxford, Winchester, and Cambridge—and these are all names of places which would be likely to be familiar to a monk, and such I believe the compiler to have been, grounding my opinion on his intimate knowledge of ecclesiastical terms, as evidenced throughout the work, as well as on such slight, but, to my mind, significant entries as didimus for vn-Trowabylle. The mention of Hekbets or Heckboats is more to the purpose, as these appear to have been peculiar to the river Ouse in Yorkshire. So also with Scurffe, which appears to obtain principally on the Tees¹. So again, we have the curious expression Gabrielle rache, which still exists in Yorkshire. Further, the author speaks of the Wolds, which he renders by Alpes. On the whole it is probable that the work was compiled in the north portion of the East Riding of Yorkshire : more exactly than this it is now impossible to fix the locality. The reader will notice the large number of words occurring in our work, which are illustrated by quotations from the Wills and Inventories published by the Surtees Society, and from Henry Best's Farming and Account Book. Many of these, such as Rekande, Spene, Bery, Scurffe, Ley, Staith, Mosscrep, and others, are peculiar to Yorkshire, or at least to the most northern counties.

The Addit. MS. appears to have been originally written in a purer northern dialect than Lord Monson's MS., but it has constantly been altered by the scribe. This is shown by the order in which we find the words. Thus Spoyne was no doubt originally written Spune, as is clear from its position. Again we have 'Scho' or 'Ho' in A., where Lord Monson's MS. reads 'Sche.'

The thorn letter þ is found not unfrequently throughout the work, but does not occur as the initial letter of a set of words: instead of it words beginning with th are given in the regular alphabetical order under T.

As in the Promptorium, the Scribe has not been consistent in his use of the thorn letter: frequently we find instead of it the y which not long after entirely superseded it. Occasionally we even meet with the two forms in the same line.

Sch is used for sh, and sch for sl, but not invariably.

§ 8. The MS. of the Medulla Grammaticæ, of which, by the kindness of the authorities of St. John's College, Cambridge, I have been enabled to make such free use, is that referred to by Mr. Way at p. liii of his Introduction. It is a 4to MS. belonging to St. John's College, Press Mark C. 22, on paper quires, with vellum covers to each quire. Thus the first two leaves are vellum, then come five leaves of paper, followed by two leaves of vellum, five of paper, and so on. At the end is the date, in the same handwriting as the body of the MS., 16th December, 1468. It is a Latin Dictionary, the explanation of the words being mainly in Latin¹. It was presented to the College by Thomas, Earl of Southampton, and is stated to have been purchased from William Crashawe, a brother of the poet, who was admitted fellow of St. John's in 1593. I have also at times consulted other MSS. of the Medulla, such as MSS. Harl. 1000, 1738, 2257, and 2270, but all the illustrations from the Medulla, which will be found in my notes, have

I would especially draw attention to the very great similarity which we find in many words between the Catholicon and the Medulla, pointing clearly to the fact of a common origin.

§ 9. The authorities to which I have had recourse, and from which my notes and illustrations have been drawn are set out in the list at the end of this volume, but it may not be amiss here to refer more fully to such of them as I have found more especially useful. Amongst Dictionaries of the older English, Stratmann and Mätzner have been of the greatest value: of the latter, unfortunately, I had no opportunity of consulting a copy until after C had passed the press. Of the former I have made free use, although, at the same time, endeavouring to gather together illustrations and quotations not to be found there.

In Wright's Volume of Vocabularies, although it is far from satisfactorily free from faults and mistakes, I have found an almost endless source of illustrations of many words and of all dates.²

For later English my chief helps have been Huvel's Dictionary, Herman's Vocabula (two most curious and interesting works, which would well repay reprinting), Baret's Avaria, the Græce Latiniarum,³ Levin's Manupolus Technicorum, Stambridge's Technica, Palgrave's Cicerone, and, in a lesser degree, Cockburn, Withals, Gouldman, and Jamieson.

For the names of plants and instances of botanical terms I have principally had recourse to Cockayne's Glossarium, Lyte's translation of Plukius, Turner's and Gervase's Herbarii, and the several lists of plants in Wright's Volume of Vocabularies, already mentioned, besides numerous lists of plants in MSS.⁴ The Dictionary of English Plant-Names, compiled by Messrs. Britton &

³ See Mr. Way's loc. cit. p. 2v. I have used the edition of 1834.

⁴ Mr. Way gives a list of several MSS. in 1664 and many more might be mentioned. Why should not one of our libraries have a collection of some, at least, of the numerous glossaries still remaining in MS. The lists which they would help to throw on our language can not be over-estimated.

Holland, would have been of the greatest service to me had it appeared earlier.

The publications of the English Dialect Society have furnished me with abundant instances of dialectal forms and words occurring in the Catholicon, and still in use in our Northern Counties. More especially have I been indebted to the Glossaries of Mr. E. Peacock (Lincolnshire), Mr. C. C. Robinson (Mid-Yorkshire), Mr. Nodal (Lancashire), and Prof. Skeat's editions of Ray, &c.

Many of my illustrations, as well as hints and helps for many others are due to the publications of the late Mr. Riley for the Rolls Series. His editions of the Liber Albus and the Liber Custumarum are crammed with bits of archæological lore, which have added vastly to the value of my notes, to which I have freely transferred them¹.

I have, of course, placed all the publications of the Early English Text Society under contribution, many of them, especially those most recently issued, I had to read through myself for the purpose, as they are not included in Stratmann. Of the publications of the Camden Society the most useful to me have been the Thornton Romances, the Ancren Riwle, and the Bury Wills & Inventories, the last containing a large number of valuable and interesting words and forms.

But the most valuable works to me have been the Wills & Inventories, the Testamenta Eboracensia, and other publications of the Surtees Society. It is impossible to speak too highly of the importance of these works to all students of our language and its history. Extending as they do over a period of more than 500 years, from 1085 to 1600, they afford an almost inexhaustible mine of material to the student, and the complete glossary and index which we are promised to them and the other issues of the Society will be one of the most valuable works in existence. Next in importance to the Wills & Inventories comes the Farming & Account Books of Henry Best, a Yorkshire farmer, who died in 1645. A very slight glance will show to what a great extent this work has helped to throw light on many of the dialectal terms and forms in the Catholicon. For purposes of quotation, indeed, it has been a more satisfactory book than the Wills & Inventories, as the extracts in most cases help to explain themselves, instead of being a mere list of names. Several other publications of the same Society have also furnished a valuable and welcome quota of illustrations, more especially the Townley Mysteries and the Early English Psalter. Nor should I omit to mention the excellent reprints of Prof. Arber, as remarkable for their correctness as their cheapness.

Such have been my main resources for the earlier and dialectal illustrations of the words in the Catholicon: for more modern uses, Prof. Skeat's and Mr. Wedgwood's Etymological Dictionaries have been of the greatest service, while for Scotch words and forms I have used Jamieson's Dictionary.

§ 10. And now my task is done, with the exception of one pleasant duty, that of returning thanks to those gentlemen who have in various ways assisted me during the progress of the work. The chief thanks both of the Societies and of myself are of course due to Lord Monson for his great kindness in lending this valuable MS. freely and willingly, without any restriction as to time, for so many years.

Next our thanks are due to Prof. Mayor and the authorities of St. John's College, Cambridge, for the willingly-granted loan of their MS. of the Medulla, and to Mr. H. B. Wheatley for his very interesting Preface.

My own thanks are especially due to Mr. H. Hucks Gibbs, first, for kindly lending me his set of the publications of the Surtees Society, of which I have made so large a use in my notes; and secondly, for assistance in the explanation of several words, which had long puzzled others as well as myself. To Mr. Furnivall and Mr. J. H. Hessels I am similarly indebted, for help in my hunt after the origin and meaning of a large number of words; while from Prof. Skeat I have, as ever, always received a ready aid. In especial I am deeply indebted to Mr. Wedgwood, who has kindly found time to read over a large proportion of the work in proof, and by his suggestions and help has contributed not a little to its value.

§ 11. In the preceding pages I have endeavoured to explain clearly the plan on which I have carried out this work, and the sources on which I have drawn for the notes. That the work will be found in every way satisfactory is far beyond my expectations. That deficiencies and short-comings will most disagreeably make themselves evident in some places, and excess in others is, I fear, unavoidable in a work of this kind; and I can only lay it before the Societies with a confident hope that, despite its failings, it will be found of value for the number and variety of the illustrations collected together in it. The work was originally intended for the members of the Early English Text Society only, the Council of the Camden Society having some years ago determined not to follow up the joint publication of Levins' Manipulus Vocabulorum. When, however, about half of the Catholicon had passed the press, the proposal to join in its production was made to the Camden Society, and it is a source of very great gratification to me that the Council of the Society which printed the Promptorium has recognized the present volume as a worthy companion to Mr. Way's admirable work. It has occupied my leisure now for more than three years, and in parting with it I seem to part with an old friend, whose welfare and progress have so largely occupied my thoughts during that time. It would have been better for the Societies had Mr. Wheatley been able to find time in his busy life to write a longer introduction to this work, but as it is, I can only commend the book to the impartial judgment of the members of the two Societies, in the words of the original compiler himself: 'Si qua in ea reprehensione digna invenerint, aut corrigant, aut oculis clausis pertranseant, aut saltem humane ignorancie imputent.'

SIDNEY J. H. HERRTAGE.

MILL HILL, N.W.,

August, 1881.

NOTE BY THE DIRECTOR.

A Member of the Society having sent a list of corrigenda, they were submitted by me to Mr. Hertridge. A few, as he informs me, are justified by the MS. The remaining suggestions are as follows:—

P. 3, col. 1, l. 6, the comma placed after “nullus” should be after “petat.”

P. 5, col. 1, l. 5, for “tum” read “tamen.”

P. 7, col. 2, l. 9, for the lines 9-12 read—

“Totus comprehendit massam, sed dividit omnis;

Et quandoque tamen complectitur omnia cunctus.”

P. 7, col. 2, l. 15, the MS. A. has “id est” before “omnia.”

P. 38, col. 1, l. 21, “fultrum.” The MS. has this here, but “fulcrum” should be read.

P. 40, col. 1, l. 7, for “filiceus” read “flicensis.”

P. 41, col. 2, l. 8, for “fura” read “sura.”

P. 57, col. 2, l. 11, for “fultrum” read fulcrum.

P. 74, col. 2, l. 11, MS. A. has “qui,” not “quis.”

P. 76, col. 1, l. 13, the reading given spoils the metre. The MS. A. really has,

“Est seges atque seres sunt ac etiam sata messes.”

Line 17, “quum” is never found in MSS. of this date; it should be “quando,” which will make the line scan.

P. 76, col. 2, l. 1, MS. A. has “Deque creando seres fertur quia res creat omnes.”

P. 90, col. 1, lines 2 and 3, the line should be,

“Est zizannia, sunt zizannia, plura neque.

P. 99, col. 2, l. 29. For this line read,

A. adds “scilicet fovea.”

P. 135, col. 1, l. 11, something is wanting in this line.

- P. 138, col. 2, l. 6, for "fultrum," read "fulcrum."
- P. 153, col. 2, l. 3, dele [? virum], which does not scan.
- P. 189, col. 1, l. 9, "manus." I think this must be "mannus" (both for sense and metre's sake).
- P. 189, col. 1, l. 11, "rede" seems to me quite right. "A carriage's drawers we call veredi."
- P. 190, col. 2, l. 5. This must be the stock line,
 "Tolle me-mu-mi-mis in variando domus" (not "mus").
- P. 190, col. 2, l. 14. This line will not scan. Clearly, instead of foisting in "que," read "ac" for "at."
- P. 194, col. 2, l. 8, "morum." I suppose this is "mor'," i.e. "more."
- P. 265, col. 2, l. ult. for "fueri," read "fuere."
- P. 275, col. 1, l. 9, A has quod construxerit.
- P. 281, col. 2, l. 14. This line ought to be,
 "Mingere fit proprie quoniam sic convenit esse."
- P. 299, col. 1, l. 16, for "est," read "sit," which gives metre and grammar.
- P. 306, col. 1, line 18, for "perpendiculumque," read "perpendiculum quod."
- P. 307, col. 1, line 12, read "utroque" for "uterque."
- P. 323, col. 1, line 3. This line is wrong.
- P. 328, col. 1, l. 10. This line will neither scan nor construe. The first word is probably "post."
- P. 335, col. 2. The last line does not seem sense.
- P. 340, col. 2, l. 18, for "homines," read "homines" or "hominem."
- P. 340, col. 2, l. 25, for "sic quum," read "si quando"
- P. 359, col. 1, l. 9, for "Fercula nos faciant prelatos, fercula portant," read,

"Fercula nos satiant, prelatos fercula portant."

Mr. Herrtage adds that in the Additional Notes, p. xxxi., line 12, the words "In the note for Blodevren read Blodeyren" should be omitted, and he also sends the following corrections:—

Mr. J. H. Hessels, who is editing a new and revised edition of Du Cange for Mr. John Murray, has pointed out a mistake in the reading of the Addit. MS. under Defoulle, p. 94, col. 1, l. 15, viz.: corpora. It stands in the MS. 'cor A,' which should, of course, have been printed as correpta A, as in other cases throughout the volume. In some cases these notes of the compiler will be found to have been omitted when only occurring in the Addit. MS. This is due in a great measure to the fact that the Addit. MS. was used mainly for purposes of collation and filling up gaps. In some cases, too, Latin words occurring in the Addit. MS. have been passed over. This was done sometimes intentionally, on the ground that the difference in spelling was very slight. Occasionally, however, both Mr. Brock and myself have no doubt missed some words which occur only in the Addit MS., and this is accounted for by the fact that the Latin equivalents in the two MSS. are not given in the same order, so that when many equivalents were given it was an easy matter to miss one or more, in spite of all our care. My business lay mainly with the English words, the Latin equivalents being of secondary importance, though they prove to be of great value to Mr. Hessels for his work. It is to be hoped that some Mediæval Latin Text Society or some German Editor will supplement my work by printing the Addit. MS. in full.

Introduction, pp. xv, xvi : my note as to conquestus is all wrong. The inscription simply means "in the fifteenth year of the seventh Henry after the Conquest." I was misled by the fact that there had been no Henrys before the Conquest.

List of Authorities. The date of Lazamon is misprinted 1305, instead of 1205.

ADDITIONAL NOTES.

Page 17. Badildore. This undoubtedly here means the instrument used by washers to beat coarse clothes. In Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 269, we have 'Hoc feratorium, Hoc pecten, a batylledore,' and Palgrave has, 'Batyllore, battorer a lessive.' In the Invent. of Raffe Gower, of Richmond, taken in 1567, are included 'iiij batle doweres, a maille and a maille pyllone.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 197.

Bafynstylkylle. 'Sir, (said the Foxe) it is Lentren yee see,
And I can neither fish with huke nor net,
To take aue Banstickle, though we both should die.'

Henryson, Moral Fables, 1571, p. 65.

This is, no doubt, the same word as beynstylls, which occurs in a burlesque poem in Reliq. Antiq. i. 86, and seems to have puzzled Mr. Halliwell:

'Then ther com masfattus in mortros alle soow, Borhammys [flounders] and beynstellys, for thei my3t not goo.'

18. Bakke. 'Hec resperitilio, a bake.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 220. 'More louynge derkenes than lyght, lyke vnto a beest called a backe.' Bp. Fisher, Works, p. 87. See also Douglas, Æneidos, Bk. xiii. Prol. p. 449.

Baldeestrot. 'Hic leno, -nis, baustrott.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 216.

19. Balyngar. 'Ther wer lost ij carykkes and two balyngers with marchandyses and other goodes, and alle the peple that were within.' Caxton, Chronicle of England, 1482, ch. ccxxiv. p. 304. In the State Papers, Henry VIII, vol. ii. p. 76, is a complaint that 'oon Rycharde Pepyr, of Caleys, hath of late robbed and dyspoyled twoo Brytton shippis upon the see, and hath brought with hym oon of their ballyngers.'

'In Bote, in Balingar and Bargis The twa Armyis on otherris chargia.'

Lyndessay, Monarchie, Bk. ii. l. 3101.

See the Ancient Scottish Prophecy, printed by Prof. Lumby in his edition of Bernardus De Cura Rei Fam. p. 21, l. 116—

'Fra farnelands to the fyrth salbe a fayr sygh
O barges and ballungerys, and mony brod sayle.'

Balke. 'It is and ought to bee the care of shepheards . . . that, when their sheepe have had their will on the stubbles three weekes or a moneth, then to have an eye to the heades, *balke*s and divisions that lye betwixt two faughes, for that is usually a battie, sweete, moiste and (as wee say) a naturall grasse.' Best, Farming, &c., Book, p. 28. 'He that wylle stalke, Be brook or balke.' Coventry Mysteries, p. 343. 'My body on balke per bod in sweuen.' Allit. Poems, A. 62. The verb occurs in Gower, i. 296—

'So well halt no man the plough That he ne balketh other while.'

Banccour. 'For the array of the hall four bankers.' English Gilda, p. 233.

Bande of a dure. In the Cursor Mundi, 19306, we are told that when the angel delivered the Apostles from prison he

'pe prisun dors left als he fand, Noiper he brak ne barr ne band.'

In the Invent. of Sir J. Birnand, 1565, we find 'iiij bucket grithes, iiij iron bandes for a doore, j stancyon of iron and a barre.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 178: and in the Invent. of John Colan, of York, 1490, is an item. 'De ij veteribus lex dore bandes, ferri vjd.' Testaments Ebor. iv. 59. See the curious burlesque poem printed in Reliq. Antiq. i. 86, where the writer speaks of 'Dore-bundys stalkyng one stylttus, in ther hondus gret olms.'

Banworte. 'Swige, ban-wyrt.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 68. 'Osmund, osmunda, bon-wurt.' Ibid. p. 141.

20. Bane schawe. Langham in his Garden of Health, 1633, p. 93, recommends 'For the boneshawe and gout, seethe the flowers [of Broome] with wine and oyle olive, apply it.' In a long list of diseases printed in Jamieson from 'Montgomerie, Watson's Coll. iii. 13,' s. v. Cleik are mentioned 'Bock-blood and Benshaw, Spewen sprung in the Spald.' Grose, in his Glossary, gives 'Boneshace, bony or horny excrescence or tumour growing out of horses heels; perhaps so called from a distant resemblance to the substance of a bone spavin: also, the scratches. Exmore.'

21. Barsepay. In the translation of Vegetius on the Art of War, in Royal MS. 8 A. xii. ff. 103, is an account of a berfry, which may be compared with the description of that in Sir Ferumbras given in my note: 'A somer castel or a rollyng tour is a gyn of werre moche and large and of grete cost. hit is made squaar as a tour of stoon, of grete bemes and plancheres nayled and pynned and framed to-gidre: and for it schole not be lýtliche I-brend ne fyred wip enemyes, hit is heled wip-oute with rawe hyde and wete hayres and feltes. ¶ Þese towres after here heythes þei hauen here brede, some ben xxxⁱⁱ, some xlⁱⁱ, some fifty foote squar of brede . . . he haþ many stages, in many manere wise he harmef and assaileþ. he haþ in þe neither flore I-heled his mynours to digge and myne þe wal. he haþ þere also þe gyn þat is cleped þe Ram wip strokes to stonye þe wal. ¶ In þe mydde stage [he] haþ a foldyng brigge to let falle sodeynliche vpon þe top of þe walles. Compare P. Somyr Castell. In the Allit. Poems, B. 1187, we are told that when Nebuchadnezzar besieged Jerusalem there was 'at vch brugge a berfray on basteles wyse;' and so when besieging Thebes Alexander 'and his folk alle,

22. Barnakylle. In the 14th cent. glossary in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 180, 'frenum cum chamo' is glossed by 'brydyll' and 'barnaculle,' and again, on the following page, we have 'canus, barnaculle.' Trevisa in his trans. of Higden, l. 353, says of the Irish: 'Þey dryueþ hir hors wip a chambre 3erde in þe ouer ende instede of barnacles and of bridels of reest [cani vice].' See also Wyclif, Proverbs xxvi. 3, Psalms xxxi. 9, &c. 'Barnacles or Burnacles to putte on a horses nose to make hym to stande. Pastorius. Huloet. Brayes. Barnacles for a horses nose.' Cotgrave.

Baslarde. In the Invent. of John de Scardeburgh, taken in 1395, we find mentioned, 'unum baselard ornatum, cum manubrio de murro, pret. vj^s. viij^d. vend. pro xi^s.' Test. Ebor. iii. 3.

24. Bature. See the recipe 'for Freture' in the Liber Cure Cocorum, p. 39:

'With egges and floure in batere pou make, Put berne þer to, I undertake, &c.'

Beabowteward. I ought to have explained that this means to try, attempt, as shown by the latin equivalents. Chaucer in the Knight's Tale, 1146, has:

'Now thou woldest falsly ben aboute To love my lady.'

Compare the Ancren Riwle, p. 234, "'Lo!" cweð ure Louerd, "Satan is 3eorne abuten norto ridlen þe ut of mine corne!"' and the Sowdoun of Babylone, l. 839: 'Ferumbras was euer a-bowte To fyghte withe Olyvere.'

'Syr Marrok, hys steward

To do hys lady gyle.'

Was faste abouteward

Sir Triamour, 65.

Becalle. In Genesis & Exodus, after the departure of his brothers with the cup hidden in Benjamin's sack, Josef haueð hem after sent.

And bi-calleð of harme and scaðe.'

His fonde hem overtakeð raðe,

l. 2314.

'Menne, bikalled of tresoun, And has me put her in presoun,' Ywaine & Gowain, l. 2133. In Allit. Poems, A. 913, the word is used in the simple meaning of call. 'Be calle þam of tresoun.' Robert of Brunne, p. 257.

In Lazamon, 13322, we read of 'æenne bœt' filled 'from breorde to grunde.' In the Allit. Poems, B. 1474, we have the form brurde; see also l. 383: 'brurðful to þe bonkes egge.'

'Hym thought that the fruyt was goode, And gadderd bret-ful hys hooðe.'

Sevyn Sages, ed. Wright, 945.

Bret-ful also occurs in Pierce the Ploughmans Crede, 223, and in Wright's Polit. Songs, p. 33: 'bretful a male off noht;' and Trevisa in his trans. of Higden, ii. 173, has 'Tantalus standeþ alway in a water vp anon to þe ouer breude of þe neþer lippe.' See also Destruct. of Troy, ll. 1256 and 10254. Bred is the English and bret the Scandinavian form.

43. a Brese. 'Hic brucus, a breas.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 223. 'Hoc prestrum, A^{ce} a brese.' ibid. p. 255. In Palladius On Husbandrie, Bk. i. l. 654, the author recommends for peahens, 'Pluck away the feet and yeve hem breases [locustas];' and again, for sitting hens, 'bresed whete and breses longe.' l. 679. In the Early English Psalter, Ps. civ. 34 is rendered a Bretasyng. 'Hoc signaculum, a bretys.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 236. 'Hoc propinaculum, A^{ce} a bretayge.' ibid. p. 264. 'Propugnacula, brytegyss.' ibid. p. 130.

'He saide, and gressop sone come pare, And brese [brucus V.] of whilk na tale na ware,' where Wyclif reads 'werte werm' and Purvey bruk. 'The brese upon her, like a cow in June.' Shakspeare, Ant. & Cleop. III. x. 14.

'Trwe tulkkes in toures teneled wyth-inne.

In bigge brutage of borde, bulde on þe wallas.' Allit. Poems, B. 1190. Wyclif, Works, ed. Arnold, i. 191, has 'the higest part of þis toure is briteysing of charite.' See also Song of Solomon, viii. 9, and Buttrese in Skeat's Etymol. Dict.

44. to Bryme. In Palladius On Husbandrie, Bk. iii. l. 1051, we are told that in May 'bores gladly brymmeth;' and again, l. 1068—

'Thees if me spende, or mynt for them receyve, Forth pigges moo.'

The sonner wol they brymme ayeine and brynge to Bryse. 'Bowe shal he bris and breke wapenes ma.' E. E. Psalter, Ps. xlv. 10. See also Ps. xxxvi. 17.

a Broche for garn. In the quotation from Douglas for 'daith mahyng' read 'claith makyng.'

a Brokk. Trevisa says of Beverley that it 'hatte Beverlay, and keep Brook his lay, for many brokkes were somtyme i-woned to come piðer out of þe hilles.' Higden. vi. 205.

Brokylle. 'Of brokele kende his that he deithe,

For hy ne moze nauzt dury.' Shoreham, p. 3.

Turner, in his Herbal, pt. ii. lf. 64, says of Frenche Spikenard that it 'hath many rootes clengyng together, full, and not brukle or easy to breke.' Huloet has 'Throw out rubbel, as mortar, stone, and such lyke brockell of olde buyldynges. Erudero. Brickle or easy to be broken. Dissipalis.' 'I beseche you what vessel may be more brukle and frayle than is our body that dayly nedeth reparacyon?' Fisher, Works, p. 91. In the Cursor Mundí, 24044, we have the form brixel, and in Chaucer, Parson's Tale, p. 626, l. 473 (6-Text ed.), brotel.

45. Brostyn. 'Hernia, burstnesse.' Stanbridge, Vocabula. The first quotation is from Cooper. For 'broke-ballochyd' in the quotation from Wright's Vol. of Vocab. read 'broke-ballokyd,' and for 'p. 177' read 'p. 176.'

Browes. See R. Cœur de Lion, 3077: '[he] soupyd off the brouweys a sope.

46. a Brusket. 'Hoc petusculum, a bruskette.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 222.

a Bucler plaer. Cp. p^e Sworde and Buckler playing. See the burlesque stories in Reliq. Antiq. i. 83, 'owt of ther balys come iiij. and xxth. oxon playing at the sword and bokelar.'

47. a Bulas. W. de Bibbesworth in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 162, has 'Le creeker que creekes (bolaces) porte.' 'Hec pepulus, a bolys-tre.' ibid. p. 228.

a Bulhede. 'Hic capito, a bulhede.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 222.

a Bultyng cloth. In the Invent. of R. Bishop, taken about 1500, are mentioned, 'xxix yerdes off boutyng cloth xlth.' Test. Ebor. iv. 192. 'Hoc pollitridium, A^{ce} bult-clathe.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 201. 'ij bultyng-clothes, iiijth,' are included in the Invent. of W. Duffield, 1452. Test. Ebor. iii. 137. See Babees Book, p. 12.

47. a Burde dermande. In an Invent. printed in Test. Ebor. iv. 291 is an item 'de xvij^d. pro iij dormondes bordes cum tripote.' In the Invent. of Thomas Morton, 1448, is an item 'de ij mensis vocatis dormoundes, cum ij longis formulis pro eisdem v^o.' Test. Ebor. iii. 108.

48. a Burdecloth. 'De x^d. de ij burdclothis. De iij^d. de j burdcloth et j sanappe.' Invent. of H. Grantham, 1410. Test. Ebor. iii. 48. See English Gilds, p. 233, Babees Book, pp. 120, 146, &c. 'Hee mappa, A^e borde-clathe.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 198.

49. a Bur tre. Turner, in his Herbal, pt. ii, lf. 59 says: 'The wod [of Tamarisk] is very holow . . . lyke unto cloder or bourtre;' and again, lf. 124, 'Sambucus is called . . . in English Elder or Bourtree.' 'Hee sambucus, a bur-tree.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 228.

a Buyste. 'Hee p^lais, A^e boyst.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 193. In the Ancien Riwle the author says of the devil 'he haueð so monie bustes (boistes other MSS.) ful of his letuaries.' See Chaucer, Parson's Tale (6-Text ed.), p. 671, l. 947.

a Butewe. In the Ordinances of the Gild of Cordwainers of Exeter, it is ordered that search be made for 'all wete lethere and drye botez, botwez, schoez, pynconz, galegez, &c.' English Gilds, p. 332. The author of the Fardle of Facions mentions amongst a bishop's dress, his boateves, his Amice, an Albe, &c.' Pt. II. ch. xii. p. 269.

51. a Cake. In the note, for 'Daupliné' read 'Dauphiné.'

Cale. 'My master suppya no coyle bot cold.' Towneley Myst., p. 18. The author of the translation of Palladius On Husbandrie. Bk. ii. l. 223 has 'cool also, Garlic, ulpike eke sowe hem now [January] bothe two.' 'Hoc magudere, A^e calstok.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 190.

52. to Calkyle. The author of the Complaynt of Scotland says: 'Who can calkil the degreis of kyn and blude of the barrons of Scotland, thai vil conferme this samyn,' p. 167. Chaucer, Astrolabe, p. 3, speaks of 'subtil tables calculated for a kawse.'

a Calle trappe. Turner, in his Herbal, pt. ii, lf. 157, speaks of 'an yron wyth four pykes called . . . a calltrop, that is also named tribulus, of the lykenes that it hath wyth the fruyt of tribulus.' Neckam, in his Treatise De Utilitatibus (Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 111) mentions amongst the articles necessary to a farmer—

calketrap idem pedica
'pedicam sive discipulam, qua lupi copiantur.'

Dugdale, in his MS. Glossary, Harl. MS. 1129, lf. 15, has the following entry: 'Edwardus willoughby tenet manerium de wollaton de Rege, et de honore Peverell per duas partes, i feodum militare, et j messuagium, et vj bovatas, tres in Carleton vt de manerio de Shelsford, per servicium vnus Catopulte per annum pro omni servicio. Liber Schedul. de term^o. Michael. 14 Henry IV, Nott. fol. 210.'

a Cambake. 'Hoc pedum, a cambok.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 202. 'Hee cambruca, a cambok.' ibid. p. 232. In this latter instance it probably means a crooked beam on which to hang carcasses of animals. Stow mentions a game played with sticks with crooked ends called cambok: probably the same as our hockey. 'The joys of the Cambruk helpith ayenst blerydnesse of the eyen, and heelyth whelkes and pymples of the lyppes, and sleeth the chypperynges of the tonge.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvii. ch. cxxxiii. p. 695.

Candyl schers. 'Emunctoria, candeltwist.' Gloss. MS. Harl. 3376.

54. a Caralle. 'Oure blisse is ywent into wop, oure karoles into zorje.' Ayenbite, p. 71. 'A caril, canticum.' Manip. Vocab.

'Knyf playing and ek syngyng, Carolyng and turneieyng.'

Robert of Gloucester, p. 53.

See also Romaunt of the Rose, 753, 759, Gower, ii. 232, &c.

a Cardiakyle. In the Digby Mysteries, p. 106, l. 1363, the Virgin is spoken of as 'Fe myske a-zens þe hertes of vyolens, þe lentyll Ielopher a-zens þe cardyakylles wrech.'

'Cardiacus dicitur qui patitur laborem cordis, uel morbus cordis, heort-copa, uel eco, modsecones, uel unmiht.' Gloss. MS. Harl. 3376.

Carsay. See the Invent. of Richard Gurnell, in 1555, in which we find mentioned: 'x yards of white carsay, x^s. Item, xiiij yards of carsay, xvi^s. iij^d. Item, iij^s. yards of white carsay, v^s. &c.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 86.

55. a Carte sadille. See the burlesque poem of the 15th cent. in Reliq. Antiq. i. 81: 'her wer wesels and waspes offering cartesaduls;' see also p. 85. In 1403 we find in an Invent. of John de Searle, 'ij carisadles, viij^d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 24. 'Hoc dorsilolum, 'cart-sadylle.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 202.

56. a Cawdille. 'Jeff sche not 3ow cawdel to potage, Whan 3e had don, to comforte 3our brayn.' Coventry Myst. p. 139.
In the Liber Cure Cocorum, p. 23, where are directions for the preparation of 'Chykyns Cawdel,' and again 'For a cawdel,' p. 51. In the Forme of Cury, pp. 24 and 60 are also receipts for 'Chykens in Cawdel,' and 'Cawdel of Muskels.'

57. a Chafte. See Douglas, Æneados, Bk. iii. p. 76: 'with your chafte to gnaw 3e be fane.'

Chaftmondo In the Serge off Melayne, l. 1307, a Saracen cut Turpin with his ord and 'A chaftmondo of his flesche he schare.' In Copeland's ed. of Kyng Arthur, 57, Bk. vii. ch. 22, we have: 'He smote hym with a foyne through the thycke of y^e ygh, that the same wounde was a shaftmonbrode, & had cutte atwo many aynes and newes.' Cotgrave gives 'Palme. A hand-breadth, foure fingers, or three inches in meure; also a shaftment.'

58. a Chape of a knyfe. See Songs and Poems on Costumes (Percy Soc.), p. 50: 'ly baselard hath a sylvor schape,' where the meaning is said to be the guard by which a baselard was suspended to the girdle. So also in Morte Arthure, 2522:

'He baro semenando in golde thre grayhondes of sable, With chapes a cheynes of chalke whytte sylver.'
aid to Herry Catley for making clene of a knyff of my Lordes, and for a chape, vj^d.' ward Household Books, p. 220. Here the meaning is probably a sheath. Compare Shakspe, All's Well, IV. iii. 163. 'Bouterolle. The chape of a sheath or scabbard.' Cotgrave.

to Chalango. Wyntoun in his Chronicle IX, xx. 101 gives Henry IVth's words follows: 'I Hendry of Lancastell chalangis his Realm, inpara the Digby Mysteries, p. 105, l. 1318: 'He chalynge to be Kyng of Jewys.'

And 3e crowm, wyth all 3e membris and apportenans.'

59. Charlowayn. 'Starre called charles wayne. Loke in seven starres. Seven men, a sygne celestiall, in Englysh called charles wayne, Hiads, &c.' Hulst.

a Charro. This is probably the same word as in Morte Arthure, 1886:

'Sir Gador garto chare theym, and couere theme faire';
In St. Gawayne, 850: '3e lorde hym charred to a chambre'; and again, l. 1143:
'Braches bayesl perfore, & breime noyse maked, & 3uy chastyed, & charred, on chasyng 3at went.
the note, for 'E. Eng. Homilies' read 'O. Eng. Homilies.'

60. a Chawylle. 'His chaule asorne that shal ete up the whete.' Palladius On husbandrie, p. 159, l. 34.

to Chuttr. Fisher in his Works, p. 424 used the word of the teeth: 'the coldnesse the snow shal make their teeth for to gnashe, and chytter in theyr heades.'

62. to Chupo. Caeton, in his Chronicle of England, pt. vii. p. 135 (ed. 1520), says:
'we had grette chepe of wyne in Englands that tyme, thanked be God almyghty.'

Chonso bollo. In Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 184, l. 134, under September, we read, 'Chesholls now both sowe in hoots and drie Allone or other seede with.' The rd was evidently used also for an onion: thus in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 191 we re 'Hec sepula, A^o. chesholla.'

a Chesfate. In the Invent. of Gerrard Salveyn, taken in 1570, are included 'xxij schafes in' Willa & Inventa, i. 349. 'Hoc multum, A^o. chesfat.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab.
102. 'Fiscella, a little basket of twiggos; a frayle; a cheesefate.' Cooper. 'Fiscella, ayesh [Ipyish], basket, or a cheesefat: et est dimin. de f-cina (quæ = a cheesefat or a sho lepo). Orton.

a Cheslep. 'Hec lactis, -els, A^o. cheslyppe.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 202. In quotation from Wright given in the note for 'Cheslepe, cheese lip' read 'Hec lactis, a selepe.'

a Chestan. In Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 216, l. 253, we have the word used for the tree: 'Chasten wol uppe of plaantes that alone upgrowe;' and at l. 283 are directions for sowing the seeds:

'Pastyne it [the ground] deep a foote and half, or plowe
It by and by, and wel with dounge it fede,
And therein do thi chastens forto growe.'

See also l. 300, where occurs the form chasteynes. In Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xv. ch. xx. p. 496, we are told that 'in Asturia in Spayne is scarce of wyne, of whete, and of oyle: for the londe is colde: but there is passyng plente of myle and chestens.' 'Hec castania. A^o chestan-tre.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 192. Maundeveile tells us, p. 307, that in the land of Prester John 'ben grete Forestes of Chesteynes.'

63. to Childe. 'Also in the time þet þe wyfman lyþ a childbedde oþer nye uor to childi.' Ayenbite, p. 224. Maundeveile tells us that when Mary 'had childed undre a Palme Tree, sche had gret schame, that sche hadde a childe; and sche grette, and seyde, that sche wolde that sche hadde ben ded.' p. 133. See also K. Alisaunder, ll. 604, 610.

a Chymney. A very good instance of this word, showing its original meaning, is in the Anture of Arthur, xxxv. 4, where we are told that in the tent was 'A shimnay of charcole to chaufen þe knyȝte.'

George Selbye, in 1568, in his Will bequeathed to his wife, 'Elizabeth Selbe, my two yron chimnies, and my best almyre in my hall.' Wills & Invents, i. 292; and in 1567 we find in the Invent. of Edward Parkinson, 'one chist, one yron chimney, a litle presser with a chare, x^s. . . . ij flanders chists, an yron chymney, a chare & a litle boord, xx^s.' ibid. pp. 271-2. In the 'Kalendar of the Ordinances of Worcester,' 1467, rule 26 is, 'that no chimneys of tre, ner thached houses, be suffred w^{yn} the cyte, but that the owners make them of bryke or stone.' English Gilds, p. 372.

'His fete er like latoun bright

Hampole, Pricke of Cons. 4368.

The earliest instance of the modern use of the word is in the Sowdome of Babylone, l. 2351, where Mapyne the thief is represented as gaining access to Floripas' chamber 'by a chemney.' See note to Sir Ferumbras, l. 2232.

64. a Chire. 'The floure of lely hath wythin as it were smalle threde that conteynyth the sede, in the mydyll stondyth chyres of saffron.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvii. ch. xci. p. 659.

a Chiterlynge. 'A chyttering, omasum. A chitterling, idem.' Manip. Vocab.

Choller. Cf. Cleveland Gloss., Atkinson. 'Coul, to scrape or rake together; to pull towards one by the aid of a rake (coul-rake), curved stick, or other like instrument.'

65. Clappe of a mylne. In note, for 'Persones Tale, p. 406' read 'l. 406.'

þe Cley of a beste. 'Ungula, hof, vel clau.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 87. 'The faucon hurtyth more his pray wyth reesyng thereon with his breste than wyth his bylle other wyth his clecs.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xii. c. xxi. p. 427.

66. a Clennes. 'For a speciall prerogative, Because of your virginite & clennesse.' Digby Mysteries, p. 191, l. 589. See also Wyclif, Works, ed. Matthew, p. 276.

67. a Clewe. 'Glomer, globellum, cleowen.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 59.

þe Clippys of y^e son and moyn. Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvi. ch. xi. p. 566, speaks of a stone 'callyd Eliotropia, that is tornynge awaye of the sonne. for by the stone sette bytwene vs and the sonne, this is derked as though he were in clyppe and derked.' 'Ye wote the clerkes the clippes it calle.' Towneley Mysteries, p. 256.

68. a Cloke. 'Armilausa, genus collobii, an^{te} a sclauayn.' MS. O. 5. 4 Trinity Coll. Camb.

to Cloyke. 'Sely Capyll, oure hen, both to and fro, she kakyls,

Bot begyn she to crok, To groyne or to clok,

Wo is hym is of oure cok.' Towneley Myst. p. 99.

'She nows behinde, and nows she goth before,
And clocketh hem, but when she fynt a corne
She chicheth hem and leith it hem before.'

Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 25, l. 660.

'The capon fedyth chokere, that ben not his name, and legeth theghen shewen and clodgyth as an henne, and calleth chokere byghen, chokgyth with an hene wyge.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xii. ch. xviii. p. 425.

to Clotte. See quotations under Melle, p. 233. Best, in his Farming, &c. Book, p. 107, says, 'When a floure is decayed, that there are holes worne, they usually leade as many coupe loades of reddie clay, or else of clottes from the fough field as will serve, but they must leade their clottes from such places where the clay is not mixed with sande;' see also ibid. p. 138. Glanvil tells us that 'a clote and-gred of galyng of powder is a clustre, for erthe bounde and clongyd togithers is a clote, and ytt is broken and departed it is powdre.' De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvii. ch. xlv. p. 568. Tasse in his 'Jannaries abstract' bids the farmer 'in stubbed plot fill hole with clote,' ch. xxxiii. st. 24.

'Of spettes perles þay beren þe creste. All þas cure comes in clottes dlynge.'

Ant. Poems, A. 857.

'Of clai þai kent at him þe clote.' Cursor Mundi, 24026. 'Hæt a a' cleve asundyr þe clodgyth of clay.' Coventry Myst. p. 402. 'Eke diligently clodde in pyke oute stones.' Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 62, l. 28.

69. a Clowte of yrne. In the Invent. of the Priory of Durham, in 1446, is included 'j carecta cum rotis, iij hopis et viij cartelodan, pret. viiij.' Wills & Invent. i. 95. 'Hoc epusculum, An' a cart-clowte.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 278.

Clumsyd. 'He es outher domed, or wode.' Pricke of Conscience, 1621. Dr. Morris in his Glossary quotes from the Gospel of Nich-demus, in MS. Harl. 4196, 'we er domed gret and wale.' In the Early Eng. Poems, p. 123, we have 'to kepe hire from clomesyng,' and in the Digby Mysteries, p. 157, l. 522, 'than farewele, he were clumme.'

70. a Cod. Best, in his Farming, &c. Book, p. 115, tells us that hired labourers were provided with 'a longe codd putte in a longe harden lagge, and a shorter coddle done after the same manner in stead of a pillowe.' 'One bolster and iij colds, iij freschine coddle' are mentioned in the Inventory of John Wykecluf, in 1562. Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 161. Simon Merlet in his Will, in 1462, bequeaths to his sister 'xl yerds of herden cloth, vj. colds, iij par shetes, j bolster, &c.' Test. Ebor. ii. 261.

a Cogge. 'Hoc striballum, a cog of a welle.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 233. Fitzherbert in his Boke of Husbandry, fo. xliii^b, recommends farmers when thinning their plantations to sell 'the small ashes to cowpers for garches [garthes], and the greete ashes to whele wryghtes, and the meane ashes to plough wryghtes, and the crabbe trees to myllers to make cogges and tonges.' 'Scuriabballum, Kog.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 180.

71. a Colke. 'Y^e coul: of an apple, cor.' Manip. Vocab.

72. to Colke. Cf. O. Swed. kylla = to clip hair. Prov. Swedish, kuul = to clip hair or wool. In the Cleveland Glossary we have 'Curl, to clip or cut close.' I think that for Colke we should read Colle, ll and lk in MSS. are not easily distinguished. Compare the Cursor Mundi, 13.174:

'A sargant sent he to Jaiole, And iohan hefd comanded to cole.'

a Collemase. The reference to Lydgate should have been given. Minor Poems, 202. In the A. S. vocabulary, in MS. Cott. Cleopatra, A. iii. lf. 76^b, (printed in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 281), we have 'Parra, cum-mase. Parula, col-mase.' Boorde, in his Dyetary, ch. xv. p. 270, says that 'All maner of smale byrdes be good and lyght of dygestyon, excepte sparowes, whiche be harde of dygestyon. Tytnoses, colmoses, and wrens, the whiche doth eate spyllers and poyson, be not commendable.' 'Bardioriolus, colmase.' Aelfric's Gloss. in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 30.

a Collokis. 'A carr, collecke, and two pare of trusse wips' are mentioned in the Invent. of John Rouson in 1568. Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 226. 'j bas-syn, a kneadinge tube, iij collecks, a wynnocke, ij stands, a churne, a flesche collecke, &c.' Invent. of M. Dixon, 1563, ibid. p. 169. In 1437 Thomas Dautree bequeathed 'unam peciam coopertam vocatam le collok ecclesie meae parochiali, ad inde faciendam unam coupam sive pixidem pro corpore Christi,' i. e. a corporas case. Test. Ebor. ii. 61; see also ibid. p. 101, where John Brompton by his Will, dated 1444, bequeathed 'j collok argenteum pond. viij unc. ix^{ss}.' Test. Ebor. ii. 101.

a Colrake. 'Hec vocabulum, An^a a colrake.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 276. 'Hec vertybra, a col-rak.' ibid. p. 233. In the Invent. of Hugh Grantham, in 1410, is an item 'de^d. de j colrake de ferro.' Test. Ebor. iii. 49. 'Colrakus and copstolus, one gret whyle-barrous.' Reliq. Antiq. i. 86. 'In the kitching one Raking croke, one Iron pot, one pele, one iron coulrake, ij^s. viij^d.' Invent. of G. Salveyne, 1572, Wills & Invents. i. 349.

73. a Come. 'Offendit, nodus quo liber ligatur, Angl, a knotte or clospe of a boke,' Ortus.

74. a Conynge. In note, in the quotation from Sir Degrevant, for 'conyngns' read 'conyngus.'

75. a Copbande. Best in his Farming, &c. Book, p. 59 uses this word in a very different sense. He says: 'If wee chance to take over much compass for a stacke soe that wee finde that wee are like to wante pease wherewith to rigge it up, then are we glad sometimes to cutte of one of the endes of the stacke with an hey spade, takeinge of as much as wee thinke will serve our turne for toppinge up or rigginge of the same. That which is layd in the fillinge overnight to save the stacke from wettinge is called boll-roakinge of a stacke, and that which is cutte of the stacke ende is called (for the most parte) a coupe-band.'

76. a Corparax. In the Invent. of Thomas Morton, Canon of York, taken in 1448, is the following: 'De j corporali lineo, et j corporall cace de panno auri, cum imaginibus intextis, ij^s. iij^d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 110; and in 1506 Dame Catherine Hastings bequeathed 'to Askton church a corprax case and a kerchow for y^e sacrament. To Norton church a corprax case, a kerchowe to be halowed for y^e corprax, and a kerchowe for y^e sacrament.' ibid. iv. 257. Trevisa in his Higden, v. 11, says that Pope 'Sixtus ordeyned þat þe corporas schulde nouȝt be of silk noȝe sendel.' See additional note to Collokis, above. In 1522 Agas Herte of Bury bequeathed 'ijj fyne elle kerchers to be vsyd for corporas clothes in the chyrche of Seynt James.' Bury Wills, &c. p. 117.

a Coste. Maundeville tells us that 'the Superficialtee of the Erthe is departed in 7 parties, for the 7 Planetes; and tho parties ben clept clymates.' p. 186. See also Chaucer's Astrolabe, p. 59: 'Sett the point therof in þat same cost that the mone makij fode'; and p. 48: 'the longitude of a clymat ys a lyne ymagined fro est to west illike distant by-twene them alle.' See also Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 12, l. 295.

a Costrelle. In 1454 William Halifax of Nottingham bequeathed in his Will to Elizabeth Netcham 'a crosse trestell, a matras, a costerell for ale, a bordeclothe, &c.' Test. Ebor. ii. 173.

78. to Cowche. Chaucer in his Astrolabe, p. 40 has the noun, couching, and Fisher comparing the crucifix to a book says, 'when the booke is opened & spread, the leaues be couchid vpon the boordes.' Works, p. 394. Maundeville tells us of the Bedouin Arabs that 'thei have none Houses, but Tentis, that thei maken of Skynnes of Bestes, as of Camaylles and of othere Bestes . . . and there benethe thei couchen hem and dwellen.' p. 63.

79. a Cowschote. 'Hic palumbus, a cowscott.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 221. 'Palumbus, cuscote, wudu-culfre.' ibid. p. 62. 'So hoot is noo dounge of foule as of the doure, a quysht outake.' Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 28, l. 758.

80. a Crakan. See quotation from the E. E. Psalter, under Reke, p. 302.

Crappes. 'Hec curialis, A^a crappys.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 201. 'Hec curialis, craps.' ibid. 233. L. Lat. crappa.

a Credilbande. 'Hec fascia, A^a credyl-bande.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 203. Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. vi. ch. ix. p. 195, says: 'the nouryce bindeth the chylde togyders with cradylbondes to kepe and saue the chylde that he be not wyth myscrokyl lymmes.'

a Credille sange. 'Nouryces vse lullynges and other cradyll songes to pleyse the wyttes of the chylde.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. vi. ch. iv. p. 191.

81. a Cressett. 'Ordeyn eche man on his party,

Cressetys, lanternys, and torchys lyth.' Cov. Myst. p. 270.

See also p. 283. 'One fryn panne, a cresset, one flesh axe, a brandreth, &c.' are mentioned in the Invent. of Francis Wandysforde in 1559. Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 134.

82. a Crysmatory. Glanvil says: 'with Crysm chylthern ben cremyl and enoynted of a symple preeste on the molde.' De Propr. Rerum, Bk. ix. ch. xxxi. p. 367. 'Hec crisma, A^c. creme. Hoc crismatorium, A^c. crismator.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 193. 'Vr crismus clath ful son we fille.' Cursor Mundi, 25725.

83. a Crofte. Sir R. Barton in his Will, dated 1455, bequeathed to 'Jonett Richard-son terme of hire lyfe, tenement in Whenby w^t a garth and a croft next vicarage.' Test. Ebor. ii. 216. See also Bury Wills, &c. pp. 47, 48, 49.

a Croppe. 'This warre beganne noo creature but she, for she is croppe and rote and euery dele.' Generydes, l. 4941.
'Croppe and tail To save in setting hem is thynne advall.'
Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 78, l. 496.

84. a Crowde. Lydgate in his Pylgremage of the Sowle, Bk. v. ch. viii. fol. 99 (ed. 1483) tells us that 'Dauyd ordeyned plente of lusty instrumentes, bothe organs and harpes, Symbls and sawtryes, kroudes and tympana, trompettes and tabours and many other.'

a Crudde. 'Quycke syluer cruddeth not by itself kyndly wythout brymstone: but wyth brymstone, as wyth substance of lead, it is congeleyd and fastnyd togyders.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvi. ch. vii. p. 555.

'Alle fresshe the mylk is crodded now to chese
With crudde of kidde, or lambe, other of calf
Or floure of tasil wilde.' Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 154, l. 141-2.

87. a Curroure. 'Get the a curroure whare thou may.' Sege off Melayne, 1378.

89. Daysardawe. Best, in his Farming, &c. Book, p. 132, says: 'him allas wee imploy as a seedlesman in hauer seede time, when wee come to sowe olde ardure,' where the meaning is fallow. Compare Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 106, l. 68:
'Nowe cicera the blake is sowe in season, On erthes tweyne or oon sowe ham as peeson.'

90. to Dayse. The verb occurs with an active meaning in the Allit. Poems, B. 1538:.
'Such a dasande drede dusched to his bert.'

a Daysyberd. See Chester Plays, ii. 34.

to Dawe. See the Song of Roland, l. 389: 'or it dawen the day;' and Allit. Poems, B. 1755: 'dawed neuer an-oþer day þat ilk derk after.'

91. Dawnger. See P. Plowman, B. xvi. 263.

92. Dede. The quotation should read as follows:

'To dele I drawe als ye mai se.' Metrical Homilies, p. 30.

93. to Desden. In the Digby Mysteries, p. 216, l. 1352 we have the adverb: 'to be scornyd most dedenynglye.'

to Defye. See the Digby Mysteries, p. 156, l. 511: 'I it desye;' and R. de Brunne's Meditations, l. 743:

'Y haue be skurged, scorned, dyffyed,
Wounded, angred, and crucyfied,
'O slepy night, I the d-ſe.' Gower, ii. 97.

94. to Defy. Gower, iii. 25 has:

'That is of him self so tough My stomack may it nought defe.'
'Moche mete and rendeſyed febllyth the pulse.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. iii. ch. xxiv. p. 74. See also Lydgate, Minor Poems, p. 131.

a Deye. 'Androgia, an^m. a deye. Androchia, an^m. a deye. Androchia qui curam gerit de lactentiis. MS. O. 5. 4 Trin. Coll. Camb. Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xx. ch. lxxiv. p. 904, tells us that 'chese hyghte caseus calendo. fallynge. for it falllyth and passyth away soone, and slydeth oute betwene the syngres of the Deye wyfe.'

99. to Dike. Amongst the debts of Francis Wandysforde, at his death in 1559, is an item 'to Robert Walker for xij rude of dyke dyked, xvij^d.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 138.

100. a Dirsynge knyfe. In the Invent. of W. Coltman, of York, 1481, we find 'j stule, j trow et j drissyng-knyfe, ij^d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 261.

a Disohe berer. 'Discifer, disc-pein.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 93.

a Disohe benke. In the Invent. of R. Bishop, taken about 1500, is an item, 'j dyschbenke xij^d.' Test. Ebor. iv. 193.

101. to Desseise. See the Lay-Folks Mass-book, p. 35, l. 376: 'Pore, exylde, dysesud if þai be,' where the word is wrongly explained in the glossary as disquieted, vexed.

104. a Dorsur. Wyclif, Works, ed. Matthew, p. 424, complains of the 'curioste' of the clergy in 'hallis, boþe in making of þe housis, in doseris, bancurs, & cuþshens.' 'Dorsorium, anc. a dorsere.' MS. O. 5. 4 Trin. Coll. Camb.

105. to Dowe. In the second quotation from Wyclif, p. 124, for 'þas' read 'þus.'

106. Draf. The Invent. of Katherine, Lady Hedworth, taken in 1568, includes 'one draffe tub iiij^d.' Wills & Invents, i. 282. In Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 67, l. 162, we are told that as a compost for vines 'weyndraf is goode comixt with dounge;' and again, p. 22, l. 580:

with draff of wyne be fedde, anon bareyne thei beth.'

'By hote water the fatnesse of oliues is departed the beter fro the drastes: hulles and draffe flete aboute the water and ben craftly departed at laste.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvii, ch. cxii, p. 675.

108. Dreggis. 'Amurca .i. fex olei, dersten.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 94.

Dressoure. In the Invent. of W. Duffield in 1452 are included 'cultelli pro le dreassour iiij^d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 136.

110. Drovy. See the Bestiary in An Old Eng. Miscell. l. 523:

'Ne mai it wunen ðer-inne, So droui is te sees grund;'

and Early Eng. Psalter, Ps. ix. 22. The translator of Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 201, l. 400, tells how 'A trouble wyne anon a man may pure;' and Wyclif has trubli in Joshua xiii. 3. In the Cursor Mundi, 24418, we are told that at the crucifixion a Dublar. 'Item, ij, pudder dublers, x dysches, ij, sausers.' Invent. of John Baron De Mappleton in 1435, Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 12. Mathew Witham in 1545 bequeathed 'A calderon, a pan, vj. powder dublers.' ibid. p. 57.

'Ouer al þe world he was bot night, Al droued and wex dime.'

In the quotation from the Allit. Poems for 'i. 1016' read 'B. 1016.'

113. Eldfader. John Heworth in 1571 bequeathed 'vnto Edward Stevenson my father in lawe my best horse, A whyte russett cott & a read russet cloke, & a wilde lether dublett and my best shert. Item I gyve vnto my eldmother his wyffe my wyffes froke, and a read petticote and a smoke.' Wills & Invents, i. 352. See the 13th cent. sermon in Reliq. Antiq. i. 130: 'nis nowen non trewðe, for nis the gist siker of þe husebonde, ne noðer of noðer; non socer a nuro, ne þe aldefader of hi oðem.' MS. B. 14. 52, Trin. Coll. Camb. See also Cursor Mundi, 5730. In the quotation from Lajamon the important word has most unaccountably been omitted; read: 'He wes Mærwale's fader, Mildburge aldenader.' 'Auus, ealde-feder. Avia, ealde-moder.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 51.

an Ellyrtre. The Invent. of R. Doddinge, in 1562, contains 'In ryvyn bords and ellerbarks, vj^s.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 106. 'The Ellern is a tree wyth longe bowes: ful sounde and sad wythout: and ful holowe wythin and full of certayn nesshe pyth . . . and the Ellern tree hath vertue Duretica: to tempre and to nesshe: to dystribute and to drawe and to pource flewme.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvii, ch. cxliv, p. 700.

114. an Elsyn. 'Item j dussan and a halfe helsyn hostes ij^d.' Invent. of R. Bishopp, 1500, Test. Ebor. iv. 193. In the curious burlesque poem in Reliq. Antiq. i. 86, we read: 'Ther com trynkettus and tournyng-stonys, and elcon bladys.' The word occurs in Scott's Heart of Mid-Lothian, ch. v: 'D'ye think I was born to sit here brogging an elshin through bend leather!'

þe Emygrane. 'Who that hath the heed ache callyd Emigrama felyth in his heed as it were betyng of hamers, and may not suffre noyse, nother ways, nother lyghte, nother shynynge.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. vii, ch. iii, p. 223.

115. Enge. In the Invent. of Dr. G. Nevill, taken in 1567, is included 'in the ynge one stacke of hay, xx^s.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 211.

Entyrlly. 'That his graciouse visage I may ons behold,

I pray yow interlye.' Digby Myst. p. 198, l. 818.

116. an Erane. Wyclif, in his version of Psalm xxxviii. 12, has: 'Thou madest to flossen awei as an ireyne [ygrene P.] his soule;' and again, Isaiah lix. 5: 'The ciren of edderes thei to-breeken, and the webbis of an attercop [ygreyn P.] thei wouen.' 'He anide that such array was like the attorcoppe that makithe his nettes to take the flies or thei be were.' Knight of La Tour Landry, p. 63. 'Hee iranua, a crane.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 190. 'Arinea, a durcep.' Ibid. p. 177. 'Hee arena, a nerane.' ibid. p. 223. In the Saxon Leechdoms i. 92 is a remedy 'wif attorcoppan bite,' accompanied by drawings of two attorcopps, like two horned locusts.

117. an Erthe dyn. In the Cursor Mundi, 20985, we are told how St. Paul escaped from prison 'thoru a nerth-din þat þer was;' see also l. 20429.

118. an Essoyn. In Sir Ferunbrus, 2827, Guy when brought before the Sowdan instead of being terrified by his threats and questions 'answerede wif-oute essoynge.'

Eve. Compare Wyclif, Genesis ii. 33 (Purvey): 'And Adam seide, This is now a boon of my boony, and fleisch of my fleisch: this schal be clepid virago, for she is taken of man.'

120. Fasyngis of lokis. In the Cursor Mundi, 3569, amongst the signs of the approach of old age to a man we are told that

'þe freli fax to fal of him And þe sight to wax well dim; and again, l. 7244, when Delilah had cut off Samson's hair he was easily bound 'for thoru his fax his force was tint.'

121. a Faldyng. Compare P. Rowclothe, p. 437. 'Amphibulus, restis equi villosa, an' a schlaayn or faldyng.' MS. O. 5. 4, Trin. Coll. Camb. In the Invent. of Henry Bowet, Archbishop of York, 1423, we find an item, 'de xij^o receptis pro xij virgis de panno vocato whyte faldyng.' Test. Ebor. iii. 71. In a Will, dated 1526, pr. in Lancashire Wills (Chetham Soc.), vol. i. p. 13, the testator bequeaths 'my best typett, my faldyng and my lok in the church.'

122. a Fan. Compare Weddyr coké, below.

a Fayne of a schipe. 'Cheruehus, an' a fane.' MS. O. 5. 4, Trin. Coll. Camb. Compare a Stremour, below.

A Funtum. Read A Fantom.

'This is no funtum, ne no fabulle 3^o wote wele of the Rowun tabulle.'
Arowinge of K. Arther, ii.
'For-þi for juntoun & fayryze þe folk þere hit demed.' Sir Garwayne, 140.

123. a Farntikylle. 'Cesia, an' a pokke or frakene.' MS. O. 5. 4, Trin. Coll. Camb.

Fastyngange. Huloet has a rather strange entry: 'Shraftyde or feastyng dayes, called also fastegong. Bacchanalia festa, carnisprinitum.'

126. a Felischippe. In the Digby Mysteries, p. 202, l. 924, Mary Magdalene exclaims: 'Alewe! feliskipe her is noon!' where the meaning is company. In the Song of Roland, 601, we are told that Roland a Felle. Amongst other articles in the Invent. of John Casse, in 1576, are enumerated, 'ix sychells, a pare of woll cards, ij barrells, a ratton fell, ij^o. viij^o.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 260; and in that of John Colan, goldsmith, of York, in 1490, occurs: 'j raton discipula, Anglice a fell.' Test. Ebor. iv. 59.

'not for his own sak he soghed often, but for his fellichip þat he most louyden.'

129. a Fettyr. 'Boias, catenas, sweorcopsas, uel handcopsas.' MS. Harl. 3376. 'Compas uel cippus, fol-cops. Bugia, ioc, obbe swur-cops. Manice, hand-cops.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 86.

130. þe Figes. Trevisa, in his trans. of Higden, vi. 357, tells us that 'þe evel þat hatte fous is a schrewel evel, for it semep þat his born is oute þat hap þat evel.'

132. a Fiste. See the curious 'Demaundes Joyous' reprinted from the original copy by Wynkyn de Worde in Reliq. Antiq. ii. 73. 'Hee lirida, a fyse.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 209. 'Fiesten, or let a first. Pelo.' Huloet. 'To fyest, pedere.' Manip. Vocab.

133. a Flawe of fyre. See the Cursor Mundi, 17370, where an angel is described as having 'his cleything als þe suan his suire,

a Flaket. In the Invent. of R. Best, taken in 1581, are mentioned, 'in ye meelke house 4 honey potts, 2 kits, 2 flakets, 4 meelke bowles, with other implements, 6s.' Farming, &c. Book of H. Best, p. 172. 'Yf the wombes ben smyten they sowne as a flakette, other a botell.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. vii. ch. lii. p. 266.

134. Flekked. Compare Varmid, below. In Trevisa's Higden, i. 159, we are told that 'Camelion is a flekked best, in colour liche to a lupard; and so is pardus, and pantera also, and som dele of þe kynde;' and Lydgate speaks of 'whyght flekkyd with the brown.' Minor Poems (Percy Soc.), p. 199. Compare the Towneley Myst. p. 311: 'his steffe must be flekkyt.' Best, in his Farming, &c. Book, p. 50, uses the verb flecken = to change colour: 'Ontes . . . when they once beginne to shoote, they will streightway after beginne to flecken, and bee ripe on a suddaine.' Fleck = a spot on the face, is still in use.

a Fletcher. Harrison, in his Descript. of Eng. i. 342, mentions amongst the trees of England, 'the aspe, whereof our fletchers make their arrowes.' See the Destruction of Troy, Introd. p. xlvii, where the following line is quoted from Lydgate:

'Bowers eke, ande fast by fleggerers.'

In the Chester Plays, i. 6 are mentioned: 'fletchers, boweyers, cowpers, stringers and iremongers.' Turner, in his Herbal, p. 67, says that 'flechters make prykke shaftes of byrche, because it is heavier than espe is.' 'Item the flecher that dwellyd in Thurton strete owyth hym flor tymber, ix. vjd.' Manners and Household Exps. of Eng. 1465, p. 179.

a Fleke. See Palladius On Husbandrie, Bk. iii. l. 881:

'Do feire stree upon thaire fleyke hem under;'

and l. 987:

'In fleykes faire yf that men list hem sprede.'

135. a Flesche cruke. In the Invent. of Thomas de Dalby, Archdeacon of Richmond, dated 1400, we find 'pro j myour, j watercanne, iij laddeles, de auricalco, et j fleshecroke, j fryngpan, et iij trowes, simul vendit. iij s. x d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 14. 'Pro j flesch crok de ferro.' Invent. of Archbishop Bowet 1423, ibid. p. 80.

a Flye of bacon. We find this word frequently in the old wills and inventories. Thus in the Invent. of W. Clowdeslye, in 1545, are included 'ij bus. of rye, iij baken flyes, a payre of new shoes, xv s.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 54; and in that of John Cadeby, in 1451, we have, 'Item ij flickis de bacon, iij s. iij d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 99. But the term was not confined, as with us, to a bacon flitch, for we find in the Invent. of Gerard Salveyn, in 1570, an item of 'iij befe flickes and ij backen flicks, xvj s.' Wills & Invent. i. 348; and again, amongst the goods of John Casse, in 1576, are mentioned 'iij bacon flicks, vj befe flicks, xxiiij s.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 260.

136. a Fludegate. In note, for 'on' read 'ou.'

137. to Fodyr. H. Best, in his Farming, &c. Book, p. 72, gives directions 'for fotheringe of sheepe . . . yow are allsoe to have a care that yow beginne not to fother in wette weather; for they [sheep] will not fall freshly to their fother att the first, but treade it under foote and waste it.' See also ibid. p. 30.

a Forbott. In the Sege off Melayne, 406, Roland exclaims:

'Goddis forbode & þe holy Trynytee

And lese oure crysten lawe!'

þat euer fraunce hethen were for mee

138. a Forgetyll. In the Early Eng. Psalter, Ps. ix. 19 is rendered:

'For for-getelnes in ende noght bes of pouer whare he wende;'

the A. S. version reading 'forðon na les in ende ofer-geotulnis bið ðearfena. See also Gower, ii. 19. Robert of Brunne uses forgetilship in the sense of an oversight:

'Bot for a forgetilship Richard & he bope les.' p. 176; and Lydgate, Chronicle of Troy, Bk. iv. ch. 3, has:

'I were forjetell, reckles, To remember the infinite outrages.'

139. a Forster. We frequently find the form foster, as in Sir Degrevant, 430: '3iffe y dey in the pleyne, That my fosteres hath sleyne,' and in Polit., Rel. and Love Poems, p. 11, l. 28, 'Mawgre the wache of fosters and parkerry's.' See also Sir Triamour, 1063. 'Hic lucarius, A^{mo} a foster.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 278.

141. a Frale. 'A multitude of reysons puld they take

And into risshy frayels rare hem gete.'

Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 204, l. 494.

143. a Froske. Dame Juliana Barnes, in her Treatise of Fysshynge with an Angle, p. 19, gives as one way of taking the pike: 'Take a froske & put it on your hoke at the necke bytwene the skynne, & the body on y^e backe halfe, and put on a fote a yerde therfro: & caste it where the pyke hauntyth and ye shall haue hym.' See the account of the plagues of Egypt in the Cursor Mundi, where we are told, l. 5928, there 'was frosse þat na tung might tell,' where the other MSS. read froskes, and frogges. 'Hec rana, a frosche.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 223.

144. to Frote. 'Frote it wol with larde fatte and decocte.' Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 16, l. 433. See also p. 25, l. 683. In the first quotation, for 'beest' read 'brest.'

a Frugon. In the Invent. of John Cadeby, ab. 1450, we find, 'item, j colrake et j furgon ferri, iiij^d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 100; and again, in that of T. Morton, in 1448, 'ij furgons sig. pond. j unc. di. quart. v^s. ij^d. ob.' ibid. p. 113.

Fruteurs. See W. de Worde's Boke of Keruing, p. 273.

145. Full but. 'He smote Darel with so goode will
In middes of the sheld ful butt,
That Darel fell down with that putt.'

Sir Generydes (Roxb. Club), 4587.

a Fulemerd. 'þe fox and þe foumerte in als sall be tane.' Ancient Scot. Prophecy, in Bernardus De Cura Rei Famul. p. 19, l. 33. 'þe fox and þe foulmert þai ar botht fals.' ibid. l. 74. See the burlesque poem in Reliq. Antig. i. 85: 'A fox and a folmert had .xv. fette.' 'Hic fetunctus, Hic pecoides, a fulmard' [misprinted sulmard]. Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 251.

146. a Furre. H. Best, Farming, &c. Book, p. 44, tells us that 'amongst shearers [reapers] the one of the furres is called the fore-furre, and the other the hinder-furre; sometimes they make the one the fore-furre, and sometimes the other, but the furre on your left hande is the best for the fore-furre . . . you should allwayes putte the weaker and worst shearers into the fore-furre.'

149. a Galte. In the first quotation, for 'grylyche' read 'gryslyche.'

150. a Garwyndelle. In the Invent. of R. Bishop, taken about 1500, are included 'j spynyn-weyll, j roke, and j reyll, j garyn-wyndyll foytt and the blaytters, viij^d.' Test. Ebor. iv. 193; and in that of Robert Doddings, in 1562, 'iiij wheilla, ij pare of garne wyndilla, xvij^d.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 156. 'Windles or blades to wind yarn on. Alabrum, rhombus.' Gouldman.

to Garse. In Copland's trans. of Guydon's Questyonary of Cyrurgyens, 1541, we have: 'yf it blede nat wel rub the place with the mouth of the ventose, or gyue it small fyllyps with your nayle, and garse it a-newe, that it may blede well.' 'It is good to garse the legges byneth that the humours, fumosityte and spyrytes that ben cause of the heed ache, may be drawe from the heed downwarde to the nether partyes.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. vii. ch. iii. p. 224.

151. to Garsumme. In the Will of 'John Bancks, Laboringe Man,' in 1542, the following occurs: 'my lanndes lord Richard Hodgesson and I is at a co'dic'on for the close called ov'kainer dikes, yt is to say that I or my assigne to haue the sayd close from saynt cuthb'te day in lent next after the makynge herof vnto the end and terme of xvth yers next ensewinge the wrytinge herof and I or myne executor to paye eu'y yere duringe the said terme yerly xx^s. sterlinge to ferme and to paye at the entrie herof for a gryesom xiiij^s. iiij^d. and he to cause the Indentures therof to be maid, of the whiche gryesom I haue paid vnto the said Richard handes vj^s. viij^d. and the residue to be paid at the making of the said Indentures.' Wills & Inrents. i. 119. 'The said Prince should haue the Isle of Anglesey in Fee-farme of the King, to him, and to the lawfull issue of his body in general taile, for five thousand Markes ready money, for gryesom, or a fine in hand payd, & the yearly rent of a thousand Markes.' Speed, Hist. Great Britain, Bk. ix. ch. x.

a Garthe. See the quotation from the Testamenta Ebor. ii. 216, in the additional note to Crofte, above, p. xxiv.

'Thi garth, in springing tyme to be sowe, The footes depe may nowe pastyned be.'
Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 184, l. 141.

See also p. 29, ll. 783, 791.

to Garthe wesselle. See quotation from Fitzherbert, in the additional note to Cogge, above, p. xxi.

152. a Gavelle. Compare P. Cornel, and Bury Wills, &c., p. 22, where, in the Will of J. Baret, 1463, we find a direction, 'the owener of my place to haue my cornell hois in the Cookrowe.

a Gaveloke. I am inclined to think that the meaning here is a crow-bar.* In the Invent. of Thomas Vicars, in 1451, we find, 'j lyng-hak, cum j gavelok ferri vj^d. Test. Ebor. iii. 119; and in that of Christopher Thomson, in 1544, 'a gaveloke xij^d. Item a frienge panne, iij^d. Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 53. So also in the Invent. of Richard Best, in 1581, are mentioned 'one recon, one gavelocke, one fier shole, one pare of tanges.' Farming, &c. Book of H. Best, p. 172. The connection in which the word occurs in these quotations is against the idea of its being a weapon of any sort. 'iij iron wedges, a gavelocke, one axe, a pair of cob irons, and a bill, vi^s. viij^d. Invent. of R. Butcher, 1579, Richmond. Wills, &c., p. 248.

153. Gerarchy. See Gower, Conf. Amant. iii. 145: 'Which stant under his gerarchie.' Caxton, in his Golden Legende, fo. 24, speaks of the 'booke of gerarchy of holy angellis'; and Fabyan, Chronicle, pt. I. c. xxvii. p. 19, addresses the Virgin:

'Most virgynall flour, of al most excellēt,	About y ^e nombre & glorious company
Percyng of Angells y ^e hyst Gerarchy ,	Of his blessed sayts, w ^h moste hye dignite;
Joye and be glad, for God Omnipotent	Next after hym most honoured to be.'
Hath the lyft vp, & set moste worthely

154. a Gesarne. 'The fysrte mete of the fowles is receynynd and kepte in the croppes to the seconde dygestyon, that shall be made in the gisarn or mawe.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. v. ch. xlv. p. 161.

155. to Giffe stede. Cf. the account in the Cursor Mundi, l. 2499, of the battle between the four kings and the five, where we are told

'þe five gaue back to wine away.'

Compare also Caxton's Charles the Grete, p. 193: 'they made so grete bruyt, that the moost hardyest of the paynyms gaf them weye.'

a Gilefatte. The reference to the quotation from the Test. Ebor. is wrong: it should be, 'i. 2.' 'A mashefatt, a brandereth, and a wortston xl^d. Item a gydfatt, vj.' Invent. of Thomas Walker, 1542, Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 30.

157. to Giste. H. Best, in his Farming, &c. Book, p. 119, tells us that 'such beasts as are taken into any pasture to bee kept, are (hereabouts) called gesters, i. e. gesters, and theire gates soe many severall gestes.' 'Mrs. Salvyn her gates on the Greets are allways att at a rate, viz. 5^s. 4^d. a cove-geast. her nowtheards wage is 20^s. in money, the milke of a cove, and a cove-geast.'

Gladyn. 'Gladiolum, þat is glædene.' Earle's Plant-Names, p. 5. 'Gladiolum, glædene.' Aelfric's Gloss. in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 30. 'Scilla, glædene.' Cott. MS. Cleop. A. iii. ff. 76.

Glare. Glanvil says that 'the Grape is compownyd of the hulle of glaria and of axillis. Glaria is the juys and fatte humour of the grape and axilli ben the smalle greynes that ben in the grape.' De Propr. Rerum Bk. xvii. c. clxxxi. p. 722. See also Palladius, Bk. iv. l. 497, and Chaucer, Canon's Yeoman's Tale, Pream. 806.

158. a Glede. In Roland & Otuel, the Saracen mocking Naymes bids him stop at home 'to kepe parecche walles fro schame, þat no gledes neghe þam nere.' l. 285.

to Glee. 'Strabo, scelg-egede.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 75. A curious proof that Halliwell's definition is wrong occurs in Hampole's Prose Treatises, p. 29, where we are told that 'Lya was frwtefull, bvt scho was sare eghede.'

160. Gluterus. See the Epigram on the Degeneracy of the Times in Reliq. Antiq. i. 58; we have 'Play is vileney, and holyday is glotery.'

161. a Goke. 'I ga gowlende a-bowte, al so dos a goke.' Reliq. Antiq. i. 291.

a Gome. In 1566 Dame Prieres bequeathed, 'to my commother Crosby one fyne kyrchaffe.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 192.

163. a Grape. In the Invent. of the Priory of Durham, 1446, are mentioned 'ij rastra, ij yoke wymbils, j rest wynbyll, ij grapez, j shole, ligat. cum ferro.' Wills & Invent. i. 95; 'iiij grapez, ij sholez, vj harpincæ.' ibid. p. 96; 'one mvok hacke, a grape & iiij forkes, viij^d.' Invent. of B. Anderson, 1570, ibid. p. 342.

to Graue. 'Loke þat his licame
Vndir erpe not be graue

But taken wilde bestes to haue.' Cursor Mundi (Trin. MS.), 17325.

'Here now is he gravid, & her lyes hee.' Digby Myst. p. 200, l. 853.

See also Palladius, Bk. vi. l. 45, and Chaucer, Wife's Tale, l. 209:

'I nolde for al the metal ne for the ore, That under erthe is grave, or lith above;'
and the Cook's Tale of Gamelyn, l. 69:

'Anon as he was deed and under gras i-grave.'

'At the leist graife me in sepulture.' G. Douglas, Kneados, Bk. vi. p. 176.

164. a Grece. 'Steppe or grice. Scamnum.' Huloet. In his Will, dated 1463, John Baret desires that 'a deseuerance be maad of stoon wal ovir the entre, to parte the lital botrie vndir the gresys, to longe to the parlour wiche is redy maad.' Bury Wills, &c. p. 20. In Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 18, l. 463, grece is used as a plural: 'thre grece or iiiii is up therto to goo;' and in the Paston Letters, iii. 286, we have greesyngges.

a Gresse. In Roland & Otuel, 993, we have the plural form:

'to hym communes þat lady dere & gresses broghte þat fre;'

where the meaning is herbs. See Paston Letters, iii. 7.

'þe dri cald erth þat lauerd kyng, and bad it gress and frut forth bring.'

a Gressope. 'Locusta, gers-stapa.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 78.

165. to Grinde corn or egelome. Best uses loom in the sense of tool: 'An out-ligger carryeth but onely one loome to the field, and that is a rake.' Farming, &c. Book, p. 49. The translator of Palladius On Husbandrie uses it in the sense of vessel: 'bette is keppe in pitched loomes smale.' p. 204, l. 478.

a Gripe. The following description of this bird is given in the A.S. Glossary printed in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 78: 'Griffus. fíðer-fote fugel, leone gelic on wæstmæ, and earne gelic on heafde and on fíðerum: se is swa mycel þæt he gewyrt hors and men.'

167. a Grunde. See also Cursor Mundi, l. 126:

'For-þi þat na were may stand Wit-outer grundwall to be lastand.'

'Fundamentum, grund-wal.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 92. 'Fundamentum, grund-weal.' ibid. p. 81. See Allit. Poems, A. 395.

168. þe Gulsoghte. In note, the reference to Wright's Vol. of Vocab. should be 'p. 224.'

a Gutter. Cf. Destruct. of Troy, 1607:

'The water by wisahyng went vnder houses

Goeshet through Godardys and other grete voutes.'

See also Allit. Poems, C. 310. Palladius, On Husbandrie, p. 151, l. 60, says that in May is the time,

'Nowe as the treen beth gladde in thaire astate,

For gutteryng to howe it and to hent.'

170. an Haire. In the Invent. of W. Knyvett, 1557, we find mentioned, 'one newe stepyngge fatte and an old, with old kelne hayres, xvj^d. viij^d.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 101.

an Hak. 'He lened him a-pan his hak,' Cursor Mundi, l. 1241.

171. an Haly water clerke. 'Hic aquarius, a haly-water clerke.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 262. I should have mentioned that I am indebted for a great portion of the note to correspondents of Notes and Queries.

an Halle. William Paston, writing in 1492, speaks of 'hors, harnesse, tents, halye, gardyryans, cartes, and othyr thynges.' Paston Letters, iii. 376.

172. an Hallynge. In the Invent. of Thomas Morton, Canon of York, taken in 1448, amongst the contents of the Hall are mentioned 'j hallynge cum ij costers de viridi et rubio say, palyd, cum armis archiepiscopi Ebor. Bowett, pret. xiiij. iiij^d. De j hallynge veteri de rubio say, cum armis Beati Petri in medio, &c.' Test. Ebor. iii. 107-8; and in 1479 John Candell bequeathed 'to Cristian Forman, my servaunt, a halling of white stevend with vij warkes of mercy,' ibid. p. 246. In the Invent. of Thomas Walker, in 1542, we find, 'Item a banker, v. qweischyngs, and a haulng, ij^s.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 31; and in that of R. Butcher, in 1579: 'a hawlinge, a bynker of wannes, and ij fox skynnes,' ibid. p. 248.

173. an Hank. 'vij hankes of lynning yearne, vj^s. viij^d,' are included in the Invent. of Mrs. Jane Fullthropp, in 1566. Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 183; and in that of J. Wilken-son, in 1571, we have 'xxvj hannkes of medle wyer ij^s. xij^d.—vj hannkes of great wyer xvij^s.—vj hannks of small wyer xvij^s. Wills & Invent. i. 364. Best tells us that eight things are necessary for putting up hurdles, the eighth of which 'is fold-hankes or hankinges, as they call them, which is as thicke againe as plough-string, being a loose kinde of two plettes, which is usually sold for 3 half-pence and sometimes for 2d. a knotte; there should bee in everie knotte 18 fathames; and yow are to make your hankes 3 quarters of a yarde in length, and to putte to everie severall barre you sende to field a hanke, and to the four corner barres two hankes a peece, and that because they want stakes.' Farming, &c. Book, p. 16. In Latham, 25872, we have 'ihanked and golden,' and in the Cursor Mundi, 16044, the word is used in the sense of to bind:

'iesus þat in prisoun lei, ful herd þai did hanc.'

an Haras of horse. 'But rather be thaire bolke and wombes large,
This crafte in gentil haras is to charge.'

Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 134. l. 820.

175. Hardes. 'Hardin clothe iiij score and vj yerds' and 'lining yarne & hardin at the webster xx^s,' are mentioned in the Invent. of John Bayles in 1568, Wills & Invents. i. 293-4; and in that of Roger Pele, in 1541, we find 'one table cloth of harden, price iiij^d.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 22. 'Item vij. score of lyn garne, and iiij score of hardyn garne vij^s. viij^d.' Invent. of Thomas Walker, 1542, ibid. p. 31. Simon Merflet, in 1462, bequeathed to his sister 'xl yerds of lyncloth, xl yerds of herden cloth, vj codds, iij par shetes, &c.' Test. Ebor. ii. 261. See Allit. Poems, B. 1209:

'Hard hattes þay hent & on hors lepes;'

and compare King Alexander, p. 102:

'Sum araies thaim in ringes and sum in sow brenys,

With hard hattes on thaire hedis hied to thaire horsis.'

'Herdd with pix liquide herto eche.' Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 41. l. 1122. See the Legends of the Holy Rood, p. 81. l. 681, and Wyclif, Judges xvi. 9. In Palladius, Bk. viii. 135, hardes is used for the outer skin of squills.

Harife. In note, in quotation from MS. Harl. 3383, for 'heyrene' read 'heyrene.'

an Harlott. See the Digby Mysteries, p. 59. l. 127:

'yff þer be ony harlottes þat a-gens me make replycacyon;'

and p. 56. l. 27. See Allit. Poems, B. 39, 860, 1584, and Glossary.

176. Harn panne. See the Cursor Mundi, 7277, where, when Samson pulled down the gates at Gaza, we are told, 'His hern pan he brak wit chance; where the other MSS. read herne panne, harn panne, and horn panne. See also l. 21445.

an Harre of a dore. In the complaint of a monk on the difficulty of learning singing, pr. in Reliq. Antig. i. 292, he declares,

'I horle at the notes, and heve hem al of herre.'

Wyclif says that 'as þe pope is wundirful so cardenals ben an herre to þe fendis hous.' Works, ed. Matthew, p. 472. 'Hic cardo, -nis, penultima corrupta [read correpta], a har of a dore.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 237. A. S. heor, which is used as the gloss to cardo in the Corpus Glossary.

177. Hase. 'The rough voys is hose and sparplyd by smalle and dyuers brethinge.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xix. ch. cxxxi. p. 942.

178. Havvr. 'Wee ledde constantly 6 loades of haver with a waine . . . Doghill flatte had in it (this yeare) fiftene good loades of haver.' Best, Farming, &c. Book, p. 52. See also ibid. p. 143.

179. to Hawnte. Best, in his Farming, &c. Book, p. 35, speaks of 'the harm done to meadows by "heunes and such like fowles that haunte a close;" and again, p. 72, he says, "our shepheard lyeth his sheepe . . . howsoever beyond the Spellowe, because they shoulde not gette haunt of the wheat and rye." Wyclif frequently uses the word, see his Works, ed. Matthew, pp. 23, 73, 146, &c. an Hefte. Robert Gray in his Will, dated 1437, bequeathed to his son Richard, 'unum gladium cum peltro, unum dagar ballokhefted cum argento ornatum.' Test. Ebor. ii. 63.

180. þe Hede warke. 'Cephalia, i. dolor capitis uel cephalalgia, heaford-wære, uel ece.' Gloss. MS. Harl. 3376. Compare the remedy given in Reliq. Antiq. i. 51 'for euel and werke in bledder.'

181. an Hekylle. In the Invent. of William Coltman, in 1481, are included 'ij hekils et uno reppling karne iij^d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 261.

183. an Heppe. 'Butunus, heope.' Aelfric's Gloss. in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 30. 'Rubus, heop-brymel.' ibid. p. 33. See Thynne's Animadversions, p. 40, where he says: 'The "Hyppie" is not "simplye the redde berye one the Bryer," vnlest you adde this epitheton and saye "the redde Berye one the swete Bryer (which is the Eggetyne) to distingnyshe yt from the comone Bryer or Bramble, beringe the blacke Berye."' See also Turner's Herbal, pt. ii. lf. 118^b: 'Of the Brere bushe or Hep tre or Brere tre;' and 119^b, where he tells us that 'the tartes made onlye of Heppes serue well to be eaten of them that vomit to much, or haue any flixe, whether it be the bloody flixe or the common flixe.'

Herbe ion. In a MS. recipe 'for a man that sal begyn to travayle,' we are recommended to 'tak mugworte, and carry hit with the, and thu sal nocht fele na werynesse, and whare thou dos it in houses na elves na na evyll thynges may com therein, ne qware herbe ion comes noyther.' Reliq. Antiq. i. 53.

an Herber. See Digby Mysteries, p. 76.

184. Herns. 'Lang and side pair brues wern
And hinged all a-bout pair hern.' Cursor Mundi, 8079.

185. an Hespe. See Allit. Poems, B. 419, where the Ark is described as drifting about without
'Kable, oþer capstan to clyppe to her ankres, Hurrok, oþer hand-helme hasped on roþer.'

See also C. 189.

to make Hevy. 'Which of these soo euer hit be, hit hevyeth me.' Paston Letters, iii. 184.

187. an Holyn. 'Oletoriola, þat is cneow holen.' Earle, Eng. Plant-Names, p. 4. 'Sinpatas, cneowhole.' Aelfric's Gloss. in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 30. 'Acrifolius, holen.' ibid. p. 33. 'Ruscus, cneo-holen, fyres.' ibid. p. 285. 'Hec ussis, A^o olyn-tre.' ibid. p. 192.

an Holleke. 'Duricorium, hol-leac.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 286.

188. to Hope. 'Quen he right dips had doluen þare
I hope tuenti fote or mare.' Cursor Mundi, 21532.

an Hoppyr. H. Best, in his Farming Book, p. 11, uses hopper for a common basket; he recommends weak lambs to be laid 'in an hopper or baskett upon a little sweete hay;' and again, p. 137, he speaks of the 'hopping tree' of a 'waine.' The author of the trans. of Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 180, l. 43, recommends the 'hopre-cloth' to be of 'hienes skynne.' 'iij mawnds and a hopper iij^d,' are mentioned in the Inventory of John Wyclif, of Richmond, in 1562. Richmond, Willis, &c. p. 163.

an Horlege. Maundevile tells us that on the 'Grete Chanes' table were 'summe oriloges of gold, mad ful nobely and richely wroughte.' p. 234. Pecoek, in his Repressor, pt. I. ch. xx. p. 118, speaks of 'orologis, schewing the houis of the daie bi schadow maad bi the Sunne in a cercle.' See also Chaucer, Nun's Priest's Tale, C. T. 4044.

190. an Host. Turner, Herbal, pt. ii. lf. 33^b, tells us that 'Mastick is good to be drunken of them that spit blood and for an old host or cough.'

191. an Hukster. 'Wee buy our molten tallowe att Malton of the hucksters and tripe-wives.' H. Best, Farming, &c. Book, p. 29.

192. an Hundeflee. 'Hic humbio, a hund-flye.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 223. Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xii. ch. xiii. p. 423, gives the following description of this insect: 'Cynomia, a hounds flye is the werste kynde of flyes wyth gretter body and broder wombes than other flyes and lesse flyghte, but they ben full tendre and cleue faste in the membres of bestes on the whyche they snyte, in wulle, heere and bristles of beestes, and namely in houndes.'

Hunde fenkylle. In note, for 'Fenelle or Fenhelle' read 'Fenelle or Fenkelle.'

193. an Hustylmentt. 'Imprimis, a old awmerye, a chayre, a chyst, a table, with other wood hustilment in the howsse, v^t.' Invent. of W. Clowdeslye, 1545, Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 54.

194. Iawnes. Turner, in his Herbal, pt. i. p. 81, has an intermediate form Janondies, 'Hec ictaricia, the jandis.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 224.

195. Inglamus. In Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 26, l. 692, we are warned when fattening up geese to take care that 'noon offes white Englayme uppon the rootes of her tonnge.'

See the Allit. Poems, C. 269: 'He glydes in by þe giles, þurȝ glaymande glette;' and Best, Farming Book, p. 72: 'Yow are not to beginne to marke [sheep] soe longe as the markinge stuffe is anythinge clamme, or cleaueth and ropeth aboute the burne and botte.' In the Play of the Sacrament, l. 708, we have:

'I stoppe thys ovyng wythowtyn dowte, w^t Clay I clome yt vppe ryght fast.'

Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. vi. ch. i. p. 186, says that 'the fyrste chyldhode wythout teeth is yet ful tender, and nesseshe, and gnawy and claymy;' and again Bk. v. ch. lxvi. p. 185, he speaks of 'clemyng of humour.'

196. to In. See the directions given by Will. Paston, in 1477: 'Se the fermour in his croupe, and after seale doris and distrayne.' Paston Letters, iii. 205.

In quarte. Best frequently uses the phrases 'in hearte,' or 'out of hearte' to express good or bad condition of ground: thus he says, p. 51: 'Lande that is well manured and in hearte will bring corne farre faster forwards then that which is bare and out of hearte.' See also p. 143, where he speaks of barley being hearty.

198. a Ionkett for fysche. See Caxton's Charles the Grete, p. 200, where the crown of thorns is also said to have been made of 'thornes and of Ionques of the see.'

a Iselle. 'Faels myxt with litel water.' Palladius On Husbandrie, Bk. ix. l. 185.

199. an Iven. 'Hec edera, A^s iwyn.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 191.

200. a Ka. See Roland & Otuel, 286: 'Coo ne pye that there come none.'

to Kaykylle. See the burlesque poem in Reliq. Antiq. i. 86:

'The goos gagult ever more, the gam was better to here.'

to Kele. 'ij keling tubbes' are mentioned in the Invent. of Francys Wandysforde, in 1559. Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 132. 'This drynke of a trouth comforteth moche to slake and kele the hete of vnlawful desyre.' Fisher, Works, p. 158.

'Devowt Josephe, I se hym here, our cares forto keyle.' Digby Myst. p. 174, l. 76.

201. a Kelynge. 'Riht als sturion etes merling

And lobbekeling etes sperling.' Metrical Homilies, p. 135.

202. a Kemster. 'This felowe chattereth lyke a kempster, ce gallant cacquette comme une piegnere de layne.' Palsgrave.

a Kidde. In the Invent. of Henry Bowet, Archbishop of York, taken in 1423, we find an item, 'de vijl. receptis pro octo m. de kyddes. Et de xl^l. receptis pro duobus m^l. de ascelwod.' Test. Ebor. iii. 81; and in that of Thomas Savage, also Archbishop of York, 1507, we have 'Item Harry Thomlinson had as many kiddes, alias fagottes, as amounteth to the some of xx^l. iiij^s.' ibid. iv. 315. Fitzherbert recommends farmers when thinning plantations 'yf it be smal wod to kydde it and sell it by the hondreds or by the thousandes.' Boke of Husbandry, fo. xliii^b. 'Kydders or cariers of corne' are mentioned in the Act 5 Eliz. c. iii.

203. a Kylpe. This word is of frequent occurrence in 15th and 16th century inventories. I give a few references: Test. Ebor. iii. 138, 178, 184, 202, &c.; iv. 57, 193, 291, &c. The earliest instance I have found is in the Will of John Brompton, in 1444, in which of one 'olla ennea cum kilp summa.' ibid. ii. 103.

a Kymnelle. Amula is probably for aenola. Best says, 'our kimblyng is a just bushell.' Farming, &c. Book, p. 105; and in the Invent. of Richard Best, 1581, we find, 'In ye bowtinge house one kymlyng, one bowting tube, &c.' ibid. p. 172. 'j kymlyn iiij^d.' is also mentioned in the Invent. of William Coltman, 1481, Test. Ebor. iii. 261; and in that of W. Duffield, 1452, 'j kymlyn x^l.' ibid. p. 137. See also Richmond. Wills, pp. 179, 184, Test. Ebor. iv. 289, 292, &c.

a Kynredynge. 'Duke Naymes was paire fere, & Gayryn of kyredyn heghe.' Roland & Otuel, 693.

204. to Kytyle. See H. Best, Farming, &c. Book, p. 80.

206. a Lace. In the Invent. of Richard Bishop, a tradesman of York, 1500, are included 'a dosan galow lasys vj^d. A groys of qwyth lasys, vj^d. Item iij groys of threyd lasys xx^d. &c.' Test. Ebor. iv. 192.

208. to Lappe. We find this word used as late as 1641 in Best's Farming Book, p. 22, where he tells us that 'in lappinge up of a fleece, they allwayes putte the inne side of the fleece outwarde.' See also p. 23, and Paston Letters, iii. 338.

a Lappe of y^e ere. See Reliq. Antiq. i. 84, where one of the signs by which we may judge 'yf a seke man sal lyve or dy' is that if 'his ere-lappes waxes lethy . . . forsothe witte thu well he sal noght love thre dayes.'

209. a Lase. 'Fortune in worldes worshepe me doth lace.' Digby Myst. p. 159, l. 580. See also the stage direction, ibid. p. 140, where 'entreth Anima as a mayde in a whight cloth of gold . . . with a riche chapetelet lasyd behynde.'

a Latte. 'Item latts and spelks, iij^s. iiij^d.' Invent. of Edwarde Pykerynge, 1542, Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 35; see also ibid. p. 93.

a Lathe. 'Item in whett and rye in the layethe, xxvj^s. viiiij^d. Item warre corne in the laythe xxvj^s. viiiij^d.' Invent. of Matthew Whitham, 1545, Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 57. 'Corne in the laythes. In the west laythe bye estimation xxxij quarters of rye, xvj^s.' Invent. of W. Knyvett, 1557, ibid. p. 101; see also ibid. pp. 57, 88, 93, &c.

210. Laton. Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvi. ch. v. p. 554, gives the following: 'laton is hard as bras or copre. for by medlyng of copre and of tynn and of auripigment and wyth other metall it is brought in to the fire to colour of golde Laton hight Auricalcum and hath that name: for though it be bras of Messelyng: yet it shyneth as golde wythout.'

a Lawnder. 'And in certayne she was a lavendere.' Gen-rydes, l. 4354.

211. a Leche. In the Invent. of T. Morton, 1449, is an item, 'de ij cultellis, vocatis lecheyny-knyves iiij^d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 112.

212. Leg harness. See G. Douglas, Aeneados, Bk. xii. p. 425, l. 11.

213. Lepe. See Cursor Mundi, 19719, where we are told how Paul escaped from the Jews, because 'in a lep men lete him dun Vte ouer þe wallas o þe tun' and again, 20983: 'in lepe ouer wallas was laten down.' Best says: 'wee provide allsoe against this time two leapes . . . one of the leapes is to lye the doore upon, there on to lye and winde the fleeces; and the other leape is to putte the worst lockes of wooll into.' Farming, &c. Book, p. 23. 'iiij leapes, xij^d.' are mentioned in the Invent. of Margaret Cotton, in 1564, Wills & Invents. i. 224.

214. a Leske. John Percy, of Harum, in his Will, 1471, bequeathed 'Johanni Belby iij^s. iiij^d. et j vaccam with a whyte leske.' Test. Ebor. iii. 188.

215. a Lybber. See quotation from Bellendene, s. v. Styyrke, p. 365.

217. a Lyne fynche. 'Carduelis, linetuige.' Corpus Glossary.

218. a Lyste. 'Lembum, listan.' Corpus Glossary. Margaret Blakburn, in her Will, dated 1433, bequeathed 'unum tuellam de twill cum nigris lestyz . . . et duas tuellas cum planis egges.' Test. Ebor. ii. 49. Compare also the Will of John Brompton, of Beverley, in 1444, in which is mentioned 'j coverlet de blodio cum capitibus damarum viridibus, cum alio coopertoris rubeo habente in lystyng volucres et albas ollas.' ibid. p. 99. See also quotation from Glanvil in additional note to Meteburde.

Lithwayke. 'Bytwene the tree and his frute is a strynge other a stalke, and that stalke is fyrste feble and lethy.' De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvii. ch. ii. p. 604.

220. a Loppe. In Chaucer's Astrolabe, pp. 4, 11, loppe is used in the sense of a spider. A. S. loppe.

a Lopster. 'hwæt fehat þu on see Quid capis in mari hæringas and leaxas and lopystran and fela swylces allices et teicios . . . et polipodes et similia.
 Aelfric's Colloquy in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 6.

'Polipos, loppestre.' ibid. p. 77.

221. to Love. See the Digby Mysteries, p. 216, l. 1616:

'To laude & prayse hym, let vs be abowt;
 To loue hym & lofe hym & lawly hym lowt.'

a Lowe of fyre. In the Cursor Mundi, 5739, the burning bush is said to have appeared to Moses 'als it wit lou war al vm-laid.'

223. a Luke cruke. In the Invent. of John Eden, in 1588, are included 'v lucke crokes 4^d, xxiiij waine whele speakes 2^s.' Wills & Invent. ii. 329. 'Runcina, locor.' Gloss. MS. Cott. Cleop. A. iii. lf. 76, in Wright's Vocab. p. 287.

to Lulle. 'Nouryces vse lullynges and other cradyl songes to pleyse the wyttes of the chylde.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. vi. ch. iv. p. 191.

224. a Lurdane. See Digby Mysteries, pp. 83, l. 741 and 61, l. 189.

225. a Madyn. In the Digby Mysteries, p. 191, l. 589, the Virgin addressing St. John says 'He admyttid you frendly for to reste For a speciall prerogatif & slepe on his holye godly breste Because of your virginite & clenness:.'
 and see also the Apostrophe to Saint John in the Cursor Mundi, p. 1412, where, at l. 24677, we read—

'þar-til þe worthiest he madd	Quat fanding þat þai fele.
Wit mekenes and wit maidenhed,	Hee þat in maiden hede es less,
For-þi es þam ful wele,	He ledis lijf lik til angels,
Man or womman, queþer it be,	For uirgins all ar þai.'
þat lines in virginite to Mayn. See the quotation from Lydgate in Destruction of Troy, Introd. p. xlvii. where are mentioned 'dartes, daggers for to mayne and wounde.' In Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 203, we have the curious forms 'Mululare, to mamere. Hec mululatio, A^a mameryng.'

229. a Masyndewe. In the Will of William Clederhow, in 1554, the testator directs 'that the Massynde at Beverley yats have iij^s. iiij^d. and ylk a Massynde in the towne after, xij^d.' Test. Ebor. ii. 171. In 1429 Roger Thornton, by his Will, bequeathed 'to ye mesondieu of sint kateryne . . . for yair eno'ment xx^l. . . . Item to ye reparation of yose tenementes yat I haue gyun to ye foresaid mesondieu and to ye said chauntry, xl^l.' Wills & Invent. i. 78-9. By the Act 39 Eliz. c. v. power is given for the erection of 'hospitals, measons de dieu, abiding place, or houses of correction.'

230. Mastiljon. Compare 'Erarius, mæstling-smip.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 88, and 'Auricalcum, gold-mesline.' ibid. p. 85. 'Auricalcos, grene ar, mæstline.' Gloss. MS. Cott. Cleop. A. iii. lf. 76. See the quotation from Glanvil in addit. note to Laton.

232. pe Mawmoder. Hulot explains Molucrum as 'swellynge of a maydens-or womans bodye, when she hath bene at a mans labour.'

Mawnde. 'ij mawnde and a hopper, iiij.' are included in the Invent. of John Wyclif, in 1562. Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 163; and in that of Hugo Grantham, in 1440, we find 'le weginbalk et mawnde pro lina.' Test. Ebor. iii. 48.

a Mawndrelle. William Wynter, of York, Founderer, in 1493 bequeathed 'to William Richardson the lathe that he turne in, and all my hukes and my mawndrellis, and ij hak hammers.' Test. Ebor. iv. 88.

Medefulle. See Wyclif, Works, ed. Matthew, pp. 8, 83, and 178.

Meese. Fitzherbert, in his Boke of Surveying, &c. fo. v^b, tells us that 'Common appendaunt is where a lorde of olde tyme hath graunted to a man a meseplace, and certayne landes, medowes, and pastures with their appurtenances to holde of hym.' In 1480, John Smyth, in his Will, speaks of his 'mese, landes, and tenementes.' Bury Wills, &c. p. 57. See the complaint of John Paston, in 1454, where he speaks of 'one mese wyth a pece of londe lyenge in a crofte to the same mese adjoyning.' Paston Letters, iii. 310.

233. to Meke. 'þenke we hou a man wole meke him to a worldly lord for trespasse dou to hym.' Wyclif, Works, ed. Matthew, p. 338.

236. Marketbeter. See Wright's Political Poems, i. 330, where in 'The Complaint of the Ploughman,' about 1400, the author complains that the priests are 'Market-beeters, and medlyng make Hoppen and houten with heve and hale.' See other instances in Wyclif, Works, pp. 152, 166, 168, and 511.

237. a Mese. 'Noper durst þay drinc ne etc.
Ne brek þair brede ne tast þair mes
Til he war cummen til þair des.' Cursor Mundi, 12559.

a Meselle. In the Cursor Mundi, 8169, we have mesel = a leper:
"þoru þe," he said, "sal þis meselle Be auf and sund of al vn-hela."

238. a Meteburde. In 1485, we find in the Invent. of John Carter, of York, Tailor, 'j mete-burde w' ij par of trystylla.' Test. Ebor. iii. 300; and in that of Thomas Walker, in 1542, 'a counter and a myt bourd, iiij.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 31. Glanvil tells us that 'a mete burde is areyrd and sette vpon fete, and compassed wyth a lynte aboute.' De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xvii. ch. clxii. p. 709.

a Mette. In the Invent. of H. Grantham, in 1410, are mentioned 'ij scoatella. iiij buschels et j met ac j roll.' Test. Ebor. iii. 49; and in that of John Colan, in 1490, 'j les mett of collys, iiij^d.' ibid. iv. 55; and again, in 1570, in that of C. Hodgkinson, we find 'one hundredth mette of malt, x^l.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 228. See quotation from G. Douglas under to Multe, p. 246. 'In summer wee sende but a mette.' H. Best, Farming, &c. Book, p. 104.

Medylle erthe. 'Bituix þe midel-erth and þe lift.' Cursor Mundi, 8003.

239. a Middyng. See the Complaynt of Scotland, p. 12: 'ane hen that selkis hyr myet in the mydlyng may scraipe sa lang amang the fyltth, quhil sche scraip furth sum old knyfe that has been tynt, the quhilk knyfe cuttis hyr throt eftiruart.' See also Palladius On Husbandrie, pp. 17, l. 458, and 28, l. 765.

to Mye brede. In the Invent. of Thomas de Dalby, in 1400, we find 'r. pro j mynor, j watercune, iiij laddeles de auricalco . . . et iiij trowes simul venditia, iiij. x^l.' Test. Ebor. iii. 14; and again, ibid. p. 99, in that of John Cadeby, c. 1450, is mentioned 'j mior, ij^d.'

þe Mygrane. 'Emigraneus, i. uermis capitis, emigrantum i. dolor temporum, þunwonga nar.' MS. Harl. 3376.

240. a Mire drombylle. See Wyclif, Zephaniah ii. 14.

242. a Mytano. 'Buotes, cocurs, myttens, mot we were.' Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 43, l. 1167.

a Molwarppe. Palladius advises us, 'flor moldexarpes cattles to kepe.' p. 109, l. 1166; see also p. 34, l. 924.

243. Mortrws. 'Mylnestons in mortrws have I sene bot fewe.'

Burlesque Poem, 15th cent. in Reliq. Antiq. i. 81.

'Ther com masfattus in mortros alle soow.' ibid. p. 86.

244. Motide of musyk. See the treatise 'Le Venery de Twety,' printed in Reliq. Antiq. i. 149; at p. 152 we read: 'How shall he blowe whan ye han sen the hert? I shal blowe after one mote, ij motes, and if myn howndes come not hastily to me as y wolde, I shal blowe iiij motes Than ye shall begynne to blowe a long mote, and aftirward ij. shorte motes in this maner, Trout, trout, and then, trout, tro ro rot, begynnyng with a long mote.' 'And whan the hert is take ye shal blowe .iiij. motys.' ibid. p. 153. In the Chester Plays, p. 124, we have—

'Blowe a mote for that While that horne now in thy hande is.'

Scott, in Ivanhoe, ch. 32, has: 'if ye shall chance to be hard bested in any forest between Trent and Tees, wind three motes upon the horn thus—Wa-sa-hoa!'

245. a Mughe. This is a rare word in A. S., but it occurs in the Corpus Glossary, 'Acerus, muha,' and in Aelfric's Heptateuch, Exod. xxii. 6.

a Muldyngeborde. In the Invent. of W. Duffield, taken in 1452, are included 'ij bultyng-clothes iiij^d. et j moledynge-burde xvj^d.' Test. Ebor. iii. 137; and in another, dated 1509, we have an item, 'de xiiij^d. pro ij mulding burd cum ij tristils.' ibid. iv. 289.

248. to Nappe.

nappyt

The ky may otherwhiles be withdrawe.'

Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 166, l. 65.

259. Ogrufe. See Morte Arthur, 3944, Chaucer, C.T. A. 949, Emare, 656, &c.

an Okerer. 'jis man he was an okerer.' Cursor Mundi, 14034.

260. to Onder sett. 'The ouer parte is nderet wyth postes and pylars.' Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. xiv. ch. lv. p. 487. See Caxton's Charles the Grete, p. 249.

263. Ouer caste. In Robert of Gloucester, p. 560, we are told that while the battle of Evesham was being fought 'in þe norþ west a derk weder þer aros, Sodeinliche suart inou, þat mani man agros, & ouer-cast it þoste al þat lond, þat me miȝte vnneþe ise;
Grisloker weder þan it was ne miȝte an erpe be.'

Oueral. 'Son oueral jis tiȝand ras.' Cursor Mundi, 14362.

265. an Oxe bowe. Compare Schakylle, below, p. 332.

an Oxange of lande. 'My wyll ys that Jonett, my wyfe, have my chefe maner place and iiij^{or} oxange of land langing therto.' Will of Walter Gower, 1443, Test. Ebor. ii. 89.

a Paddockstole. In Isaak Walton's Complete Angler, p. 151, we are told that 'the green Frog, which is a smal one, is by Topsell taken to be venomous; and so is the Paddock or Frog-Paddock, which usually keeps or breeds on the land, and is very large and bony, and big, especially the shee frog of that kind.' In note, for 'rambricus,' read 'rambricus.'

266. Palde as ale. 'Defrutum, i. uinum, medo, geswet uel weall.' MS. Gloss. Harl. 3376. Holland, in his trans. of Pliny, Bk. xxiii. c. 1, says: 'No liquor giueth a better tast to our meats, or quickneth them more than vinegre doth: for which purpose, if it be oversharp, there is a means to mitigate the force thereof, with a tost of bread or some wine: again if it be too weake and apalset, the way to revive it againe, is with Pepper.'

a Panne of a howse. See Sir Ferumbras, l. 5188, where the Saracens scale the tower, in which the French knights are confined, a Popille tree. 'In serve, and peche, in plane, and popule.' Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 92, l. 877.
'And wer come inward at hard & neychs At a pan bat was broken.'

313. a Runkylle. The translator of Palladius, in giving advice as to the choosing of oxen, mentions, amongst other qualifications, 'Compact a runde necke, dewlapped syde Unto the knee.' p. 129, l. 679.

CATHOLICON ANGLICUM.

All words which do not occur in the Promptorium are marked with a dagger (†); those which are annotated by Mr. Way are marked with an asterisk (*).

Words and readings to which the letter A has been appended are from MS. Addit. 15, 562. References to the Promptorium in the Notes are marked P.

After Acorne, the hic, hec, hoc that mark the gender in the MS. are left out in the print, as are also the genitival inflections of nouns.

See also the ordination of Acolytes, Maskell, Monumenta Ritualia, iii. 171. Thorpe, Ancient Laws, ii. 348, gives the following from the Canons of Ælfric: 'xiv. ¹ The division of life into the two classes of active life or bodily service of God, and contemplative life or spiritual service, is common in mediæval theological writers. It occurs frequently in William of Nassyngton's 'Mirror of Life,' and in Hampole's Prose Treatises, see Mr. Perry's Preface, p. xi, and p. 19 of text; at p. 29 we are told that 'Iya es als mekill at say as trauihouse, and betakyns actyfe lyfe. Rachelle hyghte of begynnynge, pat es godd, and betakyns lyfe contemplatyfe.' Langland in P. Plowman, B-Text, Passus vi. 251, says:—'Contemplatyf lyf or actyf lyf cryst wolde men wrouzte;' see also B. x. 230, A. xi. 80, C. xvi. 194, and Prof. Skeat's notes. In the 'Reply of Frier Dan Topias,' pr. in Political Poems, ed. Wright, ii. 63, we find:—

'Jack, in James pistles al religioun is groundid, Ffor there is made mencion of two perfit lyves,
That actif and contemplatif

comounli ben callid Ffulli figurid by Marie and Martha hir sister,
By Peter and bi Joon,
by Rachel and by Iya (Lenh).'

The distinction seems to have been founded upon the last verse of the 1st chapter of the Epistle of St. James. Wiclif (Works, i. 384) says:—'This is clepid actif liif, whanne men travailen for worldli goodis, and kepen hem in rightwisnesse.'

² 'Aimant, the Adamant, or Load-stone.' Cotgrave. Cooper says, 'Adamas. A diamonde, wherof there be diuers kindes, as in Plin. and other it appereth. It's vertues are, to resiste poison, and witchcrafts: to put away feare; to geue victory in contention: to heulpe them that be lunatike or phrantike: I haue proued that a Diamonde layed by a nedell causeth that the loode stone can not draw the needel. No fire can hurte it, no violence breake it, onles it be moisted in the warme bludde of a goote.'

³ Tusser in his Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry, p. 51, stanza 6, says:—
'Where ivy embraseth the tree very sore, Kill ivy, or tree else will addle no more.'
and in 'Richard of Dalton Dale' we read:—'I addle my ninepence every day.' The Manip. Vocab. gives 'to addill, demerere; to addle, lucrari, mereri.' Icel. öðlask = to win, gain. Clensby's Icel. Dict. See note by Prof. Skeat in E. Dialect. Soc.'s edition of Ray's Glossary, p. xxi. 'Hemm addlenn swa þe maste wa þatt aniz mann mazz addlenn.' Örnulum, 16102. See also ibid. 6235, and Towneley Myst. p. 218.

³ MS. octo, octogenti.

⁴ A sore either on the foot or hand. Palsgrave has 'an agnayle upon one's too,' and Baret, 'an agnaille or little corn growing upon the toes, gemursa, pterigium.' Minshew describes it as a 'sore between the finger and the nail. Agassin. A corne or agnele in the feet or toes. Frouelle. An agnell pinne, or warnell in the toe.' 1611. Cotgrave. 'Agnayle: pterigium.' Manip. Vocab. According to Wedgwood 'the real origin is Ital. anguinaglia (Latin inguem), the groin, also a botch or blain in that place; Fr. angon-ailles. Botches, (pockie) bumps, or sores, Cotgrave.' Halliwell, s. v. quotes from the Med. MS. Lincoln, leaf 300, a receipt 'for agnayls one mans fete or womans.' Lyte in his edition of Dodoens, 1578, p. 279, speaking of 'Git, or Nigella,' says:—'The same steeped in olde wine, or stale pisse (as Plinie saith) causeth the Cornes and Agnayles to fall off from the feete, if they be first scarified and scotched rounde aboute.' 'Gemursa. A corn or lyke grieffe vnder the little toe.' Cooper.

⁵ This word occurs in H. More's Philosoph. Poems, p. 7:

'The glory of the court, their fashions

And brave agguize, with all their princely state.'

Spenser uses it as a verb: thus, Faery Queen, II. i. 21, we read, 'to do her service well aguid.' See also stanza 31, and vi. 7. Indula is a contracted form of 'inducula, a little garment.' Cooper.

'That lad her life onely by brede, Kneden with eisell strong and egre.'
In the Forme of Curry, p. 56, is mentioned 'Aysell other alegar.' Roquefort gives 'aisil, vinegar.' In the Manip. Vocab. the name is spelt 'Azel,' and in the *Reg. ² Lyte in his edition of Dodoens, 1578, p. 746, says of Oak-Apples:—'The Oke-Apples or greater galls, being broken in sonder, about the time of withering do forshewe the sequell of the yeare, as the expert husbandmen of Kent haue observed by the liuing thinges that are founde within them: as if they finde an Ante, they iudge plentie of grayne: if a white worrne lyke a gentill, morreyne of beast: if a spider, they presage pestilence, or some other lyke sicknesse to folowe amongst men. Whiche thing also the learned haue noted, for Mattheolus vpon Dioscorides saith, that before they be holed or pearced they conteyne eyther a Flye, a Spider, or a Worme: if a Flye be founde it is a pronostication of warre to folowe: if a creeping worrne, the scarcitie of victual: if a running Spider, the Pestilente sicknesse.'

German root sath- we get the Mid. Eng. aseth, and from the cognate Latin root sat- we have the French assez.¹ Prof. Skeat, note on P. Plowman, xx. 203. In Dan John Gaytryge's Sermon, pr. in Reliq. Pieces in Prose and Verse, from the Thornton MS. p. 6, l. 22, we are told that if we break the tenth commandment, 'we may noghte be assoylede of þe trespase bot if we make aseth in þat þat we may to þam þat we harmede;' and again, leaf 179, 'It was likyng to þow, Fadire, for to sende me into this werlde that I sulde make aseth for mans trespas that he did to us.' See also Gesta Romanorum, p. 84.

'Hwan þe dom was demd and sayd Sket was . . . on þe asse leyð,
And led vn-til þat ilke grene,
And brend til asken al bidene;'

and in An Old Eng. Miscell., p. 78, l. 203, we are told that when the body is laid in the earth, worms shall find it and 'to are heo hyne gryndeþ.'

'Thynk man, he says, askes ertow now,
And into askes agayn turn saltow.'

⁵ A word which occurs very frequently in the Gesta Romanorum: thus p. 48, in the version of the tale of Lear and his daughters we read that when his eldest daughter declared that she loved him, 'more þan I do my selfe,' 'Perfore, quod he, þou shalt be hily awaunced;' and he mariede her to a riche and myghti kyng.' So also p. 122, the Emperor makes a proclamation that whoever can outstrip his daughter in running 'shulde wedde hir, and be hiliche awauncyd.' See also Barbour's Bruce, xv. 522. Avancer, to advance, prefer, promote. Cotgrave.

⁶ A word of frequent occurrence in the old Romances in the sense of 'consider, reflect, inform, teach.' Thus in the 'Pilgrimage of the Lyf of the Manhode,' Roxburgh Club, ed.
Wright, p. 4, we find 'I aviede me,' i. e. I reflected, considered. So in Chaucer, Clerkes Tale, 238: 'Vpon hir chere he wolde him ofte ayuse.' See Barbour's Bruce, ii. 297, vi. 271, &c. Aviser. To marke, heed, see, looke to, attend unto, regard with circumspection, to consider, advise of, take advice on; to thinke, imagine, judge; also to advise, counsell, warne, tell, informe, doe to wit, give to understand. Cotgrave.

⁷ Ambra. Amber gryse: hotte in the second degree, and drie in the firste. Cooper.
Ambre, m. Amber. Cotgrave. See Destruction of Troy, ll. 1666 and 6203. Harrison, Descript. of England, ed. 1580, p. 43, says that in the Islands off the west of Scotland 'is greate plentie of Amber,' which he concludes to be a kind of 'geat' (jet), and 'produced by the working of the sea upon those coasts.'

See ails in South-Country Words, E. Dial. Soc. Gloss. B. 16.' Prof. Skeat in his ed. of Ray's Gloss. of N. Country Words, 1691. Turner tells us that 'y^e barley eare and the darnele eare are not like, for the one is without aunes and the other hath longe aunes.' Herbal, pt. ii. lf. 17. Best tells us that we 'may knowe when barley is ripe, for then the eares will crooke eaven downe, and the aunes stand out stiff and wide asunder.' Farming, &c. Book, p. 53.

⁵ Ray in his Gloss. of North Country Words, gives 'Axeltooth, dens molaris; Icel. jaxl;' and in Capt. Harland's Gloss. of Swaledale, E. D. S. is given 'Assle-tuth, a double tooth.' Still in use in the North; see Jamieson, s. v. Asil-tooth. Compare also Wang tothe.

⁶ 'Axis. An extree. Axis. An axyltre.' Cooper. A. S. axe.

⁷ In the Paston Letters, iii. 426, we read—'I was falle seek with an axes.' It also occurs in The King's Quhair, ed. Chalmers, p. 54:

'But tho begun mine axis and torment.'

with the note—'Axis is still used by the country people, in Scotland, for the ague.' Skelton, Works, i. 25, speaks of 'Allectuary arrectyd to redres These feverous axes.'

See Calde of the axes, below. 'Axis, Acksys, aches, pains.' Jamieson. 'I shake of the axes. Je tremble des fieures.' Palsgrave. ¹ Cotgrave s. v. Fol has 'give the foole his bable, or what's a foole without his bable.' 'A bable or trifle, niquet.' ibid. 'A bable pegma;' Manip. Vocab. 'He schalle neuer y-thryve, perfore take to hym a babulle.' John Russell's Boke of Nurture, in the Babees Boke, ed. Furnivall, p. 1, l. 12. In the Ancren Riwele, p. 388, when a certain king made efforts to gain the love of a lady, he 'sende hir beaubelet boðe ueole and feire,' where other MSS. read 'beawbelez' and 'beaubelez.'

² A Bachelor signified a novice, either in arms or in the church. Thus in P. Plowman, Prol. 87, we find 'Bischopes and bachelers,' and in Chaucer, Squieres Tale, 24, Cambuscan is described as—

'Yong, fresh, strong, and in armes desirous,
As any bachelor of al his hous.'

Brachet, Etymol. Dict., has traced the word from L. Lat. baccalarius, a boy attending a baccalaria or dairy-farm, from L. Lat. bacca, Lat. vacca, a cow. See also Wedgwood, &c. 'Bachelor, or one unmarried, or hauyng no wife. Agamus.' Huloet.

³ Probably the same as batten, to beat out, flatten: see Halliwell, s. v.

⁴ In Northamptonshire a batildore means a thatching instrument.

⁵ 'Of bay colour, bayarde, badius.' Baret. Compare P. Bayyd, as a horse.

³ 'Blatta, a littell worme or flie, of the kynde of mothes, and hurteth bothe cloth and bookes.' Cooper. 'Chaucourie, a batte; a Flittermouse; a Reeremouse.' Cotgrave. Jamieson gives 'Bak, Backe, Bakie-bird. s. The bat or rearmouse.' Compare Dan. aftebakke, lit. evening-bat. See Wyclif, Lecit. xi. 19. In the Poem on the Truce of 1444, printed in Wright's Political Poems, ii. 216, we read:

'No bakke of kynde may looke ageyn the sunne,
 Of frowardnesse yit wyl he fleen be nyght,
 And quenche laumpys, though they brenne bright.'

And again, p. 218:

'The owgly bakke wyl gladly fleen be nyght,
 Dirk cressetys and laumpys that been lyght.'

In the Alliterative 'Alexander & Dindimus,' E. E. Text Society, ed. Skeat, l. 123, we find:

'Minerva men worschipe, in opur maner also & bringen heere a niht-brid, a bakke or an oule.'

See also Backe. 'Vespertilio. A bakke.' Medulla. See Halliwell, s. v.

⁴ Properly a female baker. A. S. bacistre. In P. Plowman, Prol. 217, we read:

'I seiȝ in this assemble, as ȝe shul here after,
Bac-teres and bewesteres, and bocheres manye;'

And again, Passus iii. 79,

'Brewesteres and bakesteres, bocheres and cokes.'

⁵ Pronuba, which in Classical Latin signified a 'bridesmaid,' in Low Latin degenerated to the meaning of a 'procuress,' in which sense it occurs several times in the Liber Albus (see, for instance, p. 454, 'De pena contra meretrices, pronubus, presbyteros adulteros, &c.' and, p. 608, a record of a sentence to the pillory of a woman 'quia communis Meretrix et Pronuba'). In Wright's Volume of Vocabularies, p. 217, we find it given, as here, as the Latin equivalent of 'bawdstrott' (i.e. 'an old woman who runs about on bawds' errands'), and again in the French Royal MSS. 521 and 7692 it is translated by 'bawdestrot' and 'bawdetrot.' In the Pictorial Vocabulary of the 15th Century, printed in the same volume, p. 269, this is corrupted, evidently from the scribe's ignorance of the meaning of the word, into 'bawstrop' and in the Medulla into 'bauds strok.' A 'trot' was a common expression of contempt applied to old women in Early English; thus in De Deguileville's Pilgrimage of the Life of the Manhode, MS. of St. John's College, Cambridge, lf. 71, the Pilgrim addresses Idleness as 'þou alde stynkande tratte . . . and than the olde tratt answerde me, &c.; and again, lf. 73, 'When this olde tratte hadde thus spoken.' Cf. 'This lere I learned of a beldame trote.' Affectionate Shephord, 1594. See Jamieson, s. v. Trat. 'Paranympha: pronuba que viro nympham iungit. Paranympha: dicitur qui nubentibus preest, vel eis assistit: vel amicus sponsalis qui eos coniungit: vel nuncius intermedius.' Ortus Vocab. See Ducange, s. v. Paranympha.

'Celox. A brigantine, or barke.' Cooper. Jamieson gives 'Ballingar, Ballingere. 2. A kind of ship.' In the Paston Letters, ed. Gairdner, i. 84, there is a letter giving an account of the capture of certain French ships, amongst which are enumerated 'the grete schyp of Brast [Brest], the grete schyp of the Morleys, the grete schyp of Vaung, with other viij. schyppis, bargys, and balyngers, to the number of iij. mth men.' The term also occurs in the Verse Life of Joseph of Arimathea (ed. Skeat), l. 425, where the writer addresses Joseph as 'Hayle, myghty balynger, charged with plenty.' 'Balingaria. Bellica species navis.' Ducange. 'Balinger or Balangha. A kind of small sloop or barge; small vessels of war formerly without forecastles.' Smyth, Sailor's Word-Book, 1867. See also Way's note in Prompt. s. v. Hulke, p. 252. In the version of Vegetius, Reg. MS. 18 A. xii. are mentioned 'small and light vessels, as galeies, barges, fluyntes and balyngers.' lib. iv. cap. 39. Walsingham relates that in the engagement between the Duke of Bedford and the French, in 1416, the former 'cepit tres caricas, et unam hulkam, et quatuor balingarias.' Camden, 394. ⁴ MS. vertebra. The hinge. In Mr. Peacock's Glossary of Manley and Cottingham (E. Dial. Soc.) is given 'Band': the iron-work on a door to which the hinges or sockets are fastened. Bands: the iron-work of hinges which projects beyond the edge of the door; frequently used for the hinge itself.' Cooper gives 'Vertebra, a joynte in the bodie, where the bones so meete that they may turne, as in the backe or chine.' 'Bands of a door; its hinges.' Jamieson. See quotation from Ducange in note s. v. Brandyth to set bygyng on. 'Vertebra. A dorre barre.' Medulla. 'And the jates of the palace ware of evour, wondir whitt, and the bandes of thame, and the legges of ebene.' Life of Alexander the Great, Thornton MS. lf. 25.

³ See the Chester Plays, i. 1, from which it appears that the proclamations of the old mysteries were called Banes. 'Ban. A proclamation with voice, or by sound of trumpet.' Cotgrave. 'Preludium. A prohome; in Musicke a voluntary before the Song; a flourish; a preamble or entrance to a mattier, and as ye would say, signes and profers.' Cooper. Compare the phrase 'the banns of marriage.' A. S. bun.

³ The Addit. MS. is here undoubtedly correct. The word is the O. Fr. berfroï, from which, through the L. Lat. belfredus, comes our belfry. It was a movable tower, often of several stories high, used by besiegers for purposes of attack and defence. The following quotation from Ducange will sufficiently explain the construction of the machine, as well as the stages by which the name came to be applied in the modern sense. 'Belfredus. *Machina bellica lignea in modum excelsioris turris exstructa, variis tabulatis, coenaculis seu stationibus constans, rotisque quatuor vecta: tantae proceritatis ut fastigium oppidorum et castrorum obsessorum muros aequaret. In coenaculis autem collocabantur milites qui in hostes tela continuo vibrabant, aut sagittas emittebant: infra vero viri robore praestantes magnis impulsibus muris machinam admovebant. Gallicè, belfroi. Belfredi nomen a similitudine ejusmodi machinae bellicae postea inditum altioribus turribus quae in uribus aut castris eriguntur, in quarum fastigio excubant vigiles qui eminus adventantes hostes, pulsata quae in eum finem affensa est campana, cives admonent quo sint ad arma parati. Nec in eum tantum finem statuae in belfredi campanae, ut adventantes nuntient hostes, sed etiam ad convocandos cives et ad alios usus prout reipublicae curatoribus visum fuerit. Unde campana bannalis dicitur, quod, cum pulsatur, quicumque intra bannum seu districtum urbis commorantur ad conventus publicos ire teneantur. Denique belfredum appellant ligneam fabricam in campanariis, in quibus pendent campanae. Fustibulus. Machinae bellicae species: engin de guerre, espèce de fronde.' In the Romance of Sir Ferumbras, E. E. Text Soc. ed. Herrtage, l. 3171, when Balan is besieging the French knights in the Tower of Aigremont, King Sortybran advises him to make use of his*

'Castel'of tre þat hiȝt brysour . . .

And pote þer-on vj hundred men, þat kunne boȝe launce and caste.'

The tower is accordingly brought up, and is described as follows, ll. 3255-3270.

'In þat same tre castel weren maked stages thre:

þe hezeste hiȝt mangurel; the middle hiȝt launcepre;

þe nyȝemest was callid hagefray; a quynȝe þyng to se . . .

þan þe heȝest stage of al fulde he with men of armes

To schelde hem by-nyȝe wel fram stones and othere harmes. . . .

And on þat oȝer stage amidde ordeynt he gunnes grete,

And oȝer engyns y-hidde, wilde fyr to caste and schete.

Þyder þanne he putte y-nowe, and tauȝte hem hure labour,

Wilde fyr to schete and þrowe aȝen þe heȝe tour,

In þe nyȝemest stage þanne schup he him-selue to hove,

To ordeyne hure fyr þar-inne, and send hit to hem above.'

* Capt. Harland in his Glossary of Swaledale (E. D. Soc.) gives 'Barfam, or Brassam, a horse-collar,' as still in use. It is also used in the forms hamberce and hamborough, and means a protection against the hames. 'Hec epicia; Anglice, a berhom.' Wright's Vol. of þe children ournen at þe bars.'

¹ The game of prisoners'-base. In the Metrical Life of Pope Gregory (MS. Cott. Cleopatra, D ix. ff. 136. bk.), we read—

In the margin of the Metrical Vocab. printed in Wright's Vol. of Vocab., p. 176, is written 'Barri, -orum sine singulari, sunt ludi, Anglice, base,' and in Myrc's Instructions for Parish Priests, E. E. Text Society, ed. Peacock, p. 11. l. 336, directions are given that games or secular business are not to be permitted in a churchyard:—

'Bal and bares and suche play,

Courte holdynge and suche maner chost,

Out of chyrchejorde put away;

Out of seyntwary put þou most.'

Colgrave gives 'Barres, the martial sport called Barriers; also the play at Base, or Prison Bars.' In 'How the Good Wife Taught her Daughter,' printed in the 3rd part of Barbour's Bruce, ed. Skeat, p. 528, l. 114, children are cautioned not ouer a litlel bece to lig;'

⁶ In the Cursor Mundi (E. E. Text Society, ed. Morris, Gottingen MS.), p. 515, l. 8946, we read—

'Pai drew it [a tree] þedir and made a brig.

and in Harrison's Descript. of England, 1587, p. 50a, the river 'Weie or Waie' is described as running towards 'Godalming, and then toward Shawford, but yer it come there it crosseth Craulie becke, which riseth somewhere about the edge of Sussex short of Ridge-weie,' &c. 'Hic riuulus, a bek.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab., p. 239.

⁸ 'Glaber, smooth without heare; pille.' Cooper. 'Beld, adj. bald, without hair on the head. Beldness, Belthness, s. baldness.' Jamieson.

⁸ Baret says 'Beer or rather Bere; ab Italico Bere, i.e. bibere quod Gallice, Boire De la biere.' See Mr. Riley's admirable note in Glossary to Liber Customarum, s. v. Cerveise, where he points out the fact that hops (hoppyes) are frequently mentioned in the Northumberland Household Book, 1512, as being used for brewing, some ten years before the alleged date of their introduction according to Stowe. Cogan, in his Haven of Health, 1612, p. 220, tells us that beer was 'invented by that worthy Prince Gambrinius; Anno 1786. yeares before the incarnation of our Lord Jesus Christ, as Languette writeth in his Chronicle.' On p. 217 he gives a hint how to know where the best ale is to be found—'If you come as a stranger to any Towne, and would faine know where the best Ale is, you neede do no more but marke where the greatest noise is of good fellowes, as they call them, and the greatest repaire of Beggars.'

³ ‘Colustrum. The first milke that commeth in teates after the byrth of yonge, be it in woman or beast; Beestynges.’ Cooper. The word is not uncommon. Cotgrave gives ‘Beton. m. Beest; the first milke a female gives after the birth of her young one. Le lait nouveau. Beest or Beestings.’ Originally applied to the milk of women, it is now in common use in the Northern and Eastern counties for the first milk of a cow or other animal. Yorkshire,' but I have been unable to find the word in any Glossary. Ephialtes. The nyth mare.' Medulla. Noxa is also given hereafter as the Latin rendering of pe Falland euyll, q. v. Cooper renders Ephialtes by 'the disease called the maare, proceeding of grosse and tough fume in the mouth of the stomache, through continuall surffetyng and cruditie, which casteth vp cold vapours to the head, stoppyng the hinder celles of the brayne, when the bodie lieth vpright, and so letteth the passage of the spirit and vertue animall to the inferiour partes of the bodie, wherby the party thinketh he hath a great weyght vpon him stopping his breath.' See Boorde, E. E. T. Soc. ed. Furnivall, pp. 78-9.

⁵ To announce by proclamation. Festas indicare, Livy. To proclaim a holy day to be kept. Cooper. The MS. reads to Bydde alle days, and has been corrected as above in accordance with A.

⁴ This word is still in use in Lancashire. See Nodal's Glossary (E. Dial. Soc.). In the account of the marriage at Cana, given in Eng. Metrical Homilies, ed. Small, p. 120, l. 18, we are told that

'Seruans wur at this bridale,

That birled win in cuppe and schal.'

and in the Avowynge of King Arthur, Camden Soc., ed. Robson, xlv. 14, at Arthur's feast, 'In bollus birlutte thay the wine.' Manip. Vocab. gives 'to birle, promere, haurire.' The word also occurs in the Ancien Riwle, pp. 114 and 226, and in Wyclif, Jeremiah xxv. 15, 17, and Amos ii. 12. Icel. byrla, A. S. byrtian, to give to drink.

'hanged on þe rode tre Alle bla and bloody;' and in the Romance of Sir Isumbras, l. 311, we are told how the Saracens seized the knight, 'And bett hym tille his rybbis braste, And made his flesche fulle bla.'
The Manip. Vocab. gives 'Blo, blackblew, liuidus,' and Baret translates 'liuidus' by 'he that hath his flesche well beaten and made blacke and blewe.' 'Licor. Blohede.' Medulla. See Jamieson, s. v. Bla. O. H. Ger. blao, blaw, blue, O. Fris. bla, blō, Icel. blár.

To blere one's eye is a common expression in early English for to deceive one; thus Palsgrave gives 'I bleare, I begyle by dissimulacyon;' and the Manip. Vocab. has 'to blirre, fallere.' For instances of this use of the word see Wright's Sevyn Sages, pp. 48, 77, and 100; the Romaunt of the Rose, l. 3912, &c.; Ly Beaus Disconus (in Weber's *Met. ¹ A different version of the second of these two lines is given by Withals in his Dictionary, where it runs 'Dicitur orbatus cecatus, vel viduatus.'

⁵ Omitted in A.: the Latin equivalents being given to Blodeyreñ. 'Vnderstondeð, hwuc was his diete pet dei, ißen ilke blodletunge.' Ancren Riwe, pp. 112, 114. See also ibid., p. 260.

² Ducange gives 'Pola; pertica, vel alius modus agri.' This is of course our perch. The word bode is derived by Diez from a radical bod, which is still found in the Eng. bound. Diez rejects a derivation from the Celtic, but Webster, s. v. Bound, refers inter alia to O. Fr. boude, bodue, L. Lat. bodina, and says, 'cf. Arm. boun, boundary, limit, and bôlen, bôl, a tuft or cluster of trees by which a boundary could be well marked.' Compare also O. Icel. butr, a limit. Cooper renders Limes by 'a bounde or buttyng in fieldes.' In Huloet we find 'Butte of a lande. Jugus, eris;' and in the Manip. Vocab. 'Butte of land. Jugerum,' evidently the same word; cf. to abut. Compare P., But.

³ MS. bibliappa, corrected by A.

⁵ Defined by Halliwell as 'a small boat able to endure a rough sea.' Evidently connected with the preceding. 'Scapha. A shippe boate: a boate made of an whole tree.' Cooper. 'Scapha. A bolle.' Medulla. Cf. the nursery rhyme—

'Three wise men of Gotham Went to sea in a bowl,' &c.

'Fus I lyue lonelees, lyke a luther dogge,

It seems most curious that crepido should be inserted as the equivalent of bordylle house; crepido is a brim or border; according to the Medulla, 'the heyte off an Roff, or off an hyl, or beggar's hous;' whether the compiler of the dictionary fell into the mistake from the similarity of bordylle and border, I do not know, but it seems so. In Wynkyn de Worle's ed. of the Gesta Romanorum (reprinted in my ed. for the E. E. Text Society), Tale No. 37, it is told of one of the sons of an emperor that 'agaynst his faders wyll, he had wedded hymselfe, to a comune woman of the bordell.' See also Early English Poems, ed. ² 'A bottle of hay, manipullus.' Manip. Vocab. Fr. botte, a bundle, bunch; dimin. botel, boteau, a wisp, small bundle; Gael. boiteal, botteau, a bundle of straw or hay. Harrison tells us that Cranmer, from having been a student at a Hall (also called a Hostel) at Oxford, was popularly supposed to have been an ostler, 'and therefore in despite, diuerse hanged up bottles of haie at his gate.' Descript. of England, ed. Furnivall, i. 87. 'Boteler. To bottle or bundle up, to make into bottles or bundles.' Cotgrave. 'Manipulus. A gavel.' Medulla.

Cooper. Baret has 'A great bunch or swelling, gibbus. He that hath a crooked backe, or a bunch in any place of the bodie; that hath the rounde figure of a thing embossed, gibbus.' 'Gibber. That hath a bunch on his brest. Gibbosus. Wennely. Gibbus. A broke bak. In dorso gibbus, in pectore gibber habetur. Struma: genus pectoris, or bolnyng of the brest.' Medulla.

⁷ In Piers Plowman, B-Text, xiv. 19, we read 'Dobet shal beten it and bouken it;' on which see Prof. Skeat's note, in which are cited the following: 'I bucke lynen clothes to scoure off their fylthe and make them whyte, je buc.' Palsgrave. 'Buandière, f. a laundresse or buck-washer.' Cotgrave. In the Unton Inventories, p. 28, is mentioned a Bouckfutt, or washing tub.' In the St. John's College, Cambridge, MS. of De Deguileville's Pilgrimage of the Life of the Manhode, leaf 21 back, we find, 'Of thaym I make a boukyng for to putte in and bouke and wasche alle fylthes.' 'There are in England and Scotland two kinds of hunting dogs, and no where else in the world: the first kind is called ane rache (Scotch), and this is a foot-scenting creature, both of wild beasts, birds, and fishes also, which lie hid among the rocks: the female thereof in England is called a brache. A brach is a mannerly name for all hound-bitches.' Gentleman's Recreation, p. 27. A. S. ræce, M. H. G. brache. 'There be many maner of dogges or houndes to hawke and hunt, as grayhoundes, braches, spanyellis, or suche other, to hunt hert and hynde & other bestes of chace and venery &c. and suche be named gentyll houndes.' Laurens Andrewes, The Noble Lyfe, chap. xxiiij, 'of the dogge,' quoted in Babees Book, ed. Furnivall, p. 109. Brache occurs several times in Shakespeare; see King Lear, i. 4. 108 and iii. 6. 72; 1 Henry IV, iii. 1. 240, &c. 'A brache, canicula.' Manip. Vocab. Palsgrave gives 'Brache, a kynde of hounde, brachet,' and Baret has 'A brache or biche, canicula,' while Huloet mentions 'a brache or lytle hounde.' 'Bracca, a brache, or a bitch, or a beagle.' Florio. 'Brachet, m. a kind of little hound. Brague, m. a kind of short-tayled setting dog; ordinarily spotted, or partie-coloured.' Cotgrave. 'Brachell, s. a dog; properly, one employed to discover or pursue game by the scent.' Jamieson. See Sir Gawayne and the Green Knight, ed. Morris, 1142. On the derivation see Prof. Skeat's Etym. Dict., and cf. Gabriell rache below.

⁸ See Brassure and Braze.

⁹ Judging from the Latin equivalents given for this word the meaning seems to be a catapult or engine of war for shooting stones or arrows. Cooper renders catapulta by 'An ingions of warre to shoote darts and quarels: a kynde of slyng,' and scorpio by 'an instrument of warre like a scorpion that shooteth small arrows or quareilles.' 'Catapulta. An hokyd harwe. Scorptis. A venym arwe.' Medulla. 'Hec catapulta. A brodarw.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab., p. 278.

Idromellum*. Mede.⁷ Medulla. 'A Bragget, drink, promulsis.' Manip. Vocab. The following recipe for making Bragget is given in Cogan's Haven of Health, p. 230: 'Take three or foure gallons of good ale, or more, as you please, two daies or three after it is cleansed, and put it in a pottle by it selfe, then draw forth a pottel thereof, and put to it a quart of good English Hony, and set them ouer the fire in a vessell, and let them boyle fair and softly, and alwaies as any froth ariseth, scumme it away and so clarifie it; and when it is well clarified, take it off the fire, and let it coole, and put thereto of Pepper a peny-worth, Cloves, Mace, Ginger, Nutmegs, Cinamon, of each two penny worth beaten to powder, stir them well together, and set them ouer the fire to boyle againe a while, then being Milke-warme, put it to the rest, and stirre all together, & let it stand two or three daies, and put barme upon it, and drinke it at your pleasure.' In Lancashire Braggat is drunk on Mid-Lent Sunday, which is hence called Braggat Sunday.

'Spised cakes and wafurs worthily

Witthe braggat and methe.'

John Russell's Boke of Nurture, in the Babees Book, ed. Furnivall, p. 55, l. 816. Another recipe for Braggat is as follows: 'Take to x galons of ale, iij pottell of fine wort, and iij quartis of hony, and putt thereto canell 3, iij, peper schort or longo 3, iij, galin-gale 3, j, and clowys 3, j, and gingiver 3, ij.' MS. 14th Century. Taylor, in Drink and Welcome, 1637. A 3, back, says of Braggot, 'This drinke is of a most hot nature, as being compos'd of Spices, and if it once scale the sconce, and enter within the circumclulsion of the Pericranion, it doth much accelerate nature, by whose forcible attraction, and operation, the drinker (by way of distribution) is easily enabled to afford blowes to his brother.'

² In Trevisas's version of Glanville, De Propriet. Rerum, lib. xvii, c. 97. Flax, we are told, after being steeped and dried, is 'bounde in praty nycthes and boundels, and afterward knocked, beaten, and brayed, and carfied, rodded and gnodded, ribbed and hekled, and at the laste sponne.' O. Fr. breier, brehier.

³ Brake* or Brachen appears to have been used for many purposes, for Tusser says—

*Get home with the brake, to brue with and bake, To lie vnder cow, to rot vnder mow,
To couer the shed drie ouer head, To serue to burne, for many a turne.

¹ Apparently an error for Brandych: I know of no instance of the spelling Branych; but the Medulla has 'vibro. To braunchyn, or shakyn.' Cf. also P. Brawndeschyn (braunchyn as man K).

³ Armour for the arms. In Ascham's, Toxophilus (Arber's reprint, pp. 107, 108), we find the following passage: 'Phi. Which be instrumentes [of shotynge]? Tox. Bracer, shotynge-glove, strynge, bowe and shafte . . . A bracer serueth for two causes, one to saue his arm from the stryke of the strynge, and his doublet from wearynge, and the other is, that the strynge glydyng sharpely and quickely of the bracer may make the sharper shoote.' Chaucer, Prologue to Cant. Tales, 111, describing the Yeoman, says—

'Upon his arm he bar a gay bracer,

And by his side a swerd and a bokeler.'

In the Morte Arthure (E. E. Text Soc., ed. Brock), l. 1859, in the fight with the king of Syria, we are told that 'Brasers burnyste briste; in sondyre;' see also l. 4247. Baret gives 'a bracer, brachiale,' and in the Manip. Vocab. we find 'a bracher, brachiale.' 'Brachate. A varbras.' Medulla. 'Brasselet, a bracelet, wristband, or bracer.' Cotgrave. See also Florio, s. v. Bracciale. 'Brachiale. Torques in brachio, dextrale; bracelet.' Ducange. 'Brachiale. A braccelle; also a bracer.' Cooper. See also Brace, above, and P. Warbrace.

Harde and stiffe with many muscles or brawnes of harde and compacte fleash.' Cooper. Chaucer, in the Prologue to the Canterbury Tales, 546, tells us that 'The Mellere was a stout carl for the nones,

Ful big he was of braun, and eek of boones.'

and in the Legende of Goode Women, Dido, l. 145, Eneas is described as of

'a noble visage for the noones,

³ 'A Brizze or Gadbee. Tahon, taon, mouche aux bœufs.' Sherwood. Cotgrave gives 'Tahon, m. A brizze, Brimsee, Gadbee, Dunflie, Oxellie. Tahon marin. The sea brizze; a kind of worm found about some fishes. Tavan de mer. The sea Brizze: resembles a big Cheslop, and hath sixteene feet, each whereof is armed with a hook, or crooked naile: This vermin lodging himselfe under the finnes of the Dolphin, and Tuony &c. afflicts them as much as the land Brizze doth an ox. Bezer. A cow to runne up and downe holding up her taile when the brizze doth sting her. Bezet. Aller à Sainct Bezet. To trot, gad, runne, or wander up and downe, like one that hath a brizze in his taile. Oestre Iunonique. A gad-bee, horse-flie, dunfly, brimsey, brizze.' Halliwell (who has the word misspelt Briefe) gives a quotation from Elyot. Cooper has 'Bruchus. A grasse worine or locuste that hurteth corne, Species est locuste parvum nota.' Asilus, which is given in the Prompt. as the Latin equivalent, is rendered by Cooper, 'A greate flie bitynge beastes; an horse-flie or breese.' In the Reply of Friar Daw Topias (Wright's Political Poems, ii. 54) we read—

'Whan the first angel blew,	Alle thei weren lich horses

¹ Still in common use. A sow is said to 'go to brimme,' when she is sent to the boar. See Ray's Glossary. Cooper gives 'Subo. To grunte as the sowe doth, desyring to haue the boare to doo their kynde. Subatio. The appetite or steeryng to generation in swyne.' 'Subo. To brymmyn as a boore.' Medulla. 'A brymmyn as a bore or a sowe doth, enrouyr.' Palsgrave.

² See note to Brokylle.

³ Jamieson gives 'To birse, birze, brize. To bruise: to push or drive: to press, to squeeze.' 'Briser. To burst, break, bray in pieces; also to plucke, rend, or teare off, or up; also to crush or bruise extreemly.' Cotgrave. The MS. has quassare.

⁶ 'Brod, to prick or poke.' Peacock's Glossary of Manly and Conyngham (E. D. Soc.). Compare our prod. Florio, p. 68, ed. 1611, mentions a kind of nail so called, now known as brads. See also Jamieson, s. v. Icel. broddr, a spike; cf. Swed. brodd, a frost-nail.

⁷ 'Brod. A goad used to drive oxen forward.' Jamieson.

⁹ In the English Metrical Homilies, ed. Small, on p. 120, l. 5, and again on p. 154, l. 12, we have the word brokel, and in each case the Cambridge MS. reads brysell. The Ancien Riwe, p. 164, says, 'Þis bruchele uetles, þet is wummone vleschs. Of þisse bruchele uetles þe apostle seið: "Habemus thesaurum in istis vasis fictilibus." . . . þis bruchele uetles is bruchelure þene beo eni gles,' &c. Harrison, in his Description of England (New Shakspeare Society, ed. Furnivall), i. 340-1, says that 'of all oke growing in England, the parke oke is the softest, and far more spalt and brickle than the hedge oke.' Elyot, s. v. Aloe, gives 'brokle, brittle,' and Huloet has 'Brokell, rubbish. In the Manip. Vocab. we find 'Bricklo, fragilis,' and this form still survives in the north. To Medulla gives 'Fracticus, Brekil. Fragilis. Freel, or brekil.' See Jamieson, s. v. Brukyl, Brickla.

Introduction of Knowledge, ed. Furnivall, pp. 166, 167. In his note on this passage Mr. Furnivall quotes a passage from Topesell's History of Four-footed Beasts: 'Of the Vulgar Bugil. A Bugil is called in Latine, Bubalus, and Buffalus; in French, Beufle; in Spanish, Bufano; in German, Buffel, &c. See Maundeville, p. 259, and Holinshed, Hist. Scotland, p. 17.

² 'Bullhead, the fish, Miller's thumb.' Cotgrave gives 'Asne, m. an asse; also a little fish with a great head, called a Bull-head, or Miller's thumb.' According to Cooper Capito is a 'coddefishe.' The term is still in common use in the North for a tad-pole, in which sense it also occurs in Cotgrave: 'Cavesot. A Pole-head, or Bull-head; the little vermine, whereof toads and frogs do come.' See also ibid., s. v. Testard. 'Hic nullus, A^{ce}, a bulhyd.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab., p. 253.

⁴ In the Treatise of Walter de Bibbesworth (13th century), Wright's Volume of Vocabularies, p. 155, is mentioned 'a bolenge' or bulting-clot, the glossary continuing—

'Per bolenger (bultingge) est ceveré La flur e le furfre (of bren) demoré.' And in Kennett's Antiquities of Ambrosden, a 'bultre-cloth.' The mediæval Latin name for the implement was 'toratantara' (see Elfric's A. S. Glossary), from the peculiar noise made by it when at work; a word borrowed from Ennius, as signifying the sound of a trumpet, in Priscian, bk. viii. A portable boulter was called a 'tiffany.' Bultellus occurs in the Liber Custumarum, p. 106. 'Bolting Cloth, a cloth used for sifting meal in mills. In 1534, the Guild of the Blessed Virgin Mary of Boston possessed 'a bultyng pipe covered with a yearde of canvesse,' and also 'ij bultyng clothes.' Peacock, English Church Furniture, p. 189, quoted in Peacock's Glossary of Manley &c., E. D. Soc. In the Unton Inventories, p. 29, occurs, 'in the Boultryng house, one dough trough, ij bolting wittches' (hutches), i.e. vessels into which meal is sifted. 'Boltings, the coarse meal separated from the flour.' Peacock's Glossary. See also Paston Letters, iii. 419. The word came to be used metaphorically as in the phrase 'to bould out the truth,' i.e. to sift the matter thoroughly and ascertain the truth. Thus in Tusser, Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandrie (E. Dial. Soc., ed. Herrtage, p. 152)—

'If truth were truly bolted out, As touching thrift, I stand in doubt If men were best to wive.'

'Boultryng clothe or bultre, bluteau. Boultryng tubbe, husche a bluter.' Palsgrave. 'Pistores habent servos qui politrudant farinam grossam cum polentrudio delicato . . . ⁸ See his duties &c. described in the Boke of Curtasye, printed in the Babees Boko, ed. Furnivall, p. 190, and also at p. 152. The Middle English form was boteler, botler, as in Wyclif, Genesis xl. 1, 2. Duncange gives the form buttelarius as occurring in the Laws of Malcolm II of Scotland, c. 6, § 5. The word is derived from the Norm. Fr. butuiller from L. Lat. bota, or butta, a butt, or large vessel of wine, of which the buticulatorius (bouteiller, or butler) of the early French kings had charge. So the botiler of the English kings took prisage of the wines imported, one cask from before the mast, and one from behind. Butt in later times meant a measure of 126 gallons, but originally it was synonymous with dolium or tun. Bouteille is a diminutive from butta; and the 'buttery' is the place where the butte were kept.

¹ Compare Knoppe of a scho.² This appears to mean a pruning-knife. Cotgrave gives Boter, to prune or cut off the superfluous branches of a tree. Scalprum, according to Cooper, is 'a shauynge knife; a knife to cutte vines,' and according to the Medulla 'a penne knyf.'³ 'Myrdrumnyl, or a buture.' Ortus. The bittern is still known as a 'Butter-bump,' or a 'mire-drum,' in the north of England. In the Nominale (Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 220) it is called 'butture,' other forms of which were bitter, bittor, and bittour. In the Liber Custumarum we find, pp. 304-6, the form butor, and on p. 82, butore. Bitter occurs in Middleton's Works, v. 289, and in the Babees Book, p. 37, amongst other birds are mentioned the 'bustard, betoure and shovelere,' a form of the name which also occurs on p. 49, l. 696, and p. 27, l. 421. In the Boke of Keruyng, printed in the same volume, p. 162, are given directions for the carving of a 'bytturre.' Five herons and bitors are mentioned amongst the poultry consumed at a feast, temp. Richard II, Antiq. Report, i. p. 78. 'Bernakes and botures in baterde dysches.' Morte Arthure, ed. Brock, 189. 'Hearon, Byttour, Shovelar, being yong and fat, be lightlier digested than the crane, and be bittour sooner then the Hearon.' Sir T. Elyot, Castell of Health, leaf 31. 'Galerand, the fowle tearmed a bittor. Butor, a bittor.' Cotgrave. The bittern is said to make its peculiar noise, which is called bumbling, and from which it derives its second name, by thrusting its bill into the mud and blowing. To this Chaucer refers in the Prologue to the Wyf of Bath, 116—

'As a bytoure bumblith in the myre,

She layde hir mouthe unto the water doun.'

In the Nominale (Wright's Vol. of Vocab., p. 219) the word canaria (probably for senaria = a six-year-old sheep) is explained as 'Anglice, a cad.' ¹ A.S. ceaf, chaff. Hampole, Pricke of Conscience, 3148, says—

'als fyre þat caffē son may bryn, gold may melt þat es long þar-in.'

Chaucer, Man of Law's Tale, l. 701, has—

'Me lust not of the caf ne of the stree,
Maken so longe a tale as of the corn.'

See Bariycaffē, above.

² Tourte. A great loafe of household or browne bread (called so in Lionnois and Dauphiné). Tourteau. A cake (commonly made in haste, and of lesse compasse than the gastean); also a little loafe of household or browne bread; also a Pancake. Cotgrave.

³ Palgrave gives 'Chyueryng as one dothe for colde. In an axes or otherwise, frilleux. Ague, axes, fyreure.' See also Aixes. Axes or Axes is from Lat. accessum, through Fr. acce, and is in no way connected with A.S. æce. Originally meaning an approach or coming on of anything, it at an early period came to be specially applied to an approach or sudden fit of illness: thus Chaucer has, 'upon him he had an hote accesse.' Black Knight, l. 136, and Caxton, 'fyl into a sekenes of feures or accesse.' Paris & Vienne, p. 25.

⁵ Lebes. A caudron to boyle in; a kettle. Cooper. Enium is of course for aheneum or aeneum, a vessel of brass.

⁶ Chou. The herbe Cole, or Coleworts. Cotgrave. See Jamieson, s. v. Kail.

'Quils he was þis cale gaderand, And stanged Jam in þe hand.'

A nedder stert vte of þe sand

⁷ Olus. A courte. Medulla.

⁸ Magutus. A col stook. Medulla. 'Magudaris. A kinde of the hearbe Laserpitium; after other onely the stalke of it; after some the roote.' Cooper. In Skelton's Why Come ye Nat to Court? 350, we read—

'Nat worth a shyttel-cocke,

Nat worth a sowre calstocke.'

² That is to call back a hawk from his prey by showing him food. The Ortus Vocab. gives 'Stupo: to call a hawke with meat.' It appears to be a word coined to represent the English stoop, for the only meaning assigned to stupare in the dictionaries is 'to shut up in a bath;' and so Cotgrave, 'Estouper. To stop, to close; to shut or make up.' This meaning also appears in the Ortus, for it continues, 'vel aliquid stupa obturare.' To stoop or stoup was the regular term in falconry for a hawk swooping down on its prey: thus Ben Jonson, Alchemist, v. 3, has, 'Here stands my dove; stoop at here, if you dare.' See also Spenser, Faery Queene, I. xi. 18.

³ 'Caltropes used in warre, to pricke horses fecte; they be made so with foure pricks of yron, that which way soeuer they be cast, one pike standeth up. Tribuli.' Baret. See also Florio, s. v. Tribolo, and Prof. Skeat's exhaustive note on the word in Piers Plowman, C. xxi. 296. 'Hamus. An hook, or an hole of a net, or a mayl of an haburion, or a caltrappe. Pelica. A fettere, or a snare.' Medulla. 'A forest uol of pyeues an of colketreppen.' Ayenbite of Inwytt, ed. Morris, p. 131. Caxton, Faytes of Armes, pt. ii. ch. xiv. p. 119, mentions amongst the implements of war 'sharp hokes and pynnes of yron that men calle caltrappes.' 'Caltropes, engines of warre sowne abroad to wynde horse & man by the legges. Spara.' Huloet. 'The felde was strowed full of caltrappes. Locus pugnae muricibus erat instratus.' Horman.

⁶ 'Hypapanti. Barbare ex Græc. ἵππαρῆς, festum Purificationis Beate Marie; la fête de la Présentation au temple, le 2 février.' Ducange. 'Hoc ipopanti. Candylmes.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 229. The Ortus explains ipopanti by 'obuiatio vel occursum domini, ab ipsa græce, quod latine dicitur vic, et anti, quod est contra: anglice, the feast of candelmas, or metynge of cundelles.'

⁷ 'Candel shears. Snufflers.' Jamieson. 'Emunctorium. A snuffynge yron.' Ortus Vocab. In the 'Boke of Curtasye' (Sloane MS. 1986) pr. in the Babes Boke, ed. Furnivall, p. 205, the following description of snufflers is given—

'Fe snof [the Chandeler] close away Fe sesours ben schort & rownde y-close,
With close sesours as I þow say; With plate of irne vp-on base.'

'Emunctorium: ferrum cum quo candela emungitur.' Medulla. Wyclif, Exodus xxv. 38, renders emunctoria by 'candelquenchers,' and cambuca by 'snoffes' [snottis in Purvey].

² Said of vinegar when containing mould, or turned sour. Similarly in the version of Beza's Sum of the Christian Faith, by R. Fyll, Lond. 1572, l. 134, we find—'It is meruile that they [the Priests] doe not reserue the wine as well as the breade, for the one is as precious as the other. It were out of order to saye they feare the wine will eger, or waxe palled, for they hold that it is no more wine.' See P. Eger. 'Acor: canyunge of ale.' Ortus Vocab.

³ 'Canelle, our moderne Cannell or Cinnamon.' Cotgrave. 'And the Lord spak to Moyses, seiynge, Tak to thee swete smellynge thingis . . . the half of the canel [cinna-momi].' Wyclif, Exodus xxx. 23. 'I ha sprengd my liggng place with myrre, and aloes, and canell;' ibid. Proverbs vii. 17. See also Romaunt of the Rose, p. 58, 'canelle, and setewale of prys.' In Trevisa's Higden, i. 99, we are told that 'in Arabia is store mir and canel.' In John Russell's Boke of Nurture (pr. in the Babees Book, ed. Furnivall), p. 11, 'Synamone, Canelle, red wyne hoot & drye in þeir doynge,' are mentioned amongst the ingredients of Ypocras. Is the name derived from its tube-like stalk? Canel also occurs in the Recipe for Chaudon sau; of Swannes, given in Harl. MS. 1735, l. 18. See note to Chawdewayfi. 'Cinamomum. Canel.' Medulla. See also Cinamome. 'Canel, spyce, or tre so called. Amomum.' Huloet. 'Canele & giuguere & licoriz.' Lazamon, l. 17,744.

⁴ Chaucer, in the Knight's Tale, l. 2150, says that—

'Nature hath nat take his bygynnyng
Of no partye ne cantel of a thing,
But of a thing that parfyt is and stable.'

Shakspeare also uses the word—

'See, how this River comes me cranking in,
And cuts me from the best of all my land,
A huge halfe moone, a monstrous cantle out.'

1st Hen. IV., III. i. 98.

And also in Ant. & Cleop. III. x. 4. According to Kennett MS. 38, Cantelle means 'any indefinite number or dimension': thus in MS. Cantab. FF. ii. 38, l. 123 (quoted by Halliwell) we read—

'And a cantell of hys schylde Flewe fro hym ynto the fylde.'

Burguy gives 'Chantel, cantel, coln, quartier, moreau, chanteau.' 'Minutal. A cantyl of bred.' Medulla. Compare P. 'Partyn, cantyn, or delyn, parciour.'

⁵ 'Capyl, Capul. s. A horse or mare.' Jamieson. 'Caballus. A horse; a caple.' Cooper. From a passage in Rauf Coilgear, E. E. Text Society, ed. Murray, a 'Capylle' appears to be properly applied to a cart-horse, as distinguished from a 'coursour,' a charger or saddle-horse. Rauf on his arrival home orders 'twa knaifs'

'The ane of 30w my Capill ta.

The vther his [King Charles'] Coursour alsua.' P. 6, l. 114.

² 'The band of leather or wood through which the middle-band passes loosely. There is one cap at the end of the hand-staff, generally made of wood, and another at the end of the swingel, made of leather.' Halliwell in v. See Flayle, below.

⁴ 'Cardes or wool combes Hani vel Hami, pectines.' Baret. 'Cardes. Cards for wooll, &c, working cards. Cardier. A card-maker.' Cotgrave.

⁶ 'Rusticus. An uplandman.' Wright's Vol. Vocab. p. 182. 'Rusticus. A charle.' Medulla. 'A carle; Rusticus.' Manip. Vocab.

⁸ A plate of iron. Cotgrave gives 'Happe. f. A claspe, or the hooke of a claspe; or a hooke to claspe with; also the clowt, or band of iron thats nailed upon the arme, or end of an axletree, and keeps it from being worne by the often turning of the nave (of a wheele).' This appears from the definition of crusta given by Cooper, 'bullions or ornamentes that may be taken off,' to be the meaning in the present instance, but a cart-band also signifies the tire of a wheel. Cotgrave has 'Bande. The streak of a wheele,' and Elyot, Dict. 1559, gives 'Absis. The strake of a cart whele, wherein the spokes bee sette: victus. A hoope or strake of a carte.' W. de Biblesworth in naming the parts of a cart speaks of les bendes de les roes, which is rendered in the gloss 'the carte-bondes.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 167. 'Bande. A welt or gard; the streak of a cart wheel.' Cotgrave. See also Clowte of yren, and cf. Copbande.

⁴ 'Cat-tails. The heads of the great bulrush.' Peacock's Glossary of Manley, &c. 'Lanugo. The softe heares or mossiness in fruites and herbes, as in clarie, &c.' Cooper. Jamieson says, 'Cats-Tails, s. pl. Hares-tail-rush, Eriophorum vaginatum Linn. also called Canna-down, Cat-tails.' Lyte, Dodoens, p. 512, says that the 'downe or cotton of this plant is so fine, that in some countries they fill quishions and beddes with it.' He adds, 'Turner calleth it in Englishe, Reed Mace, and Cattes tayle: to the which we may ioyn others, as Water Torche, Marche Betill, or Pestill, and Dunche downe, bycause the downe of this herbe will cause one to be deafe, if it happen to fall in to the eares. . . . ⁴ This word does not appear again either under C or S. It was a measure taken from the top of the extended thumb to the utmost part of the palm, generally considered as half a foot. Ray in his Gloss. of North Country Words gives 'Shafman, Shafnet, Shaftment, sb. the measure of the fist with the thumb set up; ab A. S. scaft-mund, i. e. semipes.' According to Florio, p. 414, it means 'a certaine rate of clothe that is given above measure, which drapers call a handfull or shaftman.' In the Morte Arthure, E. E. Text Soc. ed. Brock, in the account of the fight between Sir Gawaine, and Sir Priamus, we are told—

'*Illustrat tenebras radians Carbunculus auri

The same supposed property of the stone is referred to in The Myroure of Our Lady, E. E. Text Society, ed. Blunt, p. 175, where we read:—'There is a precyous stone that is called

³ The Constellation Ursa Major. Böotes was called either Wagoner to Charles' Wain or Keeper to the Great Bear (arctophylax), according to the name given to the chief northern group of fixed stars. (See Barrewarde ante.) Cooper gives 'Plastrum. Charles Wayne, nigh the North Pole.' The word occurs also in Gawin Douglas, and in the Medulla we find 'Arcophilaxe (sic). The carle wensterre. Arturus: quoddam signum celeste: anglice, A carwynnesterre.' Withals mentions 'Charles Waine. Vra minor, Cynosura,' and 'A starre that followeth Charles waine. Bootes.' Jamieson gives 'Charlewan' and 'Charlewaigne.' Compare Spenser, Faery Queene, I. ii. l. A.S. carleweden. See also Cotgrave s. v. Boote. The idea that Charles' Wain is a corruption of Choles or Churla Wain is a complete error. The Charles is not in any way connected with the A. S. ceorl or any of its later forms, but refers to the Emperor Charles, the Charlemagne of romance, who, as Spenser tells us, in the Tears of the Muses, was placed by Calliope 'amongst the starris heauen,' and who was addressed by the priests of Aix-la-Chapelle as 'Rex mundi triumphator, Jesu Christi conregnator.' The Woden's Wain of the North became the Charles' Wain of the Teutons. Holland, in his trans. of Suetonius, p. 74, speaks of the 'starres of the celestial beare,' the marginal note being 'Charlemaine his waine,' and in Trevisa's trans. of Bartholomewus de Proprietatibus Rerum, viii. 35, we are told that 'Arcturus is comynly clepid in Englis Charlemaynes wayne.'

⁵ Cotgrave gives 'Pisse-chaude. A burnt Pisse; also the Venerian flux; the Gonorrhoea, or contagious running.' The Ortus curiously explains 'Stranguria: as the colde pyssye; difficultas urine quam guttatim micturiunt.' 'A recipe for the cure of Chawdepys, or strangury, is given in MS. Lincoln. Med. fo. 298.' Halliwell. 'Stranguria, otherwise called in Latine stillecidium, & of our old farriers (according to the French name) choudepis, is when the horse is provoked to stale often, & voideth nothing but a few drops—which cometh, as the physitians say, either through the sharpness of the urine, or by some ulceration of the bladder, or else by means of some apostume in the liver or kidnies.' Topsell, Hist. of Four-footed Beasts, ed. Rowland, 1673, p. 304. I know of no other instance of the word except in the curious O. Fr. poem 'Des xxiii Manières de Vilains,' Paris, 1833, ed. Franc. Michel, p. 13, where we read—

'Si aient plenté de grume, Plenté de frièvre et de gaunisse!
 Et si aient le chade-pisse,

⁴ 'Intercapedo, Cic. A space or pause: a space of time or place betwene.' Cooper. 'Chaumpe' is the word always used in the marginal directions for the illuminator of the Corpus (Oxford) MS. of the Canterbury Tales, when a small initial is to be made. 'Vynet' (our 'vignette') is used for the large letters. An example may be seen at the beginning of several of the letters in the present work. The scribe has left a space to be filled in by the illuminator with the proper capital letter, which for the guidance of the latter is written small. It is not an unusual thing to find these chaumpes in MSS. unfilled in. The Ortus explains intercapedo as 'distantia localis et inter duas parietes.' See an example in Addit. 22,556 in Mr. Way's Intro. p. xl.

The Ortus explains mutatorium as 'vestis preciosa pro qua sumenda alia mutatur: anglice, a precyous clothyng, a chaungyng clothe, or a holy daye clothe, et habetur quarto libro regum, v. cap.' (2 Kings, v. 22,) in the Vulgate, vestes mutatorias duplices.

Cooper renders Lactes by 'the small guttes.' In Wright's Vol. of Vocab. 222, we have 'Cheslepe, cheese lip.' The word is compounded of A. S. leap, a basket; see P. Berynge-lepe and Fysche-leep. ⁴ The original meaning of 'chimney' was a 'fireplace,' as in the following—

'Damesele, loke ther be,
A flayre in the chymene,
Fagattus of fyre tre
That fetchyd was zere.'

Sir Degrevant, Thornton Rom. p. 234.

German, klapper, klepper. 'Batillum, a clakke.' Wright's Vocab. p. 180.

⁶ Used here doubtless in the sense of making clear or fining liquids; cf. Clere as ale or wyne, below. The Author of the Catholicon nowhere uses Clarus in the sense of noble, glorious, but Wyclif, John xii. 23, has, 'Fadir, clarifste thi name,' and Halliwell quotes from MS. Camb. Furnivall, i. 352, 'congealed into clots of hard stone,' Caxton speaking of the hot wells of England says—'The maistresse of thilke welles is the grete spirite of Minerua. In her hous the fyre endureth alway that neuer chaungeth in to ashes, but there the fyre slaketh hit chaungeth in to stone clottes.' Descript. of Britain, 1480, p. 6. ¹ The author of the Ancren Riwe tells us, p. 256, that 'a lute [small] clut mei lod-lichen swuðe a muchel ihol peche'; and again, on p. 260, our lord is described as 'mid clutes biwraðed,' wrapped in clouts or rags. In Havelok, Quin first binds Havelok and then gags him with a 'keuel [gag] of clutes'; and in Sir Ferumbras, l. 2747, Guy of Burgundy is blindfolded with a 'cloute.' A. S. clut.

² An iron plate. Amongst the implements, &c., necessary to the farmer, Tusser enumerates a 'strong exeltred cart, that is clouted and shod'; and—

'Two ploughs and a plough chein, ij culters, iij shares,
 With ground cloutes and side cloutes, for soile that so tares.'

Five Hundred Points, &c. p. 36.

In the Paston Letters, ed. Gairdner, ii. 125, we have 'clot shon,' i. e. shoes tipped with iron. Cooper renders Crusta by 'bullions or ornaments of plate that may be taken off.' See also Carte bande and Cop bande.

³ See William of Palerne, l. 14, where the cowherd whose dog discovers William is described as sitting 'cloutland kyndely his schon.' A. S. clutian. Wyclif, Wks. ed. Arnold, i. p. 4, says 'Anticristis lawe, cloutid of many, is full of errors'; and he renders Mark i. 19 by 'he say James . . . and Joon . . . in the boots makynge, either cloutynge nettis.'

⁴ In Wyclif's translation of Isaiah xxxv. 3, this word is used—'Comfort ye clumsid, ether comelid hondis, and make ye strong feeble knees,' and again in Jeremiah vi. 24, 'oure hondis ben aclumsid,' [dissolutæ sunt manus nostræ], where apparently it has the meaning of numbed, and hence useless, weak. So again in Purvey's version of Zephaniah iii. 16, 'Jerusalem, nyle thou drede; Sion thin hondis be not clumsid' [non dissolvantur manus tuæ]; where other versions read 'aclumsid' and 'acumbled.' Holland in his trans. of Livy, Bk. xxi. c. 56, p. 425, renders torpentes gelu by 'so clumsie & frozen'; and in the Gospel of Nichodemus, lf. 213, we read 'we er clomsed gret and smalle.' See also E. Eng. Poems, ed. 1862, p. 123. Ray in his Glossary of North Country Words gives 'Clumps, clumpst, idle, lazy, unhandy; ineptus,' and refers to Skinner, who, in his Etymologicon says it is a word 'agro Lincolnensi usitatissima.' Clumsome or Classome is still in use about Whitby. In P. Plowman, B. xiv. 50, we read—on which see Prof. Skeat's note. 'Entombi. Stonied, benumbed, clumpse, asleep. Havi de froid. Stiff, clumpse, benumbed.' Cotgrave. See also ibid. Destombi.

'Addrus & ypotamus & othure ille wormus, & careful cocodrillus that the king lette.'

'Cockatryce, whyche is a Serpente, called the kynge of serpentes, whose nature is to kyll wyth hysynge onelye. Basiliscus Regulus.' Huloet. So Trevisa, in his trans. of Higden i. 159, says 'Basiliscus is kynge of serpentes þat wiþ smyl and sijt sleep beestes and foules.' 'Hic cocodrillus, A cocadrille.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 220. The Low Latin cocodrillus, itself a corruption from crocodilus, was still further corrupted into cocatrix, whence our cockatrice. The basilisk was supposed to have the property of infecting the air with its venom so that no other creature could live near it, and also of killing men by a mere look. In the Gesta Roman. chap. 57, is an account of one which in this way destroyed a large number of the soldiers of Alexander, and of the means adopted to destroy the monster. See a full description in Swan's Speculum Mundi, 1685, chap. ix. p. 486. Alexander Neckham, De Naturis Rerum, ed. Wright, p. 198, quotes an account of the creature from Solinus, Polyhist. cap. xxvii. 50, in which it is said to retain its fatal qualities even after death, and to be invulnerable to the attack of any animal except the weasel. Cocodrille occurs in the Wyclifite version of Leviticus xi. 29, and Trevisa in his trans. of Higden i. 151, says 'pere beep cocodrilly and hippotauri [cocodrilli et hippotauri.]' See also K. 'Cercical, id est puluinar aureale, anglice, a pyllowe, or a codde.' Ortus. The Manip. ⁸ Panis de Coket is mentioned in a MS. of Jesus Coll. Oxford, I Arch. i. 29, leaf 268, as being slightly inferior to wastel bread. 'A coket was a kind of seal (see Liber Albus, p. 45, and Madox, Hist. Excheq. i. p. 783), and as bread in London was sealed with the baker's seal, after inspection by the Alderman, it is not improbable that this bread thence had its name; though at some periods certainly, other kinds of bread, distinguished in name from Cocket-bread were sealed as well. . . . Cocket-bread was most used probably by the middle classes; that of inferior quality being trete or tourte, while simnel and wastel were finer in quality and higher in price.' ³ Men were divided into four classes, according to their humours. Laurens Andrewe says, in his Noble Lyfe, 'And the bodij of man is made of many diuers sortes of lymmes as senewes, vaynes, fatte, flesshe & skynne. And also of the foure moistours, as sanguyne, flematyke, coleryke & melancoly.' (fol. a iv. back. col. 2). Men die, he says, in three ways: 1. by one of the four elements of which they are made, overcoming the others; 2. by humidum radicale, or 'naturall moystour,' forsaking them; 3. by wounds—the coleryke commeth oftentimes to dethe be accedentall maner through his tastines, for he is of nature hot and drye.' So also John Russell in his Boke of Nurture (Babees Boke, p. 53), says—

Fallynge at veryance with felow and fere.

Gawin Douglas, Eneados, x. l. 385.

* A rabbit.

'He went and fett conynge thre

Alle baken welle in a pasty.' MS. Cantab. Ff. v. 48, leaf 50. Wyclif has coning in Leviticus xi. 5, where the A. V. reads coney. In William of Palerne, ed. Skeat, 182, we read, 'He com him-self y-charged wip conyng & hares.' Stowe mentions a locality (referred to in the Liber Custumarum, p. 229), in the vicinity of the Poultry, in the city of London, called Conehop, from a sign of three rabbits over a poulterer's stall at the end of the lane. In the Liber Cust. p. 344, is also mentioned a 'Conichepyng', or rabbit-market, in the neighbourhood of St. Pauls. 'Connin, counil. A conny, a rabbit,' Cotgrave. 'Cuniculus. A cunnie.' Cooper. See also Liber Albus, pp. 712, 717, and 592. This word was employed in various forms in Early English; 'conyng rosted,' 'copull conyng' occur in Purveyance made for King Richard II. Antiq. Repert. i. 73. In Sir Degrevant (Thornton Romances, ed. Halliwell), l. 1405, we find 'Ffat conynge and newe.'

* 'This abbot, which that was an holy man This yonge childe to conoure he bigan.'
As monkes been, or elles oughten be, Chancer, Priores Tale, 1832.
'I conoure pee bi God, þat þou tourmente me not.' Wyclif, Mark v. 7. In Lancellet's History of the Holy Grail, xvi. 306, ed. Furnivall, we read how Joseph drove the devil out of the idols—

'To an ymage there gan he gon And the devel there anon forth ryht
That stood in the temple vpon the chief awter Out of the ymage issued in al here silt.'

And him anon conoured there, See also l. 387.

² Under the various forms of 'cuntek,' 'contek,' 'conteke,' 'conteeck,' and 'contake,' this word occurs frequently in early English. In Langtoft's Chronicle, p. 328, we find 'contekour,' a quarrelsome person, whence probably our word cantankerous. 'The keneste in contek that vndir Criste lenges,' Morte Arthure, 2721. 'There was conteke fulle kene, and crackynge of chippys,' ibid. 3669. 'Also stryues, contekis & debatis ben vsed in oure lond, for lordis stryuen wip here tenauntis to brynge hem in thralldom,' Wyclif, Select Works, E. E. Text Soc. ed. Mathew, p. 234.

³ 'Acresté, Crested, copped,' Cotgrave. A. S. cop. Chaucer uses the word simply as a top when he says of the Miller that 'Upon the cop right of his nose he hade a werte,' C. T. Prologue, 554.

⁴ 'Carchesium; a standing cuppe with handles,' Cooper.

⁶ The Kennett MS. has 'Coprose, copperas, vitriol;' and the Manip. Vocab. 'Coperonse, chalcantum.' Baret gives 'Coperas or vitriol, chalcantum.'

¹ Aluta. Softe leather tawed,' Cooper. It was probably similar to the modern morocco leather. The duty is stated in the Liber Albus, p. 231, as 'la dozen de cordewayne j denier.' See also the 'Ordinationes Alutiariorum,' or Ordinances of Tanners, ibid. p. 732. The word still survives in 'Cordwainer's Ward,' near St. Paul's, the name of which was derived from the Cordwainers or Shoe-makers settled in that district. 'Aluta. Cordewane. Alutarius. A cordwanere.' Medulla. In the Libel of English Policy, Wright's Political Poems, Rolls Series, ii. 163, amongst the commodities of 'Portyngale' are mentioned

'Ffygues, reysyns, hony, and cordeweyne.'

² Alexander Neckham, De Naturis Rerum, p. 476, assigns the following virtues to Coriander—

'Et triduana febris eget auxilio coriandri,
Et gemini testes dum tumor ambit eos,
Lumbricos pellit, tinea delet, sacer ignis,
Quam pestem metuit Gallia, cedit ei.'

See also Coliandyr.

³ This seems to be an error for Carsay or Corsy, which are inserted in their proper places.

⁴ Chaucer, Parlement of Foules, 362, speaks of 'the hote cormeraunt of glotenye.'

'þe cali; and þe pateyn ok, þe corporaus, þe messe-gere.'

and in Guy of Warwick, Met. Romances, ed. Ellis, ii. p. 77, we read—

'After the relics they send The corporas, and the mass-gear.'

⁶ Corporail. The corporall: the fine linnen wherein the Sacrament is put.' Cotgrave. In the Liber Albus, pp. 125, 126, occurs the phrase—'corporaliter jurare,' to take an oath while touching the corporale or cloth which covered the sacred elements. It also occurs in the Act 35 Eliz. c. 1, § 2. Dame Eliz. Browne in her Will, Paston Letters, iii. 465, mentions 'ij corporas casys of cloth of gold; j olde vestment,' &c. 'After þe passoun of Alisaundre þe pope, Sixtus was pope almost elevene yere: he ordeyned þat trisagium, þat is, "Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus," shulde be songe at masse, and þat þe corporas schulde nougt be of silk noþer sendel, but clene linnen cloþ nougt i-dyed.' Trevisa's Higden, v. 11.

⁸ Courroyeur. A currier of leather. Courroyer. To currey; tew, or dresse, leather.' Cotgrave. In the Liber Albus, 738, is mentioned the 'Ordinatio misterie de Correours,' or Guild of Curriers. 'Coriarius. A tanner.' Cooper. Wyclif, in Acts ix, 10, speaks of 'Simon the coriour,' the Vulgate reading being coriarius. 'He is a corier of crafte. Pellifex est vel coriarius professione.' Horman.

'Bring me twelve freres, wit ye why? Your noble confessour, her God him blesse!

For threthene is a covent as I gesse; Schal parfourn up the nombre of this covent.'

On the same point Mr. Wright quotes from Thora, Decem Scriptores, col. 1807: 'Anno Domini M.C.XLVI. iste Hugo reparavit antiquum numerum monachorum istius monasterii, et erant lx. monachi professi præter abbatem, quinque conventus in universo.'

⁵ Fescennine means of, or belonging to, the town of Fescennia in Etruria; from which place certain sportive, but coarse songs which, with the Romans, were sung at weddings, took their name. Hence the term became an epithet for coarse and rude jests of any kind. In the present instance it seems to be equivalent to nursery rhymes. Cf. Lulay, poet, and P. Lullyng Songes. ⁶ 'Fissch to lyue in þe flode, and in þe fyre þe crykat.' P. Plowman, B. Text, xiv. 42. There was a popular belief that the cricket lived in the fire, arising probably from two causes, firstly, its partiality for the hearth; and secondly, a confusion between it and the salamander, the Latin name of the former being gryllus, and of the latter grylio. See Philip de Thaan's Bestiary, s. v. Grylio; Wright's Popular Treatises on Science, p. 97. and the Ayenbite of Inwyrt, ed. Morris, p. 167. 'Grillus. A worm which liveth in the fire, as big as a fly. Salamandra. A beast in shape like a Lizard, full of spots; being in the fire it quencheth it, and is not burnt.' Gouldman. 'Salamandra. A ceket.' *Three kinds of oil were used in the Catholic Church—oleum sanctum, oleum chrismatis, and oleum infirmorum. With the first, called in the above extract from Myrc, creme, the child was anointed on the breast and between the shoulders, before it was plunged in the font or sprinkled with water. After the baptism proper it was anointed on the head with the sign of a cross with the oleum chrismatis or crism. The oleum infirmorum was that used for the purposes of extreme unction. The three oils were kept in separate bottles in a box called a chrismatory, which was in shape somewhat like the Noah's arks given to children to play with. Crisma*. Creem. Medulla. Creame* holy oyle, creme. Palsgrave. See R. de Brunne's Chronicle, ed. Furnivall, p. 530, l. 15, 268. Huloet has 'Mouse called a ranney, blindmouse, or field mouse. Mus areneus, mygala. whose nature is supposed to haue yll fortune, for if it runne ouer a beaste, the same beaste shall be lame in the chyne, and if it byte any thyng then the thyng bytten shall swell and dye, it is also called sorex.'

⁸ The following curious lines on the cries of animals occurs in MS. Harl. 1002, ff. 72:—

At my howse I haue a Jaye,	He can crocun as a froge,
He can make mony diuerse leye;	He can barkun as a dogge,
He can barkyng as a foxe,	He can cheteron as a wrenne,
He can lowe as a noxe,	He can cakelyn as a henne,
He can crecun as a gos,	He can neye as a stede,
He can romy as a nasse in his cracche,	Suche a byrde were wode to fede;

thus rendered into Latin:—'Habeo domi graculum cuius lingua nouit multiplicem notulam; gannit ut vulpes, mugescit ut bos, pipiat ut anca, rudat ut asinus in presipio, coaxat ut rana, latrat ut canis, pipiat ut cestis, gracillat ut gallina, hinnit ut dextorius; talis pullus est nihil cibo condignus.'

⁹ In the Inventory of Sir J. Paston's Plate we find 'one potte callid a crismatorie to put in holy creme and oyle, of silver and gilt, weying j^l.' Paston Letters, iii. 433. See Halliwell s. v. Chrisome; and note to Crema, above. 'Crismarium. Vas in quo sacrum chrisma reponitur. Crismal. Vas ecclesiasticum in quo chrisma, seu sacrum oleum asseruatur, quod ampulla chrismat etiam dicitur.' Ducange.

¹⁰ Chrisome, according to Halliwell, signifies properly the white cloth which is set by the minister of baptism upon the head of a child newly anointed with chrisma after his baptism;

now it is vulgarly taken for the white cloth put about or upon a child newly christened, in token of his baptism, wherewith the women use to shroud the child if dying within the month. The anointing oil was also called chrisom. Thus in Morte Arthure, l. 3435, in the interpretation of the king's dream we read—

‘And synne be corownde kynge, with krysome enoyntede.’

See also ll. 142 and 2447. In the same Romance we find the word used as a verb; thus l. 1051, we read of ‘A cowlefulle cramede of crysmede childe.’ See also ll. 1065 and 3185. ‘Cristaut and crisumte . . . Folut in a fontestone.’ Anturs of Arthur, xviii. 4. Although the same Latin equivalent is given for this word as for the preceding, it is probable that in this case the anointing oil is meant. ‘Crysme for a yong chylde, crismeau.’ Palgrave. See Creme, above, and cf. Cud. Crysmechild occurs in An Old Eng. Misc. ed. Morris, p. 90.

³ In the Romance of Sir Ferumbras, E. E. Text Soc. ed. Herrtage, p. 65, l. 1916, Charlemagne sends a message to the Saracen king, Balan, that he should restore the captive knights, &c., ‘And cristendom scholdest fonge.’ See also Lonelich's Hist. of the Holy Grail, ed. Furnivall, xlvi. 10; lv. 191, &c. Wyclif, Works iii. 285, speaks of the sacrament of ‘cristendom.’

⁵ In P. Plowman, B. Text, v. 582, Piers, in describing the way to Truth, says—

‘Panne shaltow come by a crofte, but come þow nouȝte þere-Inne,

That crofte hat coueyte-nouȝte-mennes-catel-ne-her-wyues—

Ne-none-of-her-seruautes-þat-noȝen-hem-mȝte.’

The word is not uncommon now. Jamieson gives ‘Craft, s. a croft; a piece of ground adjoining a house. Crafter. Crofter, s. One who rents a small piece of land.’ A. S. croft.

⁶ ‘Cima. The toppe of an hearbe.’ Cooper. The phrase ‘crope and roote,’ which we still retain in the inverted order, or as ‘root and branch,’ occurs frequently; see for instance Lonelich's Hist. of the Holy Grail, xvi. 492; xviii. 241; Wright's Political Poems, i. 365, &c. Lyte, Dodoens, p. 270, says that ‘the decoctions of the toppes and croppes of Dill . . . causeth women to haue plentie of milke.’ Hampole, Prieke of Conscience, 663, compares man to a tree ‘of whilk þe crop es turned downward.’ See also P. Plowman, B. xvi. 69, and Cursor Mundi, ed. Morris, pp. 464, l. 8638 and 486, l. 8458. Compare also Top of a tree. A. S. crop.

⁷ In P. Plowman, B. vi. 33, Piers says—

and in the Ancren Riwle, p. 86, the author says that a churl ‘is ase þe wið þot sprutted ut þe bettere þet me hine ofte cropped.’ See also Myre's Duties of a Parish Priest, 1502. O. Icel. kroppa, to pluck. ‘Croppe of. Carpo, Exclso.’ Huloet.

¹ 'Crucifigo. To crucifien or to fliest to cros.' Medulla. The phrase to 'do on the cross' for crucifying, putting to death on the cross, is very common in early English. See for instance Myrc's Instructions to Parish Priests, p. 14, l. 437, where, in a metrical version of the Creed, we find—'Soffrede peyne and passyone, And on þe cros was I-done.' and in Lonelich's Hist. of the Holy Grail, ed. Furnivall, xlix. 313—

'Of a virgine to be born with-owten offense, And sethen on croys i-don.'

'Þey did him vpon the crosse, and spette on his face, and buffetid him.' Gesta Rom., p. 179.

³ In Wiclif's version of the Parable of the Prodigal Son, Luke xv. 25, the elder son when returning home 'herde a symfonye and a croude.' Crowd is still in use in the sense of a fiddle. See Nodal's Glossary of Lancashire.

'The pipe, the tabor, and the trembling croud,

That well agree withouten breach or jar.' Spenser, Epithal. 129. 'A croud (fiddle). Vielle.' Sherwood. In the Harleian MS. trans. of Higden, vol. ii. p. 379, we find, 'a instrumente callede chorus, other a chore, was founde in Grece, of fewe cordes and strynges, whiche is callede now a crouthe or a croude.' Wyclif, Works, ed. Arnold, ii. 73, says 'symphonye and croude weren herd whanne apostlis knewen alle wittis.' See Wedgwood s. v. 'Hic simbolisator, A^{cc}. crowde. Simbolisare, to crowde or scotnyng. Hic corallus, A^{cc}. crowdere. Hec coralla, A^{cc}. crowde.' MS. Reg. 17, cxvii. lf. 43, back. See Lybeaus Disc. l. 137, and Lyric Poetry, ed. Wright, p. 53. It will be seen that Mr. Way has misread the present MS. in his note to this word in the Promptorium.

⁴ 'Fiola. A cruet. Amula. A Fyol or a cruet.' Medulla. 'A cruet, a holie water stocke, Amula.' Baret. In the Inventory of Sir John Fastolf's goods at Caistor, 1459, amongst the contents of the chapel are mentioned 'j. haly water stop with j. sprenkill, and ij. cruettes, weiyng xij. unces.' Paston Letters, ed. Gairdner, i. 470. See also ibid. iii. 270. 'And Ionathas hadde þer a crouette, and fillid hit of that water. . . . Afir this he Rose, & yede, and sawe the secounde water; . . . And he filde a cruet þer with.' Gesta Romanorum, p. 189.

⁵ 'Pedum. A sheepe crooke.' Cooper. 'Cammock. s. A crooked stick.' Jamieson. See also note to Cambake, above.

⁶ 'Crouds. Curds. Crouds & ream. Curds and cream.' Jamieson. In P. Plowman, B. vi. 284, Piers says he has only

'A fewe cruddes and creem & and an hauer cake.'

Baret gives 'To Crud or growe together, coagulare; milke cruddled, gelatum lac.' 'To crud, curd or curdle. Cailler. Curds or curds. Caillé, Caillat.' Sherwood. Lyte, Dodoms, p. 246, says that Garden Mint 'is very good to be applied vnto the breastes that are stretched forth and swollen and full of milke, for it slaketh and softeneth the same, and keepeth the mylke from quarring and crudding in the brest:' and again, p. 719, he tells us that the juice of figs 'turneth milke and causeth it to crudde, and againe it scattereth, or dissolueth, or melteth the clustered cruckte, or milke that is come to a crudde, as vineger doth.'

The Parish of St. Faith in Cryptis, i.e. in the Crypt under the Choir of St. Paul's, was commonly called 'St. Faith in the Crowdes.' See Liber Albus, ed. Riley, p. 556. Withals renders 'Cryptoporticus' by 'a vault or shrouds as under a church, or other place.' In the Pylgrymage of Syr R. as the translation of 'Ne sileas quoniam advena ego sum apud te et peregrinus, sicut omnes patres mei.' In the Cursor Mundi, p. 392, l. 6785, we are told—

'To cumlynges do yee right na suike,

For quillum war yee seluen slike.'

See also Wyclif, Isaiah lii. 4, where it is used as a translation of the Vulgate colonus, as also in Harrison's Description of England, 1587, p. 6, col. 2, where we read that when the Saxons came to England 'within a while these new comlings began to molest the homelings.'

⁶ Accola. A comelyng. Medulla.

⁶ Harrison, i. 156, gives a very full account of the process of malting in his time; the barley, he says, after having been steeped three days and three nights is taken out and laid 'vpon the cleane floore on a round heape, [where] it resteth so vntill it be readie to shoote at the roote ende, which maltsters call comming. When it beginneth therefore to shoot in this manner, they saie it is come, and then forthwith they spread it abroad, first thicke and afterward thinner and thinner vpon the said floore (as it commeth), &c.

Corallism. Barot. Neckham, De Naturis Rerum, p. 469, gives a similar account—

‘Corallus noctis ardet fantasmata, pugnans

Ejus tutela tutus in arma ruit.

Herba tenella ricens, dum crescit Tethys undis,

In lapidem transit sub ditione Jovis.’

Harrison mentions white ‘corall’ as being found on the coasts of England ‘nothing inferiour to that which is founde beyond the sea in the albe, neere to the fall of Tangra, or to the red and blacke.’ Descript. of England, ii. 80.

² Both Coturnix and Ortiz properly mean a quail, and Cooper renders Ortygometra by ‘The captsaine or leader amonge quayles, bigger and blacker than the residue.’ See the directions in Wynkyn de Worde’s Boke of Keruyng (Babees Boke, ed. Furnivall, p. 162), how to ‘vntacke [carve] a curlewe.’ ‘Orniz. A Feasunt.’ Medulla.

³ A courier. The word occurs in this form in the ‘Pilgrimage of the Lyf of the Manhode,’ ed. W. A. Wright, p. 200, where we read—‘Of hire we ten me-mangeres and specially currouers;’ and in P. Plowman, A. xii. 79, we have—‘A currou of our houn.’ In Chaucer’s Game of the Chess, the heading of chapt. viij of the thirti ‘traytte’ is ‘Of messagers currouers, Rybaulles and players at the dyre.’

The Manip. Vocab. gives 'to dadder, trepidare.' Cotgrave has 'Clouer les dents. To gnash the teeth, or to chatter, or didder, like an Ape, that's afraid of blowes. Frisson. ¹ The earliest Northern form of this word is daynteth (see Gesta Romanorum, pp. 368, 373). Prof. Skeat derives it from O. Fr. daintie, Lat. dignitatem. In heaven we are told by Hampole, Pricke of Conscience, 7850—

'Pare es plente of dayntes and delices,' and again— 'Pare es alkyn delyces and eese.' Ibid. 7831.

² Daintith. A dainty.' Jamieson. 'Dilicatezza. Daintethnesse, or delicacie.' Thomas, Ital. Dict. 1550. 'Swa enteris thair daynteis, on deis dicht dayntelie.' Rauf Coilgear, ed. Murray, 191.

'Such land as ye breake up for barlie to sowe
Two earthes at the least er ye sowe it bestowe.'

In Ducange dictarium is explained as 'Opus diei: journée de travail—Jugerum; jornale; journal de terre,' and Cooper renders Jugerum 'As much ground as one yoke of oxen will eare in a daye. It conteyneth in length .240. foote, in breadth .120. foote, which multiplied riseth to .28800. It may be vsed for our acre which conteyneth more, as in breadth fower perches, that is .66. foote, and in length .40. perches that is .660. foote, which riseth in the whole to .43560. foote.' ⁵ 'Roga. A doole.' Medulla. 'A dole, elemosyna distribucio.' Manip. Vocab. The word is still in use. See to Dele, below. In Wright's Political Poems, ii. 220, we find complaints of how the poor were defrauded of their doles:

'The awmencer seyth he cam to late, Of poore men doolys is no sekir date.'

⁷ An abbreviated form of the Latin dominus, which appears also in French dan, Spanish don, Portuguese dom. The O. Fr. form dans, was introduced into English in the fourteenth century. See an account of the word in 'Leaves from a Word-hunter's Note-book,' A. S. Palmer, p. 130. In the Monk's Prologue the Host asking him his name says—

'Whether shall I calle you my lord dan Johan, Or dawn Thomas, or elles dan Albon?'

⁸ Cooper points out the error here committed—'Dacia. A countrey beyonde Hongary, it hath on the north Sarmatia of Europe: on the west the Jazigians of Metanest: on the south Mysiam superiorem, & Dunaw: on the east, the lower Mysiam, & Dunaw: they

'Quen al folc on slep ware,
 Than com his fa, and seu richt thare Darnel, that es an iuel wede;'

and again, p. 145, the master orders his men—

On the derivation of the word see Wedgwood s.v. 'Zizannia. Cockle, or any other corrupte and naughtie weede growyng amonge corne.' Cooper. 'Zizannia. Dravke, or darnel, or cokyl.' Medulla. See also Cokylle, and Drake or Darnylle. 'The name appears to have been variously applied, but usually taken to mean Lolium temulentum L. ² The term daubours occurs in the Liber Custumarum, p. 99, in the sense of layers on, to a framework, of a mixture of straw and mud employed in the construction of fences and house-walls. In Cheshire, according to Mr. Riley, the process is termed nogging (see Cheshire Glossary by Col. Leigh, p. 142). In France the composition is known as torchis, and in Devonshire as cob. The process of daubing is alluded to more than once in our Translation of the Old Testament. See for instance Wyclif's version of Ezekiel xiii. 10, 11. The word, according to Mr. H. Nicol, is from O. Fr. dauber = to plaster, from Latin dealbare = to whiten. Wedgwood derives dawb from dab, 'an imitation of the sound made by throwing down a lump of something moist.' 'Bauge. Dawbing or mortar made of clay and straw.' Cotgrave. In Liber Albus, p. 289, are mentioned 'carpenters, masons, plastrers, daubers, tenters' &c., and in p. 338, persons who paid 'masons, carpenters, daubers, tielleres,' at higher rates than those settled by the Corporation of London, were declared to be guilty of 'maintenance or champettry.' See Dauber in Glossary to Liber Albus, p. 309. 'A Dawber, a pargetter, cementarius.' Baret. 'Cementarius, dawber.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 181. 'Plastrier. A plaisterer, a dawber.' Cotgrave. See also to Dobe, Dober, &c.

³ Compare P. Heer fyrste growynge yn mannys berde. Lanugo. 'Lanugine, the tenderness or downe of a yonge bearde.' Thomas, Ital. Dict. 1550.

⁴ This is the original meaning of the word danger. Thus we read in De Deguileville's Pilgrimage of the Lyf of the Manhode, ed. Wright, p. 82, 'Sufficient he was and mihty to deliuere them plentivowsliche al that hem needede, withoute beeinge in any ootheres daunger,' and again pp. 2 and 63. See Dûcange s. v. Dangerium. 'ȝe polied ofte daunger of swuche oderwhule þet muhte beon eower þrel.' Anceren Riwe, p. 356. William Lomner writing to Sir J. Paston in 1461, says, 'I am gretly yn your danger and dette for my pension.' Paston Letters, ii. 25. Jamieson quotes from Wyntown 'in his daunger,' which he renders 'in his power as a captive.' See also Barbour's Bruce, ed. Skeat, xix. 709, 'Quhill we be out of thair danger,' and see also ii. 435, iii. 43. Hornman says, 'I haue the man in my danger. Habeo hominem mihi obnoxium.' Chaucer, Prologue to Cant. Tales, l. 663, says of the Sompnour, that—

'In daunger hadde he at his owne gise, The yonge gurlis of the diocise.'

O. Fr. danger, dominion, subjection: from Low Lat. dominarius, power. Compare Shakespeare, Merchant of Venice, iv. 1—

'You stand within his danger, do you not?'

Domigerium*. Periculum: danger, dommage—Sub domigerio alicujus aut manu esse, alicui subesse, esse sub illius potestate: être sous la puissance, sous la dépendance de quelqu'un.' D'Arnis. See also R. de Brunne's Chronicle, ed. Furnivall, l. 11824, and the Townley Mysteries, p. 60.

² The term daubours occurs in the Liber Custumarum, p. 99, in the sense of layers on, to a framework, of a mixture of straw and mud, employed in the construction of fences and house-walls. In Cheshire, according to Mr. Riley, the process is termed nogging (see Cheshire Glossary by Col. Leigh, p. 142). In France the composition is known as torchis, and in Devonshire as cob. The process of daubing is alluded to more than once in our Translation of the Old Testament. See for instance Wyclif's version of Ezekiel xiii. 10, 11. The word, according to Mr. H. Nicol, is from O. Fr. dauber = to plaster, from Latin dealbare = to whiten. Wedgwood derives dawb from dab, 'an imitation of the sound made by throwing down a lump of something moist.' 'Bauge. Dawbing or mortar made of clay and straw.' Cotgrave. In Liber Albus, p. 289, are mentioned 'carpenters, masons, plastrers, daubers, tenters' &c., and in p. 338, persons who paid 'masons, carpenters, daubers, tielleres,' at higher rates than those settled by the Corporation of London, were declared to be guilty of 'maintenance or champetry.' See Dauber in Glossary to Liber Albus, p. 309. 'A Dawber, a pargetter, camentarius.' Baret. 'Cementarius, dawber.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 181. 'Plastrier. A plaisterer, a dawber.' ² The term daubours occurs in the Liber Custumarum, p. 99, in the sense of layers on, to a framework, of a mixture of straw and mud, employed in the construction of fences and house-walls. In Cheshire, according to Mr. Riley, the process is termed nogging (see Cheshire Glossary by Col. Leigh, p. 142). In France the composition is known as torchis, and in Devonshire as cob. The process of daubing is alluded to more than once in our Translation of the Old Testament. See for instance Wyclif’s version of Ezekiel xiii. 10, 11. The word, according to Mr. H. Nicol, is from O. Fr. dauber = to plaster, from Latin dealbare = to whiten. Wedgwood derives dawb from dab, ‘an imitation of the sound made by throwing down a lump of something moist.’ ‘Bauge. Dawbing or mortar made of clay and straw.’ Cotgrave. In Liber Albus, p. 289, are mentioned ‘carpenters, masons, plastrers, daubers, tenters’ &c., and in p. 338, persons who paid ‘masons, carpenters, daubers, tielleres,’ at higher rates than those settled by the Corporation of London, were declared to be guilty of ‘maintenance or champetry.’ See Dauber in Glossary to Liber Albus, p. 309. ‘A Dawber, a pargetter, cementarius.’ Baret. ‘Cementarius, dawber.’ Wright’s Vol. of Vocab. p. 181. ‘Plastrier. ¹ Hampole, Pricke of Conscience, 1078, says—

‘Alle þas men þat þe world mast dauntes, Mast bisilly þe world here hauntes.’ Wyclif, Mark v. 4, speaking of the man possessed with devils, says, ‘oft tymes he bounden in stockis and chaynes, hadde broken þe chaynes, and hadde brokun þe stockis to small gobetis, and no man miȝte daunte (or make tame) hym.’ ‘Sum [began] to dant beystis.’ Complaint of Scotland, ed. Murray, p. 145. Sir T. Elyot also uses this word in the fyrste boke of The Governour, chap. 17—‘about the common course of other men, dauntynge a fierce and cruell beaste.’

‘Man ne maie for no daunting

Make a sperhauke of a bosarde.’

Romaunt of the Rose, 4034.

Cotgrave gives ‘Dompter. To tame, reclaime: daunt, &c. Dompture: a taming, reclaiming: daunture, breaking, subduing.’ See also ibid., s. v. Donter and cf. Cherisse, above. Endaunt occurs with the meaning of charming, bewitching, in the Lay Folk’s Mass Book, E. E. Text Soc. ed. Canon Simmons, p. 140, l. 445. In Wyclif’s version Isaiah lxvi, 12 is thus rendered—‘to the tetes þee shul be born, and vp on the knes men shul daunte you,’ [et super genua blandientur vobis], where some MSS. have ‘daunte or cherische,’ ‘daunte or chirishe,’ and ‘dauncen or chirshe.’ In this instance the word appears equivalent to dandle. Caxton in his Myrrour of the Worlde, 1481, pt. ii. ch. vi. p. 76, says that ‘Alexander in suche wyse dompted tholyfauntes that they durst doo nomore harme vnto the men.’

¹ Desdaigner. To disdain, despise, contemne, scorne, loath, not to vouchsafe, to make vile account of. Cotgrave. In the Romance of Sir Ferumbas, p. 11, l. 349, we are told that the Saracen who was lying on the grass when Oliver rode up to challenge him,

'Him dedeygnede to him arise þer, so ful he was of pride.'

In the Poem on St. John the Evangelist, pr. in Religious Pieces in Prose and Verse from the Thornton MS. (E. E. Text Society, ed. Perry), p. 90, l. 21, we read—and Wyclif, Matt. xxi. 15, has—'Forsothe the princis of prestis and scribis seeynge the marceillouse thingis that he hide dedeyneden;' where the later version gives 'hadden indignacioun.'

'Domyeyane, þat deuyls lymme, dedeyned at þi dede.'

² 'The which token, whan Dagobert and his bishoppes vpon y^e morne after behelde & sawe, they beyng greatly ameruaylled laft of any forther busynesse touchyng y^e dedyfyng of y^e sayd Church.' Fabyan, Pt. v. c. 132, p. 115.

³ Defaillir. To decay, languish, pine, faint, wax feeble, weare, or wither away; also to wante, lacke, faile; to be away, or wanting; to make a default. Cotgrave. Jamieson gives 'To defaill. v. n. To wax feeble.'

⁴ In Rauf Coilhear, l. 329, we read how Roland and Oliver riding out to search for Charles, took 'with thame ane thousand, and ma, of fensabill men,' and in De Deguileville's Pilgrimage, MS. John's Coll. Camb. leaf 126, we find—'Alle er defensable and strange forto kepe bath body and saule.' 'v. thousande menne of y^e North . . . came vp euell apparelled and worse harneyssed, in rustie harneys, neyther defensable nor scoured to the sole.' Grafton's Continuation of Hardyng's Chron., 1470, p. 516, l. 14. In the Boke of Noblesse 1475, p. 76, instructions are given that the sons of princes are to be taught to 'renne withe speer, handle withe ax, sworde, dagger, and alle other defensibile wepyn.' See also the Complaynt of Scotlande, ed. Murray, p. 163.

Alex. Barclay's Cytezan & Uplondyshman, Percy Soc. p. 37. Shakspeare appears to use the word in this sense in 1 Henry IV. Act I, sc. iii. 228.

¹ In P. Plowman, B. xv. 63, we are told that—

‘Hony is yuel to defye, and engleymeth þe mawe,’ and in the Reliq. Antiq. i. 6, we read—‘Digere paulisper vinum quo mades, defye the wyn of the whiche thou art drunken, and wexist sobre.’ Wyclif, in the earlier version of 1 Kings xxv. 37, has—‘Forsoþe in þe morewtid whanne Nabal had defied þe wijñ (digestisset Vulg.) his wijf schewide to hym all þise wordis, and his herte was almost deed wipynne;’ and again, ‘water is drawn in to þe vine tree, and by tyme defyed til þat it be wyn.’ Select Works. i. 88. See also P. Plowman, C. vii. 430, 439. ‘It is seyde that yf blood is wel sode and defied, þerof men makeþ wel talow.’ (Si sanguis bene fuerit coctus et digestus.) ‘He taketh al that he may, and maketh the church pore,
And leveth thare behinde a thief and an hore,
A serjaunt and a deie that leden a sory lif.’

In the Early English Sermons, from the MS. Trin. Coll. Camb. B. 14. 52 (about 1230 A.D.), printed in Reliq. Antiq. i. 129, the same charge is brought against the clergy—‘þe lewed man wurðeð his spuse mid cloðes more þan him selven; & prest naht his chireche, þe is his spuse. ac his daie þe is his hore, awleneð hire mid cloðes. more þan him selven.’ The duties of the deye are thus summed up by Alexander Neckham in his Treatise de Utensilibus pr. in Wright’s Vol. of Vocab. pp. 101-2—

Cant. Tales, 3941, and at l. 3964, his wife is described as being 'As dygne as watir in a dyche.' So too in the Prologue, 517, we are told of the Parson that—'He was to sinful man nought despitus, Ne of his speche daungerous ne digne.' In P. Plowman, C. xi. 81 and xvii. 227, we are told that knowledge

In the Knights Tale, 276, occurs the phrase, 'Til that the deeth departe schal us twayne;' which is still retained in the Marriage Service, though now corrupted to 'till death us do part.' See also to Deuyde, below. Depart occurs with the meaning of separating oneself, parting from, in William of Palerne, 3894, 'prestili departede he pat pres.' 'It ys vnleful to beleue that the worde, that ys the sonne of godde, was departed from the fader, and from the holy goste, by takyng of his manhode.' Myroure of Our Lady, ed. Elunt, 104. With the meaning of distribute, share, we find it in Wyclif, Luke xv. 11, where, in the parable of the Prodigal Son, we read— '*the 3onger seide to the Fadir, Fadir, 3yue me the porcioun of catel, that fallith to me. The same idea is expressed in the Ormulum, 16862—

A donet, et compositor illius libri. Donatista. A donatrice: quedam heresis.’ Medulla. ‘The Donet into Cristen Religioun,’ and ‘The folewer to the Donet’ are titles of two works of Pecock, often quoted in his Repressor. In the Introduction he says—‘As the common donet berith himsilfe towards the full kunnyng of Latyn, so this booke for Goddis laws: therefore this booke may be conveniently called the Donet, or Key to Cristen Religioun.’

² MS. Do on now: corrected by A. ‘Encennia. Newe halowyng off cherchis.’ Medulla. ‘Encennia. Renouation; amonge the Jewes the feaste of dedication.’ Cooper. Wyclif, Works, ed. Arnold, ii. 105, says ‘Encennia is as myche as renewing in our speche.’ The word is still retained at Oxford. Greek ἐγκαίνια, from καίω, new.

² Amongst the 'comodytys off the parsonage . . . off the benefyce off Oxned' we find mentioned 'A doffhouse worth a yere xiiij^s iij^d.' Paston Letters, iii. 232. And in the Will of John Baret, of St. Edmund's Bury, in Bury Wills, &c. (Camden Soc. p. 24), are mentioned a 'berne and duffous,' a form interesting as showing the pronunciation.

³ Palsgrave gives 'I douke under the water. Je plonge en leau. This bounde can douke under the water lyke a ducke;' and Sherwood has 'to douke, plonger.' 'To douke, erinare.' Manip. Vocab. 'Mergo. To drowne in water; to deepe.' Cooper. Jamieson has 'Dowkar, s. A diver. S.G. dokare, Belg. duycker.' The participle doukand occurs in the Alliterative Romance of Alexander, ed. Stevenson, 4091. 'Hic mergulus, a dokare.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. 253. 'Mergo. To drynkelyn.' Medulla. Withals mentions amongst his list of water-birds 'A Dobchic, or Douker,' our water-hen. W. de Biblesworth, in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 165, speaks of 'la cercele (a tele) et ly plounjoun (a doke, doukere).'

⁴ Halliwell gives 'Doule. A nail sharpened at each end: a wooden pin or plug to fasten planks with.' In Ducange we find 'Stecco. Vox Italica, spina, festuca, palus: épine, paille, pîen.' From this the meaning would appear to be 'wooden pins used to fasten the parts of the felloe of a wheel together;' and not, as rendered by Sir F. Madden, 'fellyes of a wheel.' But in the description of Solomon's Temple we read in Purvey's version, 3 Kings vii. 33: 'Sotheli the wheelis weren sicke, whiche maner wheelis ben wont to be maad in a chare; and the extrees, and the naue stockis, and the spokis, and dowlis of the wheelis, alle thingis weren jotun:' where Wyclif's and the other MSS. read 'felijs.' In the Vulgate the verse runs as follows: 'Tales autem rotæ erant, quales solent in curru fieri: et axes earum, et radii, et canthi, et modioli, omnia fusilia.' Neckham, in his description of the several parts of a cart says—spokes jauntes feleyes radii dico radiorum

'in modiollo aptari debent radii in cantos transmittendi, quorum extremitates i. rote orbiculate.

stelliones dicuntur, videlicet orbite. De Utensilibus, in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 108. Fitzherbert in his Boke of Husbandry, 1534, fol. B. 4 bk. says that 'wheles . . . be made of natthes, [naves] spokes, fellyes, and dowles,' and in the Howard Household Books (Boxb. Club), p. 211, we find—'Item for ij hopis to the exiltre, and for ij dowleges to the trendell, viij^{lb}, xij^d.'

⁵ 'Dower. To indue, endow, or give a dowry unto.' Cotgrave. 'Doto. To geue dowary.' Medulla. In a tract on 'Clerkis Possessioneris' (English Works of Wyclif, E. E. Text Soc. ed. Mathew, pp. 122-3), Wyclif writes 'for þes skillis and many mo þe angel seyð ful soþe whanne þe chirche was dowid þat þis day is venym sched into þe chirche;' and again, p. 124, 'prestis þas dowid ben so occupied aboute þe worlde and newe seruyce and song . . . may not studie and preche goddis lawe in contre to cristis peple.' ¹ Drafte appears to have been a general term for refuse. Cotgrave gives 'Mangeaille pour les pourceaux, swillings, washings, draff, hogswash.' and in the Manip. Vocab. draffe is translated by excrementa. In the later version of Wyclif, Numbers vi. 4 is thus rendered: 'thei shulen not ete what ever thing may be of the vyner, fro a grape dried til to the draf,' where the marginal note is 'In Ebreu it is, fro the rynde til to the lital greynes that ben in the myddis of the grape.' Other MSS. read: 'draf, ether casting out after the pressing.' See also Eccles. xxxiii. 16 and Hosea iii. 1: 'Thei byholden to alyen goddis, and louen the darstis [draffis P. vinacia, Vulg.] that leueth in hem aftir pressyng.' In P. Plowman, B. x. 9, we read—

'Noli mittere, man, margerye perlis

Amanges hogges, pat han hawes at wille,

*Pei don but dryuele per-on, draffe were hem leuere.

And Skelton in Elinor Rummyng, l. 171, says

'Get me a staffe

The swyne eate my draffe.'

So also in Wright's Political Poems, ii. 84,

'Lo, Dawe, with thi draffe

Thou liest on the gospel.'

'No more shall swich men and women come to the Ioye of paradise, that louyn more draffe and drestes, that is, lustes and lykynges of the flesshe, but they amende hem or they deye.' Gesta Romanorum, p. 569. Jamieson gives 'Draff, s. Grains. Draffy. Of inferior quality. Draff-pock. A sack for carrying grains.' In the Reeve's Tale Johan exclaims—

'I lye as a draf-sak in my bed.' C. Tales, 4206.

O. Dutch draf. The term is still used in Yorkshire for brewer's grains, and also more generally for waste matter, from which the food element has been extracted, as pig-draff, the scrap-food of pigs.

⁶ Cooper defines pannarium as a 'pantrie,' but here the meaning appears to be a draper's shop. In Sir Ferumbras, l. 4457, it means simply cloth; 'Of drapreye we ludeþ gret fuyoun. And wollep þer-wyþ to Agremoun, to þe Amyral of þis land.' 'Hail be þe marchans wiþ þur gret packes of draperie.' Early Eng. Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 154.

In drawing lots a number of straws were held by some one of the company: the others drew one apiece, and the lot was considered to have fallen on him who drew the shortest, i. e. the one cut short: cf. Welsh cwtan, to shorten; cwta, short; cwtus, a lot. The French practice was that the lot should fall on him who drew the longest; hence their phrase, 'tirer la longue paille.' ¹ In the Pricke of Conscience, 1443, we read in the Lands. MS. 348—
 'Now is wedir bryght and schinonde Now is dym droubelonde; and in Psalm iii. 2—

'Loverd, how fele-folded are þai, Þat drove me, to do me wa.'
 'Per faure citees wern set, now is a see called,
 Þat ay is drouy and dym, & ded in hit kynde.'

Early Eng. Allit. Poems, ed. Morris, i. 1016.

Caxton, Descr. of England, 1480, p. 14, speaks of the water of a bath as 'trobly and sourer of sauour.' Maundeville, in describing various methods of testing the purity of balm, says, 'Put a drope in clere watre, in a cuppe of sylver, or in a clere bacyn, and stere it wel with the clere watre; and jif the bawme be fyn and of his owne kynde, the watre schalle neuere trouble; and jif the bawme be sophisticate, that is to seyne, countrefeted, the waterschalle become anon trouble.' In Lonelich's History of the Holy Grail, E. E. Text Soc. ed. Furnivall, xxxix, 332, the ninth descendant of Nasciens is likened in his vision to 'A flood that in begynneng was Trouble and thikke in every plas.'

 See also ll. 243, 352 and 537, and xviii. 95. Hampole, P. of Conscience, 1318, says—

'Angres mans lyf clenches, and proves, And welthes his lif trobles and droves.'
 and he also uses the word droeyng, tribulation. Dutch droef, droere, troubled; droeven, to trouble, disturb. See Skeat's Mæso-Gothic Dict. s. v. Drobian. 'Turbidus. Truly or therke.' Medulla. 'Tatouiller. To trouble, or make foul, by stirring.' Cotgrave. The word still survives in the North. Wyclif, Select Works, ii. 333, says: 'þe wynd of Goddis lawe shulde be cleer, for turblenes in þis wynde must needis turble mennis lyf;' and again i. 14, 'medle wiþ mannis lawe þat is trobly water.'

² The Medulla (St. John's MS.) explains bifores by 'a trelis wyndowe,' and MS. Harl. 2270, by 'duble wyket.'

² 'A dysche oper a dobler þat drystyn ones serued.' E. Eng. Allit. Poems, ed. Morris, ii. 1146. See also ibid. ii. 1279. In P. Plowman, B. Text, xiii. 80, we read—

'And wished witterly with wille ful eyre, Were molten lead in his maw.'
 Þat disshes & dobleres bifor þis ilke doctour.

Ray gives 'Doubler, a platter (North); so called also in the South.' Tomlinson (in Ray) says—'A Doubler or Doubler, a dish;' and Lloyd (also in Ray) says—'Dobler in Cardiganshire signifies the same.' The French doublier meant (1) a cloth or napkin; (2) a purse or bag; (3) a platter. See Roquefort. Jamieson has 'Dibler. A large wooden platter.'

² 'Dipolis [read Diplois]. A dobelet.' Medulla.

² Cotgrave gives s. v. Mari, 'Mari cocu. An hedge-sparrow, Dike-smowler, Dunnecker: called so because she hatches and feeds the cuckoos young ones, esteeming them her own.' Cooper explains Curruca as 'the birde that hatcheth the cuckowes egges; a titlyng' Dunnoch, from dun, the colour, as ruddock = redbreast, from red. Harrison, Descript. of Eng. ii. 17, mentions amongst the birds of England the 'dunock or redstart.' Withals gives Pinnocke, or Hedge-sparrow, which bringeth up the Cuckoe's birdes in steade of her owne. Curruca. 'Hee lonefa, Anglice, donek.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 252.

³ The faucet of a barrel. In Robert of Gloucester we read, 'Hii caste awei the dosils pat win orn abrod.' p. 542. It is also used in the North for 'a plug, a rose at the end of a water pipe, or a wisp of straw or hay to stop up an aperture in a barn.' See Mr. F. K. Robinson's Whitby Glossary. Thus in version of the Seuyn Sages in MS. Cantab. Fl. ii. 36, leaf 139, quoted by Halliwell, we have—

'And when he had made holes so fell And stoppyd every oon of them with a doselle.'

⁹ 'Ealand, an island.' Craven Glossary. 'Mediampnis et Mediampna est insula in medio ampnis vel aque dulcis.' Ortus. Leland constantly uses Mediannus in the sense of an island, thus we frequently find such sentences as, 'it standeth as a Mediannus yn the Poole.' Itinerary, ed. Hearne, vii. 25. For the plural he uses the Latin form, as, 'the river of Tame maketh two Mediannes betwixt Tamworth Towne and Hopwais Bridge.' Itinerary, viii. 115.

¹ The primary meaning of elde is age simply, as in Lazamon, 25913.

'Aelde hæfde heo na mare Buten sihtene 3ere.'

Compare 'All be he neur sa young off eild,' Barbour's Bruce, xii. 322; and again ibid. xi. 43, where we read how Robert's son David, who was but five years of age, was betrothed to Joan of the Tower 'that than of eild had sevin 3er.' Cf. Lonelich's Holy Grail, xxii. 118, 'So fine a child & of so 3ong elde.' But subsequently the word was restricted to the sense of old age, as in 'And if I now begyne in to myne dd,' Lancelot of the Lait, ed. Skeat, 3225, and in the Miller's Tale, C. T. 3229, where we are told

'Men schulde wedde aftir here astaaf, For eild and youthe ben often at debaat.'

A. S. eald, ald. Compare Eueneldes.

² Used in both senses of grandfather and father-in-law: see Jamieson. Ray in his Glossary of North Country Words gives 'Elmother, a stepmother, Cumberland.' In Barbour's Bruce, ed. Skeat, xiii. 694, we are told that the king married his daughter to Walter Stewart,

'And thai weill soyne gat of thar bed Callit Robert, and syne was king

'Ane knaiff child, throu our Lordis grace And had the land in gouernyng.'

That eftir his gude eld-fadir was 'Eldfader, avus; eldmoder, avia,' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. 205. Lloyd derives it from Welsh aíl = second. In the Cursor Mundi, ed. Morris, p. 76, l. 1189, it is said of Adam that he

Bath his father and moder be-forn; He had his eldmoder maiden-hede,

And at his erthing all lede.'

Wyclif, Works, i. 181, says, 'a child is ofte lyk to his fadir or to his modir, or ellis to his elde fadir,' and again in the Prolog. to Eccles. p. 123, he speaks of 'myn eldefader Jhesus.' Lazamon also uses the word: 'He wes Mærwale's fader, Mildburge aldevader,' iii. 246. See also Chaucer, Boethius, p. 40, and E. Eng. Metrical Homilies, ed. Small, p. 122. Cf. also G. Douglas, Eneados, Bk. vi, p. 195, l. 26, ed. 1710, where it is used to translate socer, and at p. 55, l. 43, he speaks of Hecuba as 'eldmoder to ane hunder.' 'Avia. An eld modere. Socrus. An e[l]de modere,' Medulla.

³ See also Olyfaunte.

⁴ 'Lamia. A beaste that hath a woman's face, and feete of an horse.' Cooper. 'Satirus. An elfe or a mysshapyn man.' Medulla. In the Man of Lawe's Tale, 754, the forged letter is represented as stating that 'the queen deliuered was The moder was an elf, by auenture

Of so horrible a feendly creature . . . Ycome, by charmes or by sorcerye.'

and in the Chanoun's Yemannes Tale, 842, Alchemy is termed an 'elvisch lore.' Horman says: 'The fayre hath chaunged my chylde. Strix, vel lamia pro meo suum parvulum, supposuit.' In Aelfric's Glossary, Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 60, we have elf used as equivalent to the classical nymph: thus we find 'Oreades, munt-elfen; 'Dryades, wudu-elfen; 'Hamadryades, wylde-elfen; 'Naiades, see-elfen; 'Castalides, dun-elfen.' 'Pumilus. An elfe or dwarf.' Stanbridge, Vocabula.

'Hillortre. Sambucus,' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 191. 'Ellurne. Sambucus,' ibid. p. 140. In the same vol. p. 171, the gloss on W. de Biblesworth renders de aunne by 'allerne.' ¹ The origin of this word is doubtful. Ducange considers it to have the same root as soin, care, from Lat. sonnium, implying thoughtfulness, anxiety. Hickes (Dissert. Epist. p. 8) derives it from Mæso-Gothic sumia, truth, as meaning a plea based on truth; see Ducange, s. vv. soniare and sunnis. The words assoyne, essoigne in Early Eng. were used as signifying an excuse or impediment of any kind; thus in Cursor Mundi, E. E. Text Soc. ed. Morris, p. 139, l. 2266, 'That shend thing is withouten assoyne.'

² Essonia, excusatio causaria, ejuratio vadimonii propter impedimentum: empêchement de se présenter; excuse donnée par un plaideur qui ne peut comparaitre. Ducange. Jamieson gives 'Essonyie. An excuse offered for non-appearance in a court of law. Essonyier. One who legally offers an excuse for the absence of another.' O. Fr. essoigne. 'Ther avayleth non essoyne ne excusacioun.' Chaucer, Person's Tale, p. 271. See also Gower, Conf. Amantis, i. 102.

³ This cannot but be a corruption of heteroclitus = ἑτερόκλιτος, which exactly corresponds in meaning with the Latin diversiclinium. Cf. Sete of Angellis hereafter, which is rendered by dindimus, 'nomen etteroglitum' = heteroclitum, on account of its plural being dindima. Ducange gives 'Heteroclitum, Diversiclinium: lieu où plusieurs chemins se réunissent. Diversiclinium. Locus ubi diversæ viæ conjunguntur: carrefour.' See also Gateschadylle, below.

⁵ This is illustrated by a passage in the Cursor Mundi, ed. Morris, ll. 631, 634, where we are told that when Eve was brought to Adam, þar for hight sco virago,

'Virago gaf he hir to nam;

Ffor maked o þe man was sco.'

And similarly Lyndesay in his Monarchie says—

'And Virago he callit hir than,

Quhilk Eua efterwart wes namyt.'

Quhilk is, Interpret, maid of man:

E. E. T. Soc. ed. Hall, 1865, Bk. i. l. 775.

So also in the Chester Plays, p. 25—

'Therefore shee shall be called, I wisse Virago, nothing amisse,

For out of man tacken shee is, And to man shee shall draw.'

Andrew Boorde in his Breviary of Health, p. 242, says, 'when a woman was made of God she was named Virago because she dyd come of a man.' 'Virago. A woman of stout and manly carriage.' Cooper.

³ The reference is to Psalm cxli. 5. The word oil in the sense of flattery occurs, so far as I know, only in the phrase 'to bere up' or 'hold up oil:' thus in Richard the Redeles, iii. 186, we have 'for braggyng and for bostyng, and beringe vpon oiles,' and in Gower, iii. 172, where the false prophets tell Ahab to go and prosper—

'Anone they were of his accorde

⁴ A. S. feorm, what goes to the support of life; feormian, to supply with food, entertain. *The modern sense of farm arose by degrees. In the first place lands were let on condition of supplying the lord with so many nights' entertainment for his household. Thus the Saxon Chron. A.D. 775, mentions land let by the abbot of Peterborough, on condition that the tenant should annually pay £50, and anes nihtes feorme, one night's entertainment. This mode of reckoning constantly appears in Domesday Book:—"Reddet firmam trium noctium: i. e. 100 libr." The inconvenience of payment in kind early made universal the substitution of a money payment, which was called firma alba, or blanche ferme, from being paid in silver or white money instead of victuals. Sometimes the rent was called simply firma, and the same name was given to the farm, or land from whence the rent accrued. From A. S. the word seems to have been adopted in Fr. ferme, a farm, or anything held in farm, a lease.¹ Wedgwood, s. v. Farm. See also Liber Custumarum, Gloss. s. v. Firma. In the Paston Letters, iii. 431, in a letter from Margaret Paston to her husband, we have the word ferme used in its two meanings of rent paid, and land rented. She writes—"Please you to wet that Will. Jeney and Debham came to Calcote . . . and ther they spake with Rysyng and John Smythe, and haskyd hem rente and ferme . . . "Sir," quod Rysyng, "I toke the ferme of my master," &c." So in vol. i. p. 181, we find mentioned 'londs at Boyton weche Cheseman had in his ferme for v. mark.' See also Morte Arthure, ll. 425, 1005. Caxton, in the Chron. of England, p. 281, ch. 242, says: 'iiij knyghtes hadden taken england to ferme of the kyngs.'

⁵ In William De Deguileville's Pilgrimage of the Lyf of the Manhode, ed. Wright, p. 205, we read, 'Heerfore hath Gracedipu maad me enfermerere of this place;' that is superintendent of the infirmary. See also l. 32 of the same page, and p. 193. In the Abbey of

² A. S. feorthing, the fourth part of a coin, not necessarily of a penny. Thus we read, 'This yere the kynge . . . made a newe quyne as the nobylle, half nobylle, and ferthyng-nobylle.' Grey Friars' Chronicle, Camden Soc. Caxton in his Chron. of England, 1480, p. 231, ch. 225, mentions 'the floreyne that was callid the noble pris of vj shillynges viij pens of sterlinges, and the halfe noble of the value of thre shyllinges four pens, and the ferthing of value of xi pens.' So also in Liber Albus, p. 574, there is an order of the King that 'Moneta auri, videlicet Noble, Demi Noble et Ferthing currant.' Chaucer, Prologue, 134, uses the word in the sense of a very small portion:—

'In hire cuppe was no ferthing sene Of greece when sche dronken hadde hire draughte.'

Andrew Boorde in his Breviary of Health, ed. 1557, chapt. 159, fol. lvii., speaks of 'a sycknes named Ficus in ano,' concerning which he says: 'Ficus in ano be the latin wordes. In Englyshe it is named a fygge in a mans foundemente, for it is a postumacion lyke a fygge, or a lumpe of flesh in the longacion lyke a fygge: the cause of this impediment' is, he says, 'a melancoly humour, the whiche doth discede too the longacyon or foundement.' As a remedy he recommends, first, 'the confection of Hameke, or pyles of Lapidis lazule, or Yera ruffini, than take of the powder of a dogges head burnt, and mixe it with the iuyce of Pimpernel, & make tentes and put into the foundement.' Withal says, 'Ficus, a fygge: it soundeth also to a disease in the fundament, but then it is scius, -ci in the masc. gender, the others be of the fem. gender, whereof thus of old, viz.: 'Hic ficus, morbus: hec ficus fructus & arbor.'

² 'Frizer, to frizzle, curl, crisp.' Cotgrave. Frieze cloth was coarse and narrow, as opposed to the broad cloth; this is clearly shown in the following passage from the Paston Letters, ed. Gairdner, i. 83:—'I pray 3ow that 3e wille do hyen sune frese to maken of 3our child is gwnys . . . and that 3e wyld bye a 3erd of brode clothe of blac for an hode for me of xliij^d or iiij^s a 3erd, for ther is nether gode cloth ner god fryse in this twyn.' Frisers, or makers of frieze cloth, are mentioned in Liber Albus, pp. 723, 735. Baret says, 'Frize, or rough garment that souldiers used, a mantle to cast on a bed, a carpet to laie on a table, a dagswaine. Gausape. Garmentes that haue long wooll, or be frized, pece vestes. A winter garment, a frize or furred garment. Cheimastrum.' 'Than Geroner, and a twelue other with hym, arrayed them lyke rude vyllayne marchauntes in cotes of fryse.' Berners, Froissart, vol. ii. p. 340. Caxton, in his Trans. of Goeffroi de la Tour l'Andry, sig. e. ij., speaks of 'burell or fryse.' By the Statute 5 & 6 Edw. VI., c. vi. it was enacted that 'All Welsh Frisers . . . shall conteine in length at the water six and thirty yards at the most, yard and inch of the rule, and in breadth three quarters of a yard, and being so fully wrought, shall weigh euery whole peece eight and forty pound at the least.'

⁴ Frithed is fenced in or inclosed, as in P. Plowman, B. v. 590: 'frithed in with foreines.' From the O. H. G. frida, peace, protection, or inclosure, we have the A. S. frīþ, used in composition in the sense of inclosed; see Bosworth, s. v. frīþ-garð. In M. English frith is frequently used for a wood, but properly only for one inclosed as distinguished from the open forest: cf. 'frīþ or forest, town or fild.' Sir Amadas, lxxi; William of Palerne, 2216, 'Out of forest and frīþes, and alle faire wodes,' and Polit. Rel. & Love Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 56, 'both by frith or foreste.' Layamon, iii. 287, tells us of Athelstan, 'hu he sette sciren, and madeð frīð of deoren,' where the meaning is 'deer-parks'; as also in i. 61—'3e huntieð i þes kinges frīðe' [later text parc]. See also Thomas of Erceeldoune, 319, where Dr. Murray explains 'frythe or fello' by 'enclosed field or open hill.' The word is still preserved in many dialects; see Pegge's Kentishisms, E. Dial. Soc. ed. Skeat, &c.

⁵ In the Paston Letters, ed. Gairdner, ii. 270, in the account of expenses at the funeral of Sir J. Paston we find—'For a cope called a frogge of worsted for the Prior of Bromholm, xxvi^s viij^d.' In the Treatise de Utensilibus of Alexander Neckham, in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 101, we have collobium glossed by 'froge' and 'roket.' 'Frooke or cassock, sagum.' Baret. 'Cucullus: vestis capiciata.' Medulla. See Ducange, s. v. Cucullus. In *Allii. ⁶ In the Description of the Giant in Morte Arthure, 1080, we are told that 'His frount and his forheuede, alle was it ouer,

As the felle of a froske, and fraknede it semede.'

In Deguileville's Pilgrimage, &c., already quoted, p. 159, we read—'I am thilke that make my subgis dwelle and enhabite in fennes as frosches.' See also Caxton's Reynard the Fox, ed. Mathew, p. 213, uses this word; he says 'worldly clerkis ful of pride, symonye, coueitise, & opere synnya zeuen fulbut conseil agenst þe holy gost, &c.' Horman says, 'I shal byt the marke ful but at the next tyme. Collineabo scopum proximo iactu.' and again, 'It standeth fulbut agynst Caleys. Sessoriacum e regione contuetur.' In Udall's Apophthegmes of Erasmus, ed. 1877, p. 29, we read, 'Socrates met full but with Xenophon in a narrow back lane.' See also R. de Brunne's Chronicle, ed. Furnivall, p. 473, l. 13637.

⁶ Fulsum, in the sense of plenteous, occurs in the Story of Genesis and Exodus, 2153, where the seven 'years of plenty' in Egypt are termed 'ðe vij. fulsum yeres.' The substantive fulsumhed, abundance, plenty, occurs in the same poem, l. 1548. In William of Palerne, 4324, we read—

'Fann were spaci spices spended al aboute, Fulsumli at þe ful, to eche freke þer-inne.'

⁷ The form fone occurs several times in the Pricke of Conscience; thus at l. 762 we read:

'Now, he says, my fon days sere, Fon men may now fourty yhere pas, Sal enden with a short tyme here. And foner fifty als in somtym was.'

and again at l. 2693—

'Many spekes and in buke redes Of purgatory, but fon it dredes.'

'And so boweth forth bi a broke, beth-buxum-of-speche,

Tyl 3e fynden a forth, 3oure-fadres-honoureth.'

⁵ Neckham, 'De Utensilibus' (Wright's Vol. of Vocab.), identifies fustaine with cloths fuscotincti, dyed tawny or brown. Reginald of Durham in his work, De Admir. Beati Cuthberti Virtutibus, mentions cloth fuscotinctum, dyed with (young) fustio (which was of a yellow colour and the produce of Venetian Sumach, and was employed for dyeing before it was almost wholly supplanted by the "old fustic" of America). From this mode of dyeing, the original fustian, which was sometimes made of silk, may have had its name; or possibly from St. Fuscien, a village near the cloth manufacturing city of Amiens. See Liber Albus, p. 674, where it is ordered that foreign merchants are not to sell less than 'xii fuscotinctos,' sc. pannos. In an Inventory in the Paston Letters, iii. pp. 407, 409, we find—'Item, a dowblet of fustian, xl^d. . . . Item, a payr of stokes of fustian, viij^d.' 'For v yerdes fustyan for a cote at viij^d the yerd, iij^s xi^d.' Nicolas's Elizabeth of York, p. 105. 'Coleyne threde, fustiane, and canvase' are among 'the commodities . . . fro Pruse ibroughte into Flaundes,' according to the Libelle, pr. in Wright's Pol. Songs, i. 171, Andrew Borde, in his Introduction, makes one of the Januayes (Genoese) say—

'I make good treacle, and also fustian,

With such thynges I crafft with many a pore man.'

² A Rache is a scenting hound, as distinguished from a greyhound.

‘I salle neuer ryvaye, ne racches vn-cowpylle.’ Morte Arthure, 3999.

See Brachett, above; Ducange, s. v. Bracco; and P. Ratoche. Gabrielle rache thus is equivalent to Gabriel Hounds, an expression which is explained from the Kennett MS. Lansd. 1033, as follows:—‘At Wednesbury in Staffordshire, the colliers going to their pits early in the morning hear the noise of a pack of hounds in the air, to which they give the name of Gabriel’s Hounds, though the more sober and judicious take them only to be wild geese, making this noise in their flight.’ The expression appears to be still in use in Yorkshire; see Mr. Robinson’s Whitby Gloss. E. Dial. Soc. The Medulla defines Camalon as ‘quoddam quod vivit in aere.’ See Mr. Way’s Introduction, p. lxxv, note b.

Lyte, Dodoens, p. 673, says that the Mirtus Brabantica is called ‘by the Brabanders gagel.’ In the Saxon Leechdoms, &c. Rolls Series, ed. Cockayne, vol. ii. pp. 316–17, the following recipe is given:—‘Wip lunȝen adl, genim . . . gagollan, wyl on wætre, . . . do of þa wyrte drince on morȝenne wearines scenc fulne. Compare Lyndesay's Monarchie, l. 5629—'As hird the sheip doith from the gate.'

⁵ The Medulla renders Egloga by 'a word of geet,' and the Ortus gives 'Egloga est pars bucolici carminis.' 'Egloga. Caprarum seu rerum pastoralium sermo, quasi αἴγῶν λόγος, A pastoral speech, a speech of the goatherd.' Gouldman. Compare Spenser's explanation of the word: 'ÆGLOGUE. They were first of the Greekes, the inventours of them, called Aeglogai, as it were Aegon, or Aeginomon logi, that is, Goteheardes tales. For although in Virgil and others the speakers be more Shepheards then Goatherds, yet Theocritus, in whom is more ground of authoritie then in Virgil, This specially from That deriving, as from the first heade and wellspring, the whole invention of these Aeglogues, maketh Goateheardes the persons and authors of his tales. This being, who seeth not the grossnesse of such as by colour of learning would make us beleve, that they are more rightly tearmed Eclogai, as they would say, extraordinarie discourses of unnecessarie matter! which definition albe in substance and meaning it agree with the nature of the thing, yet no whit answereth with the analysis and interpretation of the worde. For they be not tearmed Eclogues, but Aeglogues; which sentence this Authour verie well observing, upon good iudgement, though indeede fewe Goatherds have to doe herein, neverthelesse doubteth not to call them by the used and best known name.' ² Garsil, thorns or brushwood for making dead hedges, and for burning with turves in hearth fires; still in use in Yorkshire. See Marshall's Rural Economy, E. Dial. Soc. p. 28.

¹ Gabulum. Frontispiciun, frons edifici: frontispice, façade, parement d'un mur. Ducange. Cotgrave gives 'Frontispice. The frontispice, or forefront of a house, &c.' In Sir Degrevant, 1461, the Duke's house is described as having 'gaye gablettus and grete.' Greavle (in the Middle dialect gavel). A gable of a building. Marshall's Rural Economy, 1788. Milton, Paradise Lost, iii. 506, uses frontispiece for the front of a house—

'A structure high, The work as of a Kingly Palace Gate:
At top whereof, but farr more rich appeerd With Frontispice of Diamond and Gold.'
'This deponer and Edward Symonis lay in the litill gallery that went direct to south out of the Kingis chalmre, havand ane window in the gavel throw the town wall.' Deposition of Thos. Nelson, 1568, pr. in Campbell's Love Letters of Mary Queen of Scots to Bothwell, p. 42, Appendix.

Temper hit with water a lytel, perdy; Temper hit up with cow-mylke þo, Put floure þerto and also salt, And sethe hit and serve hit forthe also.'

⁵ See Garfra and Giblott. Webster derives the English 'giblet' from O. Fr. gibelet. Wedgwood considers it a diminutive of Fr. gobeau, a bit, morsel. 'Profectum. A gose gyblet.' Ortus.

⁶ Patibulum. A jebet. Medulla. 'For the love that hath i-be betwene vs twoo, I shalle go with the to the iebet.' Gesta Romanorum, p. 130. 'Gibet. A gibbet.' Cotgrave.

'Joynter and gemows, he joggles in sondyre.' l. 2893; where the meaning evidently is joints and fastenings. Howell, 1660, speaks of the 'Gimmews or joynts of a spurr.' 'Gimmow or ringe to hange at ones eares as the Egyptians haue. Stalogium, Inauris. Gimmow of a dore. Vertebra, Vertibulum.' Huloet. 'Anndet qu'on met au droigt, a gimmew.' Hollyband. See Halliwell s. vv. Gemel and Gimmace.

² Very common in the sense of noble, honourable; thus Chaucer describes the knight as 'a verray perfight gentil knight;' and in the Prologue to the Wyf of Bath, 257, thus defines a gentil man—

'Lok who that is most vertuous alway,

Prive and pert, and most entendith ay

Cotgrave gives 'Gentil. Gentle; affable; courteous; gallant; noble; &c.'

³ Gentris is gentleness or nobility of birth or disposition: thus in the Ancren Riwle, p. 168, we read—'Louerd, seið Seinte Peter . . . we wulleð folewen þe iðe muckele gentrise of pine largesse:' and in Sir Degrevant, ed. Halliwell, l. 481,

'Y lette ffor my gentriose

See also Robert of Gloucester, p. 66. 'Generositas. Gentyllnes.' Medulla. 'Generosus. Noble; comynge of a noble rase; a gentelman borne; excellent; couragious; of a gentle and goode kynde.' Cooper. In P. Plowman, B. xiv. 181, we find—

'Conuertimini ad me et salui eritis:

pus in genere of his gentrice Ihesu cryst seyde.'

See also the Destruction of Troy, ed. Donaldson & Panton, 131—

'This Jason, for his gentris, was ioyfull till all.'

and Early English Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 69. l. 136, where we read—

'þe prince hire nom & hire biket: to lete hire go alyue,

& for hire noble gentise: habbe hire to wyue.'

Chaucer, Prologue to Wyf of Bath, 290, uses the form genterye—

'Her may ye se wel, how that genterye

Is nought annexid to possessioun.'

The Giserne of a henne. Perier de poule.' Sherwood. Halliwell quotes from the Thornton MS. ff. 305: 'Tak the gesarne of a hare, and stampe it, and temper it with water, and gyf it to the seke man or womane at drynke.' Here the meaning appears to be garbage.

And in the Gesta Romanorum, p. 19, we read—'in þis weye were iij. knyȝtys, for to refresshe, and calle to gestenyng or to oostery, all that went by that way.' So in the Cursor Mundi, ed. Morris, p. 656, l. 11456, when the Wise Men of the East came to Bethlehem—

'the gete or germandir gente,

As iasper, the iewelle of gentille perry;'

and in the description of the Duke's house in Sir Degrevant we are told that it had

'Alle þe wallus of gete,

With gaye gablettus and grete.' l. 1461.

See Harrison's Descript. of England, ed. Furnivall, ii. 77, where he refers to the use of powdered jet as a test of virginity, and adds—'there is some plentie of this commoditie in Darbshire and about Barwike whereof rings, salts, small cups, and sundrie trifling toies are made.' He derives the name Gagates from 'Gagas a cite and riuer in Silicia, where it groweth in plentifull manner. Charles the fourth emperour of that name glazed the church withall that standeth at the fall of Tangra, but I cannot imagine what light should enter therby. The writers also diuide this stone into fve kinds, of which the one is in colour like vnto lion tawnie, another straked with white veines, the third with yellow lines, the fourth is garled with diuerse colours, among which some like drops of bloud (but those come out of Inde) and the fift shining blacke as anie rauens feather.' See also A. Boorde, ed. Furnivall, p. 80, where, inter alia, he recommends gete stone powdered as a specific for stone in the bladder. Halliwell quotes the following curious recipe from the Thornton MS. leaf 304:—'For to gare a woman say what thou askes hir. Tak a stane that is called a gagate, and lay it on hir lefte pape whene scho slepis, that scho wiet not, and if the stane be gude, alle that thou askes hir sille scho say whatever scho has done.' A similar one is printed in Reliq. Antiq. i. 53. 'A stone that is callid gagates . . . it is black as gemmes ben . . . bit brenneth in water & quenchith in oyle, and as to his myght, yf the stone be froted and chauffed hit holdelth (read holdeth) what hym neygheth.' ⁷ A prize. The Medulla renders bravium by 'the pryse [of] a game. Braueta. He þat hath the maystry.' Ducange gives 'Bravium. Victorie præmium, quod in publicis ludis dabatur, a Gr. βραβεῖν;' and Jamieson has 'Gle, glew. (1) Game, sport; (2) metaph. the fate of battle.' 'Bravium est premium vel victoria: the pryce of a game: or a glayue.' Ortus. A.S. gleow. See Garlande, above.

In the recipes for 'lymnyng of bokys' from the Porkington MS., pr. in Halliwell's Early English Miscellanies (Warton Club, 1855), this word frequently occurs; thus, p. 73, we find—'To tempre rede lede; medylle hyt wyth gleyre of ane egge, and temper hit in a schelle with thy fyngere.' Cotgrave gives 'La glaire d'un œuf. The white of an egge. Glaire. A whitish and slimie soyle: gloureux: slimie.' (Compare Clay, above.) Low Lat. glarex. 'Glara, eg-lim.' Medulla. Straba is rendered in the Nominale 'a woman glyande,' and Strabo by 'a gliere.' See Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 225. In the Cursor Mundi, p. 228, we are told that Jacob wished to have Rachel for his wife, and

'Pe eildir sister he for-sok, For sco gleied, als sais the bok.' Cotton MS. L 3861; where the Fairfax MS. reads,

'Pe elder suster he for-soke Gleande ho was for-sop of loke.'

The word is wrongly explained in Halliwell; see s. v. Glized. Compare to Glymer, below.

⁴ 'Glean, a sheaf of hemp.' Peacock's Gloss. of Manley, &c. 'Arista. An avene of corn or a glens. Conspico. To glenyn.' Medulla. Cotgrave gives 'Glanc. A gleaning; also the corne thats gleaned or left for the gleaner. Glaner. To gleane; to picke up eares of corne after the reapers.' 'A glen: conspica.' Nominale. Compare Gloy, below.

⁵ Probably a slip for glent, a glance or a stroke. See Morte Arthure, l. 3863: 'For glent of gloppynyng glade be they neuer.' Or the word may be for glent, the p. p. of to glean, still in use in Lincolnshire. Mr. Peacock, in his Glossary of Manley, &c., also gives 'To glent. To glimmer.'

⁶ In Hampole's Pricke of Conscience, l. 456, we read—'Par dwellid man in a myrk dungeon, Whar he had na other fode

And in a foul sted of corrupcion, Bot wlatom glet and loper blode.'

The Addit. MS. 11305, reads the last line as follows—

* To stare, to leer. Palsgrave, Acolastus, has 'Why glore thyn eyes in thy heade? Why waggest thou thy heed as though thou were very angry?' In Morte Arthure, 1074, we find—'Thane glopnede the glotone and glorde vn-fair.' In Allit. Poems, B. 849, the word occurs in the sense of looking terrified, staring in fright: 'þe god man glyfte with þat glam & glosed for noyse,' and the noun is used in the same sense in the Towneley Myst. p. 146: 'O, my hart is rysand in a glope.' Compare also Cursor Mundi, 11611: 'Quen iesus sau þaim glopend be.' O. Icel. glapa, to stare. In the Northern Counties we still find to glop, or gloppen used for to be amazed.

on which the editor notes—'Grange is a French word, meaning properly a barn, and was applied to outlying farms belonging to the abbey. The manual labour on these farms was performed by an inferior class of monks, called lay-brothers, who were excused from many of the requirements of the monastic rule (see Fleury, Eccles. Hist.), but they were superintended by the monks themselves, who were allowed occasionally to spend some days at the Grange for that purpose. See Schipman's Tale.' At the Reformation many of the Monasteries were turned into Granges: thus in Skelton's Colin Clout we read—

'Howe 3e brako the dedes wylls,

Of an abbaye 3e make a graunge.'

Turne monasteries into water-mills,

The same expression occurs in Early Eng. Miscellanies, from the Porlington MS. ed. Halliwell, p. 26, l. 21—'Nowe that abbay is torned to a grange.'

² 'A cloath or garment made of heare, a heare-cloth, a strainer, cilicium.' Baret. Harrison in his Description of Eng. i. 156, in giving an account of the manner of brewing of beer in his time, states that the malt, after being 'turned so long vpon the flore, they do carie to a kill couered with haire cloth;' and Tusser, in his Five Hundred Points, &c., 57. 51. speaking of the treatment of hops, says that they are to be couered with 'soutage or haire.' Wyclif, Genesis xxxvii. 34, describing the grief of Jacob at the supposed death of Joseph, says: 'And the clothis to-rent, was clothid with an heyr, weyllinge his sone myche tyme.' Hair cloth is mentioned frequently in the Ancren Riwle: for instance, on pp. 126 and 130 we are told that Judith 'ledde swuȝe herd lif, veste [fasted] and werode heare'; and again on p. 10 that St. Sara, Sinclética and many others wore 'herde heren'.

Plowman, B. Text, v. 318, we find 'Hikke the hakencyman,' that is one who let out horses on hire. Fr. haquente, Span. hacanea. In the Paston Letters, ii. 97, John Russe writes—'I schal geve my maister youre sone v marke toward an haukeney.' In the Household and Wardrobe Ordinances of Edward II. (Chaucer Soc. ed. Furnivall), p. 19, we are told that 'the kinge shall have xxx serjants at armes sufficientli armed and mounted, that is to say eache of them one horse for armes, one hakeney & somter;' and, on p. 43,—'In the same [the king's] stable shal be an hackney man, who shal keepe the hakene of the house, & shal fetch every day at the garner the liverie of oates for the horses of the stable, & shal carry the houses of the horses that travel in the kinges compani for the same hakeney. He shal have jd. ob. a day wages, one robe yereli in cloth, or half a mark in mony; & iiij. viij^d for shoes.' Probably we should read badius, as in P., instead of badius, which only means 'a hors off a bay coloure.' Medulla.

² 'There is evidently some confusion here: apparently the scribe has repeated half bare in another form and omitted the English equivalent for semipondo and quadrans, which would be 'half a halpenny.' compare a Halpeny, below, where pondo is given as the Latin equivalent.

³ Dr. Oliver, in his Monasticon Diocesis Exoniensis, p. 260, says—'Aquebajuli were persons who carried the vessel of the holy water in processions, and benedictions. Scholars in the minor orders were always to be preferred for this office (vide Synod. Exoniens. A.D. 1287, cap. 29). In small parishes the aquebajulus occasionally acted as sacristan and rang the bell.' By a decree of Archbishop Boniface, the aquebajulus was to be a poor clerk, appointed to his office by the curate of the church, and maintained by the alms of the parishioners in all parishes in his province within ten miles of a city or castle. His duties were to serve the priest at the altar, to read the epistle, sing the gradual and the responses, read the lections, carry the holy-water vessel, and assist at the canonical hours and the ministration of the sacraments (see Lyndwode, lib. iii. pp. 142-3). He was in fact a poor scholar, and the office was given him to assist him in his studies—'ut ibidem proficeret ut aptior et magis idoneus fieret ad maiora.' After the Reformation the office merged into that of parish clerk. Thus, in 1613, William Cotton, Bishop of Exeter, licensed John Randolph to the 'officiu aquebajuli sive clerici parochialis apud Gwennap, et docendi artem scribendi et legendi.' (Hist. Cornwall, ii. p. 135). From the latter part of this extract he would seem to have officiated also as village schoolmaster. 'Aquarius: seruiens qui portat aquam.' Medulla. 'Hic aquebajulus. A holi water clerke.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 218. Robert of Brunne complains that any

'Holy watyr clerk of a tounne þat lytyl haf lernede yn hys lyue
 He ys ordeynede a prest to shryue.'

Handlyng of Synne, ed. Furnivall, p. 360, ll. 11591-4.

From this office being usually performed by some poor scholar, the term Holy-water clerk eventually came to be applied to such exclusively. Thus in the State Papers, ii. 141, we read—'Anthony Knevet hath obteyned the Bishoprik of Kildare to a symple Irish preste, a vagabounde, without lernyng, maners, or good qualite, not worthy to be a hally-water clere.' The term also occurs in Lydgate.

⁴ In Richard the Redeles, iii. 218, we find hales used in the sense of tents—

'He wondrid in his wittis, as he wel myzthe, Halfidell þe houshold, but hales hem helped.'

'Tabernaculum. A pavilion, tente, or hale.' Elyot. See also Hawle. In a letter from Cecily, Marchioness of Dorset, to Thomas Cromwell, pr. in Ellis' Original Letters, Ser. I. vol. i. p. 219, she desires him to 'delyver all such tents, pavylyons, and hales as you haue of myne on to my sounse Lenard,' where the meaning is plainly tents.

¹ 'Equicium, a hares.' Nominale MS. In Guy of Warwike, p. 205, we read—

'Than lopen about hem the Lombars As wicked Coltes out of haras.'

In Houshold, &c. Ordinances, Edward II., p. 43, it is directed that there shall be 'a serjant, who shal be a sufficient mareschal gardein of the yonge horses drawne out of the kinges race,' where these last words are in the original 'hors de haraz le Roy.' In the curious poem on 'The Land of Cockayne,' printed in Early Eng. Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 157, we are told that there

A haras was the technical term for a stud of stallions as appears from Lydgate's Hore, Shepe & Ghoos, Roxb. In a 'Balade' by Chaucer, printed in the Athenæum, 18th Feb., 1871, p. 210, the following lines occur—

'I wol me venge on loue as doþe a breese On wylde horsse þat rennen in harras.'
Sir T. Elyot in his Image of Governauce, 1549, p. 127, says: 'Who setteth by a ragged, a restie or ill favoured colte, because that the harreise, wherof that kinde is comen, two hundred yeres passed wanne the price of rennyng at the game of Olympus!' 'Equirisla. A flok off hors.' Medulla.

⁴ Chaucer says of the Sompnour, Prolog. 649—

'He was a gentil harlot and a kynde A bettre felaw schulde men nowher fynde.' Among some old glosses in the Reliq. Antiq. i. 7, we find 'scurra, a harlotte.' In the Coventry Mystery of the Woman taken in Adultery (p. 217), it is the young man who is caught with the woman, and not the woman herself, who is stigmatised as a harlot. We find in Welsh, herlawd=a youth, and herlodes=a hoyden (lodes=a girl, lass). In the Gesta Romanorum, p. 81, the false Emperor, speaks of Jovinian as 'an harlotte,' and again, p. 124, the Emperor's daughter while running a race addresses her male competitor—'What, harlot, trowist thou to overcome me?' 'The x. day of Dessember, Satterday, was M. Cowlpeppur, and M. Duran, drawn fro the tow* to Tiburn. Cowlpeppur was heddid, and Duran was hanggid and quartarid, both them for playing the harlottes w* with (sic) queen Kataryn that then was.' London Chronicle during the reign of Henry VIII., Camden Miscellany, iv. 16. ¹ In Dan John Gaytryge's Sermon, pr. in Religious Pieces in Prose and Verse from the Thornton MS., E. E. Text Soc. ed. Perry, in the list of the seven deadly sins, we are told that 'Ane is hateredyne to speke, or here oghte be spokene, that may sowne unto gude to thaym that thay hate,' p. 12, l. 3. So in Pricke of Conscience, 3363, we find 'Pride, hatreden and envy.' 'Odium es . . . als mekille atte saye as Hatredene, by whom es disoyned the anechede of brotherhede and the trewth of unitee es sawene in sundir.'  and in the St. John's Coll. See also Lancelich's Hist. of the Holy Grail, ed. Furnivall, xxiii. 570. In the Medulla we find 'haterel' as the English equivalent of vertex, occiput and incon; and in the Glossary of Walt. de Bibbesworth, pr. in Wright's Vol. of Vocabularies, we have—'Moun haterel (my nape) ouweke les temples (ant thowewon . . .).' ³ 'Verriculum. A net or a boat. Verriculum. A besum: vel genus retis et navis.' Medulla. A heck was an instrument or engine for catching fish, made in the form of lattice-work, or a grating. It appears to have been peculiar to or principally used in the river Ouse in Yorkshire. So Ducange, 'Heck, Retis genus, quo utuntur piscatores, fluvii Isidis Eboracensis accolæ.' These engines appear to have increased to such an extent as to become a source of danger and interruption to the traffic on the river. The Mayor and Corporation of York accordingly presented a petition on the subject, the result being that by the Stat. 23 Henry VIII. cap. 18, the Magistrates having jurisdiction over the river Ouse were empowered to cause 'as much of the said fishgarthes, piles, stakes, hecks and other engines, which then by their discretions shall be thought expedient to be pulled up, that the said ships, keyles, cogges, boats and other vessels may have direct, liberall, and franke passage.' A heckboat, or hekbett, would therefore appear to be a fishing boat using this particular engine for catching fish. In Ad. Smyth's Sailor's Word-Book, 1867, a heckboat is defined as 'the old term for pinks. Latterly a clincher-built boat with covered fore-sheets and one mast with a trysail;' and a Pink in its turn is described as 'a ship with a very narrow stern, having a small square part above.'

¹ A hip or fruit of the dog-rose. 'Cornus. A hepe tre.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 181. In the Royal MS. xii. B. i. leaf 40, occurs 'cornus, a hepe tre.' See Robin Hood i. 37, and Kyng Alisaunder, ed. Weber, 4983. Cotgrave gives 'Senelles. Heps or hawthorn berries. Grate-cul. A hep; the fruit of the wild briar, &c.' Cooper identifies the cornus with the cornel, and says it is a 'tree whereof is the male and the female; the male is not in Englande, and may be called longe cherie tree. The female of some is called dogge tree, that bouchers makers prickes of. Cornum. The fruit of cornus which is not in England; the french men call it Cornoiles. Corneolus. A little cornoile tree.' The Medulla, on the other hand, has 'Cornus. A chestony tre.' Lyte, Dodoens, p. 655, mentions as the seventh kind of rose 'the Bryer bushe, the wilde Rose, or Hep-tree.' Cockayne, Leechdoms, &c., iii. p. 331, gives 'Heope; a Hip, Hep, seedvessel of the rosa canina; in French English, a button. Butunus gallice butun, anglisce heuppe, Gloss. Sloane, 146,' and Withals 'A bryer tree, or a hippe tree. Rubus canis.' Turner in his Herbal, 1551, p. 131, says—'I heare say that ther is a cornel tree at Hampton courte here in Englande.' In Englyshe it [is] named saynt Johns worte, the whiche herbe is of that vertue that it doth repell suche malfyfycousness or spirites.' 'Hyperion. An hearbe called saint John's wort.' Cooper. The Latin equivalent which in P. is given to this plant (see p. 140), viz. perforata, doubtless refers to a peculiarity of the leaves to which Lyte, p. 63, refers: he says 'the leaues be long and narrow, or small . . . the whiche if a man do holde betwixt the light and him they will shewe as though they were pricked thorough with the poyntes of needels.' 'In his on honde he hade a holyn bobbe.' Sir Gawayne, 206.

⁵ 'Palo. To hedge or pale in: to proppe up with stakes.' Cooper. Stratmann connects holken with Swedish holka, excavare, which is probably the meaning here. Thus in the Anturs of Arthur, Camden Soc. ed. Robson, ix. 12, in the description of the apparition we are told—'Hyr enyn were holket and holle, And gloet as the gledes.'

A. S. hole, hollow, which occurs in Early Eng. Homilies, ed. Morris, i. 251. In the A.-S. version of the Gospels, St. Matthew v. 29 is thus rendered: 'Gyf þin swiðre eage þe aswike, aholeke hit at [erue] & awerp hit fram þe.'

Turner in his Herbal, 1551, p. 97, says: 'The onyons that we call hollekes, ar of this nature, that if one be set alone that their wil a great sorte within a shorte space growe of that same roote.' the Loseley MSS. p. 53 is an item dated 1552, of the 'Horner for blowing horns, turner for daggers, xlv^s. viij^d.' Dr. Morris, Old Eng. Homilies, 2nd series, p. ix, notices an odd popular etymology of the word, viz. hu sel=how good (it is). See also Nares' Glossary and Peacock's edition of Myre's Duties of a Parish Priest, p. 69. The author of the Ancoren Riwle (p. 412) recommends that the laity should not receive the Holy Communion oftener than 15 times a year at the most. He mentions as proper occasions. Mid-winter, Candlemas, Twelfth-day, the Sunday half-way between that and Easter (or Lady day, if near the Sunday), Easter day, the 3rd Sunday after, Holy Thursday, Whit-sunday, Midsummer-day, St. Mary Magdalene's day, the Assumption, the Nativity of the Virgin, Michaelmas-day, All Saints' day, and St. Andrew's day. Chaucer says once a year at least—'and certes ones a yere at the leste it is lawful to be housled, for sothly ones a yere alle thinges in the erthe renouelen.' Parson's Tale, at the end of Remedium Luxurie. Robert of Brunne says the same—

³ In the Harleian MS. version of Higden's Polychronicon, ii. 425 is a curious account of how certain women of Italy used to give ‘chese þat was bywicched’ to travellers, which had the property of turning all who ate it into beasts of burden: ‘Whiche women turned in a season a iocular other mynstrelle [quendam histrionem] in to the similitude of a ryalle asse, whom thei solde for a grete summe of money.’ The same writer says of the English that ‘thei be as ioculars in behaour [in gestu sunt histriones];’ ii. 171.

⁴ Amongst the various articles necessary for a scribe Neekham in his Treatise de Uen-silibus, pr. in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 116, mentions pluteum sive asserem, the former being glossed 'carole.' In the first quotation given by Ducange s. v. Carola the meaning appears to be as here a desk: 'Porro in clauetro Carole vel hujusmodi scriptoria aut ciste cum clauibus in dormitorio, nisi de Abbatis licentia nullatenus habeantur. Statuta Ord. Premonstrat. dist. i. cap. 9.' See also Deske, above.

⁵ 'Pa fouwer [walmes] weren ideled a twelue. for pa twelf kunrolan sculden þar mide heore þurst kelen.' Old Eng. Homilies, ed. Morris, i. 141. In Wyclif's version of the parable of Dives and Lazarus, the former is described as saying 'Fadir Abraham, have

'Bot eftyrwarde when it cesses, and the herte kelis of love of Ihesu, thanne entyrs in wayne glorie.' Thornton MS. leaf 221. In the Anturs of Arthur, ed. Robson, iv. 6 we read—

'Thay kest of hor cowpullus, in cliffes so cold,

Cumfordun hor kenettes, to kele hom of care;' see also xvi. 6.

In the Morte Arthure, l. 1838, Sir Cadur, after killing the King of Lebe, says—

'Kele the nowe in the claye, and comforthe thi selfene.'

*Quinta essencia is not hoot and drie as fier for hoot yingis it kelyp, and hoot sijknissis it doip away.' The Book of Quinte essence, ed. Furnivall, p. 2. Akale=cold occurs in the Seven Sages, ed. Weber, l. 1512—

'That night he sat wel sore akale And his wif laf warme a-bedde;'

See also P. Plowman, B. xviii. 392, and Cursor Mundi, l. 12541. A. S. acellan, originally transitive, acolian being the intransitive form. O. Fris. kella.

¹ Cotgrave gives 'Merlus, a Melwall or keeling, a kind of small cod, whereof stockfish is made.' The kelyng appears in the first course of Archb. Nevil's Feast, 6th Edw. IV. See Warner's Antiq. Col. In Havelok, amongst the fish caught by Grim are mentioned,

'Keling and tumberel Hering, and þe makerel.' l. 757.

'The kelynge and the thornbake, and the gret whalle.' Reliq. Antiq. i. 85. Randle Holme, xxiv. p. 334, col. 1, has, 'He beareth Gules a Cod Fish argent, by the name of Codling. Of others termed a Stockfish or an Haberdine; in the North part of this kingdome it is called a Keling. In the Southerne parts a Cod, and in the Western parts a Welwell.' Myllecelle occurs in J. Russell's Boke of Nurture, in Babees Boke, p. 38, l. 555. See Jamieson s. v. Keling. 'Kelyng a fysshe, aunon.' Palsgrave.

² The roe or milt. In the Liber Cure Cocorum, ed. Morris, p. 19, we have a recipe for 'Mortrews of fysshe,' which runs as follows—

'Take þo kelles of fysshe anon, And temper þo brothe fulle welle þou schalle, And þo lyver of þo fysshe, sethe hom alon; And welle hit together and serve hit þenne þen take brede and peper and ale And set in sale before good mene.'

Moffet & Bennet in their Health's Improvement, 1655, p. 238, say, 'Cods have a B'adder in them full of Eggs or Spawn, which the northern men call the Kelk, and esteem it a very dainty meat.' Still in use in the North.

³ Elyot translates reticulum by 'a coiffe or calle, which men or women used to weare on theyr heads.' In Arthur's dream, recorded in the Morte Arthure, we are told, l. 3258, that a duchess descended from the clouds 'with kelle and with corenalle clenliche arrayede:' and in Wright's Pol. Songs, p. 158, we read 'uncomely under calle.' Baret gives 'a caule to cover the heare as maydens doe, reticulum, une coiffe; a caule for the head, crobylon, rets de soye, une coiffe.' Horman says, 'Maydens were sylken callis, with the whiche they kepe in ordre theyr heare made jelowe with lye. Puellæ reticulis bombacinis utuntur, &c.' 'Corocolla, kalle.' Neckam, De Utens. in Wright's Vocab. p. 101.

'The hare was of this damycell Knit with ane buttoun in ane goldyn kell.'

G. Douglas, Eneados, vii. p. 237^b, l. 41.

Caxton, Boke for Travellers, says: 'Maulde the huue or calle maker (huuetier) mayntenth her wisely; she selleth dere her calles or huues, she soweth them with two semes.' See also Reliq. Antiq. i. 41. By the Statute 19 Henry VII., c. 21, it was forbidden to import into England 'any maner silke wrought by it selfe, or with any other stuffe in any place out of this Realm in Ribbands, Laces, Girdles, Corses, Calles, Corses of Tissues, or Points, vpon pain of forfeiture.' Although the caul or kelle was chiefly used with reference to the ornamental network worn by ladies over their hair, we find it occasionally used for a man's skull-cap. Thus in P. Plowman, B. xv. 223, Charity is described as 'ycauled and ycrimiled, and his crowne shaue;' and in Troilus & Cressida, iii. 727: 'maken hym a howue aboue a calle.'

⁶ Kyds are mentioned in the Whitby Abbey Rolls, 1396. 'Kydde, a fagotte, faloorde.' Palsgrave. 'Fouace . . . a great kid, Bauen, or faggot of small sticks. Fouées, f. The smallest sort of Bauens, Kids.' Cotgrave. Fitzherbert in his Boke of Husbandry, fo. xliii^b, recommends the farmer 'to sell the toppes as they lye a great, or els dresse them and sell the great woode by it selfe, and the kydde woode by it selfe;,' and G. Markham in his Country Contentments, 1649, p. 99, says, 'for as much as this fowle [the Heron] is a great destruction unto the young spawne or frie of fish, it shall be good for the preservation thereof to stake down into the bottome of your ponds good long kids or faggots of brushwood.' Still in use in the North; see Mr. Peacock's Glossary of Manley & Corringham, and Mr. Robinson's Glossary of Whitby.

'Som, for envy, sal haf in þair lym, Als kylles and felouns and apostyms.' l. 2994.

Halliwell quotes a recipe from Linc. Med. MS. leaf 283, for the cure of 'kiles in the eres.'

¹ Ray's Glossary gives 'Kilps, pot-hooks,' and also 'pot-cleps, pot-hooks.' 'One brassee pot with kilpes' is mentioned in the Inventory of John Nevil of Faldingworth, 1590; and in Ripon, Fab. Roll, 1425-6, we find 'Item, pro uno kylpe de ferro j^d.' A. S. clyppan, to clasp, grasp. In the Will of Matt. Witham, 1545, pr. in Richmondshire Wills, &c., Surtees Soc. xxvi. p. 56, the testator bequeaths 'to the said hares of Bretanby on challes, bukes, and vestyments, and all other ornaments belonging to the chapell, also a mellay pott with a kylp, a chaffer, a brewyng leyyd. with all vessell belonging to the same; and my wyffe to have the chaffer during her lyffe.' See also p. 31, where are mentioned 'iij rekyngs, ij pare of pot kylpes, and a pare of tanges;' and p. 249: 'iron kilpes, xvi^d.'

² To tuck up clothes, &c. Danish Kilte, to truss, tuck up. Gawain Douglas gives the following rendering of Virgil, Aeneid i. 320—

'With wind waffing hir haris lowait of trace, Hir skirt kiltit till bir bare knee,' p. 23, ed. 1710, the original Latin being—'Nuda genu, nodoque sinus collecta fluentes.'

³ The same as P. Kymlyne. A large tub made of upright staves hooped together in the manner of a cask. They are used for salting meat in, for brewing, and such like purposes. Littleton in his Lat. Dict. 1735, has 'Kimling in Lincolnshire, or a kimmel, as they term it in Worcestershire, vas coquenda cerevicie.' 'One mashfatt, tow wort vessells, one longe kymnell, one round kymnell, one steepfatt, one clensing sieve¹¹,' occur in Inventory of Edmond Waring of Wolverhampton, in Proceed. Soc. Antiq., April 29, 1875: and in the Inventory of Richard Allele of Sealthorp, 1551, we find, 'on led and kemnell & a pair of mustard werns, vj^s viij^d.' 'Kymnell, quevne, quevnette.' Palsgrave. Holland in his trans. of Pliny, Bk. xv. c. 6, speaks of 'pans and panchions of earth, or els vessels or kimmels of lead,' and the word also occurs in Beaumont & Fletcher, The Coxcomb, Act iv. s. 8—

'She's somewhat simple, Indeed; she knew not what a kimmel was.'

⁴ A kimmel or kemlin: a powdering Tub.' Ray's North Country Words. The term is still in use.

and in Le Bone Florence, l. 1795—

'Take here the golde in a bagg,

I schall hyt hyng a knagg,

Knaged with the meaning of studded occurs in Sir Gawayne, l. 577—'Polayne knaged wyth knotez of golde.' See also Destruction of Troy, 4972. Hulot has 'Knagge, Scopulus.'

¹ See P. Be A-knowe a-geyne wyll, or be constreynynge, where the same distinction is drawn between fateor and confiteor.

² Baret gives 'a kneading-trough, also a rundle, or rolling pinne, that they vse to knead withall, magis, pollux, &c. un may à pestrir pain, c'est aussi une table ronde, ou une rondeau de pastissier.'

³ 'Artavus. Cultellus acuendis calamis scriptoriis.' Ducange. 'A Barbar's Raser. Nouacula.' Baret.

⁴ 'Fasciculus. A gripe, or handfull bounde together. Librorum fasciculus. Hor. A fardell or little packe of bookes.' Cooper.

'Byndep hem in knucchenus forpi To brenne lyk to liechi.'

The XI Pains of Helle, printed in An Old Eng. Miscell. ed. Morris, p. 225. l. 77. O. Eng. kniche, knysche (in Wyclif), knoche, knucche, cnucche. The A.S. (which would probably have been cnysce) does not occur so far as I am aware, though we find other words of the same stem. In Middle German it is knucke, knocke; Mod. Ger. knocke. In the Romance of Richard Coeur de Lion, pr. in Weber's Metr. Rom. ii. l. 2985, the Saracens, in order to cross a dyke to get at the Christians,

'Kast in knoches off hay. To make horsmen a redy way.'

Wyclif, Works, ed. Arnold, i. 97, has, 'Gidere 3e first þes tares togidere and bynde þem in knythchis . . . þes good angels shal bynde Cristes enemyes in knythchis.' So too in his version of St. Matthew xiii. 30: 'First gedre 3ee to gedre dernelis (or cockilis) and byndeth hem togidre in knythchis (or small bundelis,) for to be brent.'

⁵ In the Coventry Mysteries, p. 245, 'ij doctorys' are represented as wearing 'on here hedys a furryd cappe, with a gret knop in the crowne,' and in a recipe for 'Custanes,' given in the Liber Cure Cocorum, p. 39, is a direction to lay on the top a 'yolke of ege . . .

At the schypp borde ende.'

A Knotte; ligamen, nodus, nodulus, nexu, oculus; (versus:

that hard is soþun As hit were a gyldene knop.' See also P. Plowman, C. ix. 293. Sir Degreant, l. 1494. Wyclif, Exodus xxvi. 11, &c. In Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, l. 424, the Ploughman is described as wearing 'knopped schon, clouted full þykke.' 'Hoc intermodium, the knope of the kne.' Wright's Vocab. p. 208.

¹ That is, afflicted with the gout. Ducañge gives 'Condilus, Papie in MS. Bituric. est Nodus. Inde Condilomatica passio, id est, nodositas manuum, & Condilo, as, Pugnis cædo: Condilomata, id est, glandulæ. Hæc a græco Κόνδυλος, Digiti articulus et junctura.' Cooper renders Condylus by 'The roundnesse or knots of the bones in the knee, ancle, elbow, knuckles, &c.' with which Baret agrees. 'Condilomatica passio, i. nodositas, infirmitas. Condilomaticus, a knokkyd. Nodositas, Knottyhede.' Medulla.

² Chaucer in the Canon's Yeoman's Prologue, 574, has—'His hat heng at his bak down by a laas.' See also Knight's Tale, 1093 and 1646. The word was also used for the cord which held a mantle. Thus in Ipomydon, 326, the knight is represented as loosening his mantle by drawing the cord—

'He toke the cuppe of the botelere, And drew a lace of sylke full clere, Adowne than felle hys mantyll by.'

In the Romance of Sir Ferumbras, l. 9163, we read of Gwelonon—

'Ys helin on is hed sone he caste, And let him lacye wel and faste.'

'A lace, fibula.' Manip. Vocab. O. Fr. las, laz from Lat. laqueus, a noose. From the Spanish form of the same word comes our lasso. See Lase. In the Inventory of the property of Sir J. Fastolf, already referred to, we find—'Item. j clothe arras, with a gentlewoman holding j lace of silke, and j gentlewoman a hauke.' Paston Letters, i. 479; and again, 'j hode of damaske russet, with j typpet fastyd with a lase of silke.' See the quotation from Trevisa's Higden, s. v. Lanzer, below.

³ 'A lade, onus.' Manip. Vocab. Hampole, Pricke of Conscience, 3418, has—

'De minimis granis fit Als of many smale cornes es made Maxima summa caballo. Til a hors bak a mykel lade.'

A. S. hlad, hladan, to load. O. Icel. hlaða, to heap.

⁴ A saddle for a horse carrying a load or burthen on its back.

⁵ A. S. hladel (?), the handle of a windlass for drawing water; from hladan, to load, draw. In the Prologue to the Manciple's Tale, Chaucer says, 'Alas! he nadde holde him by his ladel'; i. e. why did he not stick to his business? 'Metorium, ladylle.' Wright's Vocab. p. 178. 'Ligula. A scummer or ladell.' Cooper. ⁶ See zett, below.

†to Layne¹; Abcondere, celare (occultare A.), & cetera; vbi to hide.

a Lambe (Lame A.); Agnus, Agnellus, Agna, Agnella; Agninus.

†a Lampe; lampas, lampada.

†a Lampray³; mvrena, mvrenula diminutivum.

a Lamproñ; murenula.

a Lande; terra; terrenus, & cetera; vbi erthe.

†a Lande lepar⁴; inquilinus.

'Gret wele Lucius, thi lorde, and layne noghte thise wordes:'

and again, l. 2593, Sir Gawayne asks the strange knight to tell his name, and 'layne noghte the sothe.' See also William of Palerne, ll. 906, 918, and 1309. &c. The p. p. occurs in the Pricke of Conscience, 5999—'Whar nathing sal be hid ne laynd.' O. Icel. leyna. Ray (Gloss. of North Country Words) gives 'Lean, vb. "to lean nothing," to conceal nothing; and 'Laneing, sb. "they will give it no laneing," i. e. they will divulge it.' A common expression in the old romances is 'the sothe is not to layne,' i. e. 'the truth is not to be hid.' In the Avowynge of Kyng Arthure, st. lxx. appears the proverbial expression, 'mete laynes mony lakke.' 'Wil i noght leyne mi priuite.' Cursor Mundi, 2738.

² Amongst the other signs of approaching death Hampole says that a man 'Loves men þat in ald time has bene,

He lakkes þa men þat now are sene.'

Pricke of Conscience, 797;

and Robert of Brunne says that 'Ever behynde a manys bake With ille thai fynde to hym a lake.'

Dutch laecken, to be wanting, blame, accuse, from lack, laeckē, want, fault, blame. Swedish lak, blame, vice. In the 'Lytylle Children's lytil boke' (Harl. MS. 541) pr. in the Babees Boke, ed. Furnivall, p. 269, children are told to and on p. 38 is another receipt for 'lamprayes bakun.' In the Hengrave Household Accounts is this entry, 'for presenting a lamprey pye vjd.' 'Item, the xiiij day of January [1503] to a servant of the Pryour of Lanthony in reward for bryngyng of two bakyn laumpreys to the Quene, vs.' Nicholas' Eliz. of York and Glossary. Wyclif in his Prologue to Job, p. 671, says: 'Also forsothe al the boc anent the Ebrues is seid dere and slidery, and that the cheef spekeris of Grekis clepen defaute of comun maner of speche, whil other thing is spoken and other thing is don; as if thou woldest an eel or a laumprun holde with streite hondis, how myche strongerli thou thristis, so myche the sunnere it shal gliden away.' 'Lampurne. Gallaria.' Huloet. 'A lampron, murena.' Manip. Vocab. Baret gives 'a lampurne, gallaria, lampetra, lamprillon.' Under 'How several sorts of Fish are named, according to their Age or Growth,' p. 324-5, Randle Holmes gives—'A Lamprey, first a Lampron Grigg, then a Lampret, then a Lamprill, then a Lamprey. A Lampron, first a Barle, then a Barling, then a Lamprill, and then a Lamprey or Lampron.' 'Lamprons and Lampreys differ in bigness only and in goodness; they are both a very sweet and nourishing meat . . . Forraine Travell, 1642, repr. 1869, p. 67, says of the Munchausen-like travellers of his time that 'such Travellers as these may bee termed Land-lopers, as the Dutchman saith, rather than Travellers.' See Jamieson, s.v. Landlouper, and Dr. Morris on the Survival of Early Eng. Words in our Present Dialects, E. D. Soc. p. 11. Lyte, Dodoens, p. 348, speaking of the use of White Hellebore or Nesewurt in medicine, says that it must be taken 'with good heede and great aduisement. For such people as be either to yong or to old, or feeble, or spit blood, or be greued in their stomackes, whose breastes are straight and narrowe, and their neckes long, suche feeble people may by no meanes deale with it, without ieopardie and danger. Wherefore these landleapers, Roges, and ignorant Asses, which take vpon them without learning and practise do very euill.'

'Drynk behynde no mannes bakke, For yf þou do, thou art to lakke.'

³ In the Liber Cure Cocorum, p. 25, will be found receipts for 'lamprayes in browet,' and 'lamprayes in galentine,' the first of which is as follows—

'Take lamprayes and scalde hom by kynde, Peper and safrone; welle hit with alle, Sythyn, rost hom on gredyl, and grynde Do þo lampreys and serve hit in sale;'

'Ic rede 3e king, nu her bi-foren, To maken lathes and gaderen coren;'

³ In the Liber Cure Cocorum, p. 13, is given a Recipe for 'Leche lardes,' the components of which are eggs, new milk, and pork lard, boiled till they become thick, and then baked on a 'gredel' or griddle, and served up in small slices or pieces. Randle Holme, p. 83, makes 'Leach' to be 'a kind of Jelly made of Cream, Isinglas, Sugar, Almonds, &c.' The term is constantly used in old cookery, and means generally those dishes which were served up in slices. See Hous. Ord. & Reg. pp. 439, 449 and 472. In Pegge's Forme of Cury, p. 36, is given a recipe for 'Leche Lombard,' as to which see his Glossary. Cotgrave renders lesche by 'a long slice, or shive of bread.'

⁴ Lechery was one of the deadly sins, each of which is represented in the Ancien Rule, by some animal: thus (1) Pride is represented by a Lion; (2) Envy by an Adder; (3) Wrath by an Unicorn; (4) Lechery by a Scorpion; (5) Avarice by a Fox; (6) Gluttony by a Sow; and (7) Sloth by a Bear. See Prof. Skeat's note to P. Plowman, C. vii. 3.

'Presbiter quæ mortui quæ dant vivi, quæque

Refert ad focariam, cui dat sua seque.' Wright's Pol. Songs, p. 33.

It appears to mean, says Mr. Wright, a fire-side woman, one who shared another's fireside, from Lat. focus, a hearth, fireside, and is explained in an old gloss by meretrix foco assidens. See Ducange. The following article is in the Decreta of Pope Alexander: 'Ne clerici in sacris ordinibus constituti focarias habeant;' and there is also a chapter in the statutes of Stephen, Archbishop of Canterbury, MS. Cott. Julius D. ii. leaf 167, 'De focariis amovendis.' Other instances will be found in Mr. Wright's note to the passage quoted above. 'Focaria, i. coquinaria.' Medulla. 'Focaria. In the Liber Albus, p. 273, is a Regulation that no leper is to be found in the city, night or day, on pain of imprisonment; alms were, however, to be collected for them on Sundays. Again, on p. 590 are further regulations that Jews, lepers and swine are to be driven from the city. See Prof. Skeat's note to P. Plowman, C. x. 179 and xix. 273.

¹ In the Ancren Riwle, p. 268, Anchoreesses are warned against one deceit of the devil that 'he lileð cruelte mid heowe of rihtwisesse;' and again, p. 392, the author says, 'Ine schelde beoð preo jinges, þet treo, and þet leðer, & þe litinge.' Lyttesters occurs in the York Records, p. 235. Halliwell quotes from the Linc. Med. MS. leaf 313: 'Tak the greia of the wyne that mene fyndis in the tounnes, that litsters and goldsmythes uses.' In Genesis & Exodus, Joseph's brethren steeped his coat in the blood of a kid, so that 'so was ðor-on an rewli lit.' 'Lyttle colours. Vide in Dye, &c. Lyttle of colours. Tinctor.' Huloet. In the Destruction of Troy, l. 3988, Andromache is described as having

Ryd as þe Roose wikede in hir chekes, and at l. 7374 of the same work the Greeks prepare to take the field,

'When the light vp launchit, littid the erthe.'

G. Douglas also uses the word in his trans. of the Æneid, vii. p. 226—

'Als sone as was the grete melle begun, The erthe littit with blode and all ouer run.'

In the Early Metrical Version Ps. lxxvii. 24 runs—

'Fat þi fote be lited in blode o lim, þe tunge of þi hundes fra faas of him;'

and in St. Katherine, l. 1432, we read—

'Ah wið se swiðe lufsume leores Ha leien, se rudie & se reade i-litid.'

⁵ Chaucer in the Prol. to the C. T. l. 120, speaking of the Prioress says: 'Hire gretteste ooth nas but by seint Loy,' that is, by Saint Eligius, whose name in French became Eloi or Eloy, in which form we find it in Lyndesay's Monarche, 2299—

'Sanct Eloy he doith straitly stand, Ane new hors schoo in tyll his hand.'

Saint Eligius, who is said to have constructed a saddle of extraordinary qualities for king Dagobert, was the patron saint of farriers: thus in Sir T. More's A Dialogue, &c. bk. II. c. x, p. 194 (ed. 1577), we read: 'Saint Loy we make an horseleche, and must let our horse rather renne vnshod and marre his hoofe, than to shooc him on his daye, which we must

So, too, Chaucer in the Freres Tale, l. 1564, makes the carter pray to 'God and seint Loy,' and Lyndesay says again, l. 2367, 'Sum makis offrande to sanct Eloye, That he thare hors may weill connoye.' Beside the farriers, goldsmiths also looked up to Saint Loy as their patron: thus Barnaby Googe (quoted in Brande, Pop. Antiq.) says—

'And Loye the smith doth looke to horse, and smithes of all degree,

If they with iron meddle here, or if they goldsmithes bee.'

The life of this Saint will be found in Butler's Lives of the Saints, under December 1st. See the Academy, May 29th, June 12th and 19th, 1880.

'Of his mouth a petuus thing to se The loppit blude in ded thraw voydis he.'

Ray in his Glossary gives 'Lopperd milk, such as stands so long till it sours and curdles of itself. Hence "a lopperd slut." Still in use in the North. See Jamieson, s. v. Lapper. Prov. ² A maker of lorimery or metal work for the trappings of horses. The representatives of this ancient trade are now called 'Loriners' or 'Lorimers.' In one MS. of the Ancien Rieue, p. 184, the Anchoress is bidden 'hwose euer mis-seið þe, oðer mis-deð þe, nim zeme and understond þat he is þi file þat lorimers habben.' ³ Of William of Palerne we are told that 'Lieres ne losengeres loued he neuer none, but tok to him tidely trewe cunsayl euere.' l. 5841. The word also occurs in Sir Ferumbras, l. 4196, where Charles having at the instigation of traitors given orders for a retreat into France, 'Pan waxe sory þe gode barouns, þat þay scholde don op hure pauillouns;

By þe conseil of losengeres.'

⁴ Randle Holme, under 'How several sorts of Fish are named, according to their Age or Growth,' p. 345, gives—'A Pike, first a Hurling pick, then a Pickerel, then a Pike, then a Luce or Lucie.' Harrison, Descript. of Eng. ii. 18, tells us that 'the pike as he ageth receiveth diverse names, as from a pie to a gilthead, from a gilthead to a pod, from a pod to a iacke, from a iacke to a pickerell, from a pickerell to a pike, and last of all to a luce.' Gawain Douglas in his trans. of the Virgil, Æneidos viii. p. 242, describing how Æneas made his libation and prayer to the nymphs, says—

'In the holl luffis of his hand, quhare he stude, Dewly the wattir hynt he fra the flude.'

'That dougheti dughlas, lyff-tenant of the marches, he lay slean chyviat within';

and again in the Boke of Noblesse, 1475 (repr. 1860, p. 35), we have, 'whiche townes and fortresses after was delivered ayen to the king Edward by the moyen of Edmonde erle of Kent, his liefetenaunt.' Heywood in his Four Prentises, 1615, l. iii., spells the word liefetenant, and Purchas in his Pilgrimage, 1613, vol. i. bk. iv. c. ii. has lieftenant. Caxton, I believe, invariably uses the form lieutenaunt.

² 'And for there luf a luge is dyt Fulle hye upon an hille.' MS. Cantab. Ff. v. 48. lf. 49.

³ Lapidinarius: Qui lapides a lapicedia [locus ubi lapides erantur] eruit; Fr. carrieu (Vet. Glos.). D'Arnis. Loge is used frequently in the Destr. of Troy for a tent as in l. 813—

'Enon lurkys to his loge, & laide hym to slepe'; and in l. 6026 it is applied to temporary shelters of boughs and leaves—

'For the prise kynges Logges to las men with leuys of wode.'

Grete tenttes to graide, as faire degre askit,

In De Deguileville's Pilgrimage, MS. John's Coll. Camb. leaf 126, we find—'Pow muste entyr thidder in and luge the in ane of the castellys,' and Gawain Douglas, in his King Hart, ed. Small, p. 109, l. 16, has: 'Quhat wedder is thairout vnder the luge?' and again Aeneas, Bk. vii. p. 224—

‘Frendship flemyt is in France, and fayth has the flicht;
Leyis, lurdanry and lust ar oure laid sterne.’

² Wyclif in his version of Joshua x. 27 has, ‘the whiche doon doun thei threwen hem into the spelonk, in the which thei lorkiden’ [in qua latuerant]; and in I. Paralip. xii. 8, ‘of Gaddi ouerflowen to Dauid, whanne he lurkide [cum lateret] in desert, most stronge men, and best fighters.’ See the Destruction of Troy, l. 1167, where the Greeks are described as having ‘lurkyt vnder lefesals loget with vines.’

In l. 13106 of the same poem it is used with the meaning of departing stealthily, stealing away—‘Vlyxes the Lord, that lurkyd by nyght firo the Cite to the see.’

‘I lurke and dare.’ Townley Myst. 137. See also Allit. Poems, C. 277, where Jonah having inspected ‘veche a nok’ of the whale’s belly ‘penne lurkkes & laytes where wat3 le best,’ ‘To lurk or lie hid. Lateo, latito. To lurk privily upon the ground. Latibulo. A lurking hole. Latebra, &c.’ Gouldman. ‘I lurke, I hyde my selfe. Je me musse. When I come to the house, you lurke ever in some corner.’ Palsgrave. The MS. repeats delitere, -tescere.

³ Baret has ‘a loouer, or tunnell in the rooffe, or top of a great hall to auoid smoke, fumarium.’ In his directions for the proper arrangement of a house Neckham says—lurers ordine

‘specularia autem competenter sint disposita in domo orientales partes respiciencia; where the meaning seems to be a side-window in the hall.’ De Utensilibus, in Wright’s Vol. of Vocab. p. 109. ‘Lovor or fomerill. Fumarium et infumibulum.’ Withals. ‘Fumarium, a chymney or a fomerall.’ Medulla. See P. Plowman, C. xxi. 288, Romans of Partenay, 1175, &c.

⁴ ‘Mace, spice; macier.’ Manip. Vocab. ‘Mace, spice, macis.’ Baret.

⁶ The scribe of Lord Monson’s MS. has here completely muddled the two words mad and made; he has copied as follows:—

‘to be Madde; fieri, dementare, & cetera: to be fonde, & cetera, ut supra.’

In Wyclif’s version of the New Testament John x. 20 is rendered ‘And so dissencioun was maad among the Jewis for thes wordis. Forsothe manye of hem seiden, He hath a deuel, and maddith [or wexith wood]; what heeren 3e him.’ See also Deeds viii. 11 and xii. 15. The word occurs with a transitive meaning in Allit. Poems, A. 359—and the noun maddyng, folly, is found at l. 1153, and also in King Alisaunder, p. 121. ‘I madde, I waxe or become mad. Je enraige. I holde my lyfe on it the felowe maddeth.’ Palsgrave. ‘For grete aegeoldemendoot and madde.’ Glanvil, De Propr. Rerum, Bk. I. ch. i. p. 187.

Cotgrave gives ‘Garance f. the herbe madder; with whose root Dyers make cloth Orange tawny, or, for a need, Red; and joyning it with wood, black.’ Cooper in his Thesaurus, 1584, explains Sandix by ‘a colour made of ceruse and ruddle burned together.’ ‘I madder clothe to be dyed. Je garence. Your vyolet hath not his full dye but he his maddered.’ Palsgrave. See Cockayne’s Leechdoms, iii. 337.

¹ The term maiden and its derivatives, as maidenhood, maiden-clean, &c., were not uncommonly applied to persons of both sexes. Thus, besides the passage in P. Plowman, C. xi. 281, where Wit advises marriage between 'maydenes and maydenes,' that is between bachelors and spinsters, in the Poem of Anticrist, l. 105, we find—

'Crist him-selven chese
Be born in bethleem for ur ese and in Havelok, l. 995, we read of and in Lonelich's Holy Grail, xvi. 680—

'On of hem my Cosin was, And a clene Maiden and ful of gras.'
So, too, in Trevisa's trans. of Higden, v. 69, where the writer speaking of Siriacus says, 'he was clene mayde i-martred wip þe same maydenes' [ipse virgo existens]. 'Man beying a mayde, puceau.' Palsgrave.

Plate armour was, as its name implies, formed of plates of steel or iron, while mail armour was composed of small rings or links. Cotgrave gives 'Maille, maile, or a linke of maile (whereof coats of mail be made); also a Hauther, or any little ring of mettall resembling a linke of maile.' In the duel between Oliver and Sir Ferumbras the latter deals a blow on Oliver's helmet and 'of ys auantaile wyþ þat stroke carf wel many a maylle.' Sir Ferumbras, l. 624; and again, l. 876, when Oliver was surrounded by the Saracens he 'gan hym sturie about, & for-hewþ hem plate & maille.' 'Mayle of a halburjon, maille.' Palsgrave. See the description of the habergeon which the pilgrim receives from 'Grace Dieu' in De Deguileville's Pilgrimage, ed. Wright, p. 61, where she says: 'for no wepene y-grounden ther was neuere mayl y-broken. For with the nailes with whiche was nayled the sone of the smith and ryven the mailes were enclosed and rivetted.' 'Squama, mayles or lytle plates in an haberieon, or coate of fense: duplici squama lorica. Virgil.' Cooper, 1584. Cotgrave notes as a proverb 'Maille à maille on fait les haubergeons; linke after linke the coat is made at length; peece after peece things come to perfection.'

³ A mixture of wheat and rye. 'Medylde corne, mixtilio.' Wright's Vocab. p. 178. The term is used also for a kind of mixed metal [? bronze] as in Ancien Rivele, p. 284, where are mentioned 'golt, seluer, stel, iron, copper, mestling, breas.' See also the description of the chamber of Floripas in Sir Ferumbras, l. 1327—

'Pe wyndowes wern y-mad of iaspere & of oþre stones fyne,

Y-poudred wyþ perree of polastre, þe leues were masalyne.'

See also Hali Meidenhad, p. 9, and Robert of Gloucester, p. 87. Stratmann gives the term mestlingsmiþ, a worker in mixed metal as occurring in a poem of the 12th century. A. Boorde in his Dyetary, ch. xi. p. 258, says—'Mestlyng breade is made, halfe of whete, and halfe of Rye.' 'White wheat massledine will outsell dodde-read-massledine 6d. in a quarter.' H. to Meruelle; Admirari virtutes, ammirari, commirari opera, irrigere, stupere, con-, ex-, ob-, stupescere, con-, ex-, ob-, stupifacere, stupidare, stupifio.

a Meruelle; mirum, monstrum, monstruositas, portentum, prodigium, prodigalitas, ostentum, signum. Ostentum est ostencio quedam preter consuetudinem obiciens se oculis & auribus. Portentum est quod ex formis diuersis exponitur et homo equo mixtus. Monstrum quodcumque ex natura⁴ nascitur et serpens cum pedibus. Prodigium quod porro ad futurum demonstrat ut in celo stella cometa, vel lux in nocte vel in die tenebre, vel sic secundum grecismum; versus:

¶ Prodigium seu portentum concede futuris,

Ostentum siue monstrum presentibus adde,

Presenti signum concedaturque futuris.

Vel portentum in terra, prodigium in celo quia procul a digito. Sed hec proprietas abusione autorum plerumque corrumpitur. ¶ Item

¹ Mr. Way in his note s. v. Market daschare, p. 326, quotes this word and explains it as one who swaggers about and elbows his way through the crowd, but Cooper gives 'Circumforaneus, an idle wayter in markets to tell or heare news: one that goeth aboute to markets to sell as pedlars,' from which the meaning seems rather to be a lazy, gossiping loiterer. The Reeve in Chaucer describes the Miller of Trumpington as 'a market betere atte fulle.' C. T. 3936. 'He is a loyterer and a wanderer: circumforaneus est.' Huloet. 'Market man, or haunter of markets. Agoræus.' ibid. In Wyclif's Tract On Servants and Lords, ed. Matthew, p. 242, he complains that bad priests are encouraged and supported by gentlemen, 'so þat þis worldly curat makij hem grete festis & wastij pore mennus almes in jiftis of wyn & vanytes; 3e, þou3 he be a market betere, a marchaunt, a meyntenour of wrongis at louedaies, a fals suerere, a manuellere & irreguler;' and again, p. 172, he complains that 'þei ben corseris & makers of malt, & bien schep & neet & sellen hem for wynnyng, & beten marketis, & entermeten hem of louedaies.'

² Harrison in his Description of England, ii. 30, enumerates amongst the hawks of this country 'the lanner and the lanneret: the torsell and the gosehawke; the musket and the sparhawke; the iacke and the hobbie: and finallie some (though verie few) marlions.' 'Merlyn, hawke. Melenetus.' Huloet. In 'A Song of Merci' in Early Eng. Poems, ed. Furnivall, xxv. 9, we find 'A merlyon, a brid hedde bent.' Chaucer also has the spelling merlion, and Palsgrave gives 'Marlyon a hawke, esmerillon.' 'I am neither gersaucoun ne faucon ne sperhawk ne a merlyoun ne noon oother faucowners brid thus for to be bownde with gessis.' De Deguileville's Pilgrimage, ed. W. A. Wright, p. 107. Cockeram has in his list of 'Long winged Hawks,' the 'Merlion, the male is called a lack.'

³ 'Siren. A mermayden, et serpis cum aliis et piscis.' Medulla. 'A mermaide, siren.' Baret. See Babees Boke, ed. Furnivall, p. 117. 'Hec sirena, a mermaydyn.' Wright's Vocab. p. 222. In the Harl. MS. trans. of Higden, v. 397, we are told that 'meremaydes were seene . . . in the similitude of men and also of women' in the Nile by the Roman army; Trevisa's version being, 'þe oost of Rome sij mermyns in liknes of men and of women.' In the account of the voyage of the Trojans under Brutus, it is said that when they reached the Pillars of Hercules

'þer heo funden þe merminnen, þat beoð deor of muchele ginnen:
wifnen hit þunchet fulwis, bi-neoðe þon gurdle hit þunchað fisc.

² In the Allit. Poema, B. 764, Abraham when pleading for Sodom says—

'If ten trysty in toun be tan in þi werkke;

Wylt þou mese þy mode and menddyng abyde!'

So also in the Townley Mysteries, p. 175—'mese youre hart, and mend youre mode.'

Compare G. Douglas, Aeneidos, ii. p. 42: '3e mesit the wyndis'; and i. p. 14—

'King Eolus set heich apoun his chare,

With scepture in hand, thare mude to meis and still.'

and in P. Plowman, B. xv. 52—'þanne he brougt vs forth a mees of other mete.' See also Allit. Poems, B. 637.

⁴ 'Y^e Maysilles, variola.' Manip. Vocab. Prof. Skeat has shown that this word is quite distinct from the M. E. mesel, meselrie, which mean a leper or leprosy, as in the following: 'Wip-oute eny dowte, for what cause it euer were þat he was i-smyte wip meselrie, hit is soop þat Silvester heled hym of his meselrie [lepra].' Trevisa's Higden, vol. v. p. 125.

'Whan (Jesus) wente into a castel ten meselis comen agens him. . . . But whan Crist siþ þes leprous men cryng þus, &c.' Wyclif, Works, ed. Arnold, i. 34. Coles renders serpedo by 'a rednes in the skin with wheales.' 'Hec lepra, a mesylery. Hec serpedo, a mesylle.' Wright's Vocab. p. 224. 'Lepra. A meselrye.' Medulla.

'Al weren þe hallen bi-hongen mid pellen, Alle þai mete-burdes ibrusted mid golde.'

³ And thou shalt make a meet bord of the trees of Sichym, hauynge two cubitis of lengthe, and in brede o cubijt, and in heijt o cubijt and an half.' Wyclif, Exodus xxv. 23. See also xxxv. 13, where is mentioned 'the meet bord with berynge staues.' See also Trevisa's Higden, iii. 67, where he speaks of the 'goldene metebord' þat was in Appolyn Delphicus his temple; and again, iv. 115, he says, that Antiochus took away 'þe mete borde' [mensam] from the temple at Jerusalem. 'Hec escaria, a met-tabylle.' Wright's Vocab. p. 235.

⁴ 'He earneð him ouerfullet ful and ouereorninde met of heuenliche mede.' Hali Meidenhad, p. 19. The author of Genesis & Exodus says of Cain, l. 439, that 'Met of corn & wigte of fe, And merke of felde first fond he;'

and at l. 3333 we are told that the Israelites gathered the manna in a 'met . . . het gornor.' See also Legends of the Holy Rood, p. 79, l. 621, where the carpenters are described as seeking for a large beam for the temple, but

'Nowre-where might þai find a tre, þat wald acorde vnto þaire met.'

⁶ A cage for moulting hawks. Cotgrave gives 'Reservoir, a coop or mue for fowle; a stue or pond for fish; and 'Mue, f. any casting of the coat or skinn, as the mewing of a Hawke; also a Hawke's mue; and a mue or coope wherein fowle is fattened.' 'Muta, accipitrum morbus et domuncula in qua includuntur falcones, cum plumas mutant; maladie des oiseaux appelée mue, et volière où l'on enferme les oiseaux de chasse tant que dure cette maladie.' Ducange. Tusser in his Five Hundred Pointes, chap. 36, st. 76, amongst other directions for February, says—

'Good flight who loues, Bid hawking adew, Must feed their doues, Cast hawks into mew.'

⁷ 'A mue for haukes, cauca vel cauceola accipitrum; to mue an hauke, in caueam, &c., compingere accipitrem.' Baret. In Palladius on Husbandrie, p. 20, l. 526, we read—

'This hous aboute also make up thi mewes,
For dounge of foules is ful necessarie To lond tillynge.'

⁸ Mewle. 'To meaw or meawle (as a cat), miauler, mioler. A meawing, or meawling, mialement, miault; a meawer or meawler, miauleur.' Cotgrave. 'Chat mynowe (meute) serpent ciphete (scisset)'. W. de Bibelsworth, in Wright's Vocab. p. 152.

⁹ A common expression for the earth or world, which occurs under the various forms, middelærð, middilerpe, midelarde, midden-erde, &c. In Havelok, 2244, we are told of the hero that—'In þis middelerd [was] no knith Half so strong, ne half so with.' So in St. Jerome's xv Tokens before Doomsday we read that fire shall 'breanne al þe middelerd,' on the 14th day, and on 'þe xv dai schollen, iiiiij. Angels comen aiiiiij. half mydlerde.' ed. Baret gives 'A milke paille, multrale.' Skele or skeel is still in use in the North in the sense of a dairy vessel, containing some 5 or 6 gallons. It is of a conical shape, with an upright handle; though sometimes two-handled. Cotgrave has 'Paille, a footlesse Posnet or Skellet.' See Skele, hereafter. 'Multrale. A chesfat or A dayes payle.' Medulla.

² Baret gives 'White meates, lactaria, lactinia.' The expression means butter, eggs, milk, cheese, &c., and under the form white meate occurs several times in Tusser; as in ch. xlvii. 20, 'Slut Cissy vntaught, Hath whitemeat naught.' 'Milkye meates, or meates made of milke. Lactaria, et Lactarius, he that maketh suche meates.' Huloet.

⁵ The gloss on W. de Biblesworth pr. in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 166, explains taupes by 'moldewarpes.' In the Wyclifite version Isaiah ii. 20 is thus rendered: 'In that day shal a man throwe away the maumetes of his siluer and the symulacris of his gold, that he hadde mad to hym, that he shulde honoure moldewerpes and veremees;' and Levit. xi. 30: 'A camelion, that is a beeste varied in to diuerse colours, after diuerse lokingis, and a stellion, that is a werms depeyntid as with steris, and a lacert, that is a serpent that is clepid a liserd, and a moldwerp.' Caxton in his Chron. of England, pt. v. p. 48, says—'then shall aryse up a dragon of the north that shall be full fyers, and shall meue warre agaynste the moldwarpe. and the moldwarpe shal have no maner of power save onely a shyp wherto he may wende.' The word is still in use in the North; see Peacock's Gloss. of Manley & Corringham, &c. 'A mole or want, talpa.' Baret. 'A molwart, talpa.' Manip. Vocab. 'Taulpe, f. the little beast called a mole or moldewarpe.' Cotgrave. That which warps or turns up the mould or ground. In Richmond. Wills, pp. 229, 231, we read of 'moldwarppe' hats, i.e. made of moles skins. See Best's Farming, &c., Book, p. 140.

⁶ Lydgate has 'What do I than but laugh and make a mowce?' So also Chaucer—

'Their sowne was so ful of japes As ever mowis were in apes.'

'To mowe, mouere labia.' Manip. Vocab. Baret gives 'to make a mow like an ape, distorquere os.' See also to Girne, ante, p. 156. In Ascham's Scholmaster we read—'if som Smithfeild Ruffian take vp som strange going; som new mowing with the mouth, &c.' See also Shakspeare, Cymbeline, Act i. Sc. 7. Wyclif renders Psalms xxxiv. 16 as follows: 'thei tempteden me, thei undermouwen me with undermouwing [thei scorniden me with mouying P. subsannaverunt me subsannatione. Stubbes in his Anatomic of Abuses, p. 145, while inveighing against the evils and dangers of plays, declares that nothing is learnt from them but wickedness, as, for instance, 'to iest, laugh, and fleer, to grin, to nodd, and mow.' ⁴ A Moulding board; the board upon which bread was kneaded and moulded into loaves. In the Liber Albus, iii. 416, we read of a charge against Johannes Brid, a baker, of stealing dough by making holes in the moulding-boards, 'quoddam foramen super quamdam tabulam suam, quae vocatur moldingbotde, ad pistrinam pertinentem, pendentes artificioseque fieri fecit, ad modum muscipulae in qua mures capiuntur, cum quodam scyhetto caute proviso ad foramen illud obturandum et aperiendum.' ⁵ To mulde is the word applied to the taking of the multura or toll for grinding corn. The word is still in use in the North. Jamieson gives 'Mouter, to take multure for grinding corn; multure, the fee for grinding corn, Fr. mouture; Lat. molitura. Mul-turer, the tacksman of a mill.' Ducange says 'Molitura, praestatio pro molitura,' and Cotgrave has 'Moulage, m. grist, grinding; also Multure, the fee or toll that's due for grinding.' Cooper, 1584, says of Metreta 'as Dioscorides sayeth, it conteyneth ten congios that is, of our measure .10. gallons and .10. pintes, which is .11. gallons and a quarte. Georgius Agricola sayth it conteyneth .12. congios that is .72. sextarios, and then is it a greater measure, onlesse ye will take sextarius as phisitions doo for .18. ounces, & not for .24. as Budey doth whose accompt I follow.' 'Then doe wee . . . have for every bushell of corne very neare sixe peckes of meale, if the corne bee dry; or else the fault is in the miller that taketh more mouter than is his due.' H. ⁶ Baret gives 'to Moot, or canues a case of the law for exercise.' Ben Jonson, in his Discoveries, says 'There is a difference betweene mooting and pleading.' 'To moote, arguere, mouere dubia.' Manip. Vocab. 'To moote, disputer, ou plaidoyer une cause de loy, par maniere d'exercice; et les jeunes estudiants, qui font cet exercice sont nommez mootzmen.' Cotgrave. 'Mota, curia placitum, conventus: motatio, lis controversia, dispute.' Ducange. The word is still kept up in the Wardmotes, or meetings of the Wards in the City of London, and in the phrase 'a moot point.' In Wright's Political Songs, Camden Soc. p. 336, we are told—'Justises, shirreves, meires, baillifs . . .

Hii gon out of the heie way, ne leven hii for no sklandre,

And maken the mot-halle at home in here chaumbre wid wouk.'

Wyclif in his version of Matt. xxvii. 27 has: 'Thanne knytis of the president takynge Jhesu in the mote halle gedriden to hym alle the cumpanye of knytis,' and in John xviii.

In Deguileville's Pilgrimage of the Lif of the Manhode, Roxburgh Club, ed. W. A. Wright, p. 185, we read, 'for oure mootiere thou art and oure sergantesse.' See also Job xx. 19. 'A nu nacnes mon mi lef.' Old Eng. Homilies, i. 283.

⁴ This is the original meaning of namely in Middle English, and its use is frequent. Thus Hampole tells us, P. of Cons., 171, that a man should learn and so in Trevisa's Higden, vi. 257: 'Charles hadde greet lykynge in Austyn his bookes; and nameliche [potissime] in his bookes de Civitate Dei.'

'Namly of þat at hym fel to know, þat myght meke his hert and make it law.'

¹ One of the words in which the initial n has now been lost: compare adder. In the Prologue to the Tale of Beryn, l. 33, we read of the tapster's 'napron feir and white i-wassh.' In the Will of Jeanne Lewen, 1569, pr. in Wills & Inventories (Surtees Soc.), vol. ii. p. 305, the testatrix bequeaths 'to Alles Barnes a gowne of worsted and a napron of worsted.' In the Ordinances for Royal Households (Liber Niger Ed. IV.), p. 52, it is directed that the sergeant of the 'vestiary' is to have 'at eueryche of the iiij festes in the 3ere naprons of the grete spycery, two elles of linnen clothe, price ij^s. 'Item all nappery ware, as kyrcherys, appurnys, blankytts, shetys, coverlets, and sych other, xxviij^s.' Richmondshire Wills, &c. 1542 (Surtees Soc. vol. xxvi.), p. 27. 'Hic limas, A⁶⁶ naprone.' 'Storium, anything spreade on the ground, a mat.' Cooper. The poem alluded to by Mr. Way in his note in the Prompt. is Lydgate's metrical version of De Deguileville's Pilgrimage of the Life of Man, to which I have frequently referred in these pages, a prose version of which was edited for the Roxburgh Club in 1869 by Dr. Aldis Wright from a MS. in Trin. In the Ancren Riwle, p. 98, ostende mihi faciem tuam is rendered 'scheau to me þi leoue neb & ti lufsume leor.' See the 'Sarmun' in Early Eng. Poems, &c., ed. ¹ This is probably the latest instance of this, the true form of this word. The loss of the initial n, arising from a mistaken dividing of a nadder as an adder, first began in the South in 1200: thus in K. Alisaunder, l. 5262, we have 'grete addren,' and in the Ayenbite, p. 61, 'hi resembleþ an eddre þet hatte serayn.' In the North the true form was preserved much later. The Promptorium gives both forms, 'Eddyr or neddyr, wyrme. Serpens.' Nedder is still in use as a dialectal form in parts of the North. Barbour, xvi. 129, tells us how Robert Bruce knocks Sir Colin Campbell down 'with one transiounne intill his nave,' where one MS. reads neefe: and again, xx. 257, describing the grief of the Scottish knights at the death of Bruce, he says

² This spelling occurs several times in the St. John's Camb. MS. of W. de Deguileville's Pilgrimage of the Life of the Manhode. Thus we read: 'This helme [Temperance] stoppeth the eres, that to the herte ne to the thought na darte may mysdo, alle be it that the wikked neighbore can harde Schote his arowes & his Springaldys.' leaf 41^a. Jamieson says: 'it is frequently written nichtbour, nyghtbour; but, as would seem, corruptly.' 'Gif it be a man that awe the hows, and birnis it reklesly, or his wyfe, or his awin bairnis, quetheth his nychtbouris takis skaith or nane, attoure the skaith & schame that he thollis, he or thay salbe banist that towne for thre yeiris.' Acts, James I. of Scotland, 1426, c. 85, ed. 1566, c. 75. Wyclif frequently uses the form, as for instance in his Controversial Tracts (Works, ed. Arnold, iii. 368), 'love hor neighbors as homself; and, ibid. p. 153, 'to spoyle hor tenants and hor neighbors.' See also the Complaynt of Scotland, pp. 25, 168.

³ This is apparently a blow given on the back of the neck, especially in making a knight. Meyrick, in his Ancient Armour, Glossary, s. v. Alapa, says: 'The military blow given on making a knight by striking him three times on the shoulders with the blade of a sword, by which he was, as it were, manumitted from the prohibition of bearing arms. In the Ceremoniale Romanum, lib. i. s. 7, which relates to the knights made by the sovereign pontiff, we read: "Tum accipiens illius enssem nudum ter militem percutit plane super spatulas, dicens, 'Esto miles pacificus, strenuus, fidelis, et Deo devotus.'" Lambertus Ardensis says "Eidem comiti in signum militie gladium lateri, et calcaria sui militis aptavit, et alapam collo ejus inflavit." It was also termed colaphus, from collum, the neck; whence Norman colées. Compare a Boffet, above, and see Ducange, s. vv. Alapa and Colaphus. Wyclif's version of Proverbs xv. 1 is as follows: 'A nesshe answer breketh wrathe: an hard woord rereth woodnesse.' The phrase at nessche & hard, at hard & neychs, occurs in Sir Perumbras, ll. 3499, 5787 with the meaning of in every way, altogether. So also in Allit. Poems, A. 605, we have—

'Queper-so-euer he dele nesch ofer harde, He laue3 hys gyste3 as water of dyche.'

'Molico: to make nesshe. Mollicia: nesshede, Molliculus: sundel nesshe. Mollicico: to make nesshe. Medulla. Trevisa in his trans. of Higden, i. 333, describes Ireland as 'nesche, reyny, and wyndy' [pluviosa, ventosa, mollis]. 'If 3e quenche saturne liquified in wyyn or in comoun watir .7. tymes, and aftir ward in pat wyyn or water 3e quenche mars many tymes, panne mars schal take algate þe neischede and þe softnes of saturne.' The Book of Quinte Essence, ed. Coverdale, illi. Kings iv. 35. Turner in his Herbal, pt. i. p. 50, speaking of 'Follfoote' says, 'the rootes purge, as nezing powder called whyte hellebor doth'; and again, pt. ii. p. 21, he says that 'the powder of the drye herbe [marjoram gentle] put in a mannys nose, maketh him to nese.' and in p. 314, l. 12, it is used for a great-grandson :

² At the leist in this ilk mortall stryffe Suffir thy newe to remane alyffe.
Wyntoun in his Chronicles, vii. 9, 328, uses it for a nephew: 'his newow, Malcolme cald.' Baret gives 'a nephew, also a riotous person, nepos,' and Cooper has 'Nepotes, riotous persons: prodigall and wastfull ruffians.'

³ The Manip. Vocab. gives 'Newfangel, nouorum cupidus,' and 'Newfangle, nouarum rerum cupidus'; and Cotgrave 'Fantastique, fantastical, humorous, newfangled, giddie, skittish.' Sherwood has 'He is newfangled; Il a du mercure à la teste, il est fantasque, ou fantastique, il a la teste un peu gaillard.' Under the word 'gaillard' Cotgrave also gives the latter phrase in a slightly different form—'il a le cerveau un peu gaillard, hee is a little humorous, toyish, fantastical, new-fangled, light-headed.' Cooper renders nuperus by 'late happened or doone,' from which it would seem that the meanings given above do not correspond with that attached to the word in the Catholicon. In King Solomon's Book of Wisdom, ed. Furnivall, p. 83, l. 35, we read—'To newfangel ne be þou nouȝth,' where the meaning is inconstant, fickle. Chaucer, Squyere's Tale, uses the word in the sense of dainty, nice: 'so newefangel be thei of ther mete.' 'New fangled, nat constante and stedy of purpose, muable.' Palsgrave. The old meaning appears in Shakspeare, Love's Lab. Lost, I. i. 106, and As You Like It, IV. i. 152.

² Trevisa in his trans. of Higden, i. 231, speaks of 'a dwelf . . . his craft was nigremansi [arte nigromanticus].' The term had a very much wider meaning than the modern necromancy: thus Horman has, 'He is all sette to nygrymancy and conjuryng. Addictus est mathematica.' See the Coventry Mysteries, p. 189, where we have 'calculation and negremauncye, augtrym and asmatryk.' On the history of the word see Trench, English Past and Present, 4th ed. p. 244, and Prof. Skeat's note to P. Plowman, A. xi. 158. 'A necromancer, or he that calleth upon damned spirits. Veneficus, necromanticus.' Gouldman. See Gesta Romanorum, pp. 1, 2, &c.

³ Cooper and Baret give 'Tenuis, a snare; the noche or ende of a bow,' and Baret in addition gives 'a noche or notch in a score, a notch in a bow, the dent or notch in a leaf about the brimmes, crena.' 'Coche, f. a nock, notch, nich, snip or neb.' Cotgrave. 'A nick, incisura, crena.' Manip. Vocab. See also Prompt. s. v. Nokke. 'The noche of the bowe & of the arrowe were to straye for the stryng. Crena tam arcus quam sagitta arctior erat quam ut neruum caperet.' Horman. Gawin Douglas describes how the men drew the bows so hard that 'The bow and nokkis met almaist.' Eneados, p. 396, l. 35. In the same work, p. 156, l. 17, the word is used for the corner or extremity of a sallyard. See also p. 144, l. 50. 'The roote beyng cut, nicked, or notched, about the last end of heruest.' Turner, Herbal, pt. ii. lf. 58. 'Tenuis, id est laqueus.' Ortus. Thomas in his Italian Dict. gives 'Cocca, the nocke of an arrowe, or the lyke holowness digged in any thyng, and many tymes it is taken for the nutte of a crossebowe, or for a foyste of the sea.' 'Nocke of a bowe, oche de larc. Nocke of a shafte, oche de la flesche. I nocke an arrowe, I put the nocke in to the stryng. Je encoychs. He nocketh his bowe, by all symylytude he intendeth to shoote.' Palgrave. See Romaunt of Rose, 942.

⁴ That is a mark made as a score upon a stick: a common way of keeping count or tally. Palgrave gives 'I nycke, I make nyckes on a tayle, or on a stycke. Je oche. It is no trewe poynte to nycke four tayle or to have mo nyckes upon your tayle than I have upon myne.' Compare Score, below.

⁵ 'A nit, lens: the broth of the rootes and leaues of Beestes scowreth away scurfe or scalles and nittes out of the head, and assewageth the paine of kibed heeles, being bathed therewith.' Baret. 'A nit, lens.' Manip. Vocab. Cotgrave gives 'Nitte, f. a nit or chit.' 'Lens, nete.' Wright's Vocab. p. 177. 'Hec lens, A^m nyte.' ibid. p. 190. A. S. hnutu, which appears in Aelfric's Gloss. (Wright's Vocab. p. 24) as the gloss to 'lens vel lendix.'

² See Prof. Skeat's note to P. Plowman, C. xxi. 7.

³ Undern or underntide was properly the third hour of the day, or 9 a.m., but it appears to have been sometimes loosely used for the forenoon generally. Thus in the account of the crucifixion as given in the Cursor Mundi, 16741, we find—

'Bi þis was vndren on þe dai, þat mirckend al þe light.'

where the meaning is the sixth hour or noon. Robert of Brunne in his Chronicle, p. 243, describes the death of Wencilian, daughter of Llewellyn of Wales, as occurring 'bituex vndron and prime.' See also Chaucer, Nonnes Prestes Tale, 4412, and Clerkes Tale, 260. In the Ancien Riwle, p. 24, anchoresses are directed to say 'seoue psalmes & teos fiftene psalmes . . . abuten undren deies.' see also p. 400. In the Ormulum, 19458, it is related how

'Godess gast off heffne comm I firess onnicnesse Uppo þe Laferdd Cristess hird, An da33 att unnderrn time.'

Wyclif in his version of Mark xv. 25 has: 'forsoth it was the thridde our (that men clepen vndrun) and thei crucifieden him;' while in John iv. 6 he says: 'sothli the our was, as the sixte, or vndurn.' In Acts ii. 15 it is again 'the thridde our of the day, or vndirne.' In the Allit. Poems, A. 512, the third hour is meant—

'Aboute vnder, þe lord to marked tot3 & ydel men stande he fynde3 þer-ate.'

See also Genesis & Exodus, 2269. Amongst his hymns for the 'oures' Shoreham has for the third hour or tierce, 'Crucyfige! crucyfige! Gredden hy at ondre.' In the Lay-Folks Mass-Book, p. 131, intending travellers are recommended before starting 'to here a masse to ende I rede beo vnderne ar þou go

In þe Morennyng 3if þow may; Or elles be he3 midday.'

And 3if þou may not do so

Lyte's Dodoens, p. 39. Cotgrave gives 'Orpin, m. orpin, liblong, or live-long: an herb: also, orpine, orpiment, or arsenick: a drug.' The Manip. Vocab. renders orpin by 'telepinum,' which appears to be synonymous with telephion of which Cooper says 'an hearbe that Ruellius taketh to be Faba inuersa or crassula minor: Musa thinketh it a kinde of Anthyllis: some take it to be orpin.'

³ Still in use in the North; see Mr. Peacock's Gloss. of Manley & Corringham, &c. The word occurs twice in Shakspeare, Timon of Athens, IV. iii. 400, and Troilus & Cressida, V. ii. 158. '*Orts. ⁴ See also a Nosylle, above. Trevisa in his trans. of Higden, i. 187, speaking of Arcadia says that 'pere bee also white wesels [merula]; pe wesels be blak among vs: pere bey beep white.' The form osul also occurs at p. 237. 'En braunche seet la merle (an hosel-brit [osel]).' W. de Biblesworth in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 164. 'Merula; osle.' ibid. p. 281. In the Liber Cure Cocorum, p. 36, are mentioned the 'osel, smityng [snite], laveroc gray.' A. S. osle.

⁵ 'Abatis: an hostler.' Ortus. Trevisa in his trans. of Higden, v. 97, translates hostiarius by hostiary, the meaning being apparently a doorkeeper: 'Gayus the pope succeeded Euticianus xx. yere; whiche ordeynede diverse degres of ordres in pe church, as hostiary, reder, benette, accolette and oper.' See Shoreham, p. 46, and cf. Vschere, below.

⁶ In the later Wyclifite version of the parable of the good Samaritan, Luke x. 34 runs as follows: 'a Samaritan . . . leide hym on his beest, and ledde in to an ostrie [stable W. stabulum V.] and dide the cure of hym.' Peacock in his Repressor, p. 521, has: 'I aske of thee whi in a town which is a thoruzfaar toward Londoun ben so manye Ostrics clepid Innes for to logge gistas, &c.?' See also ibid. p. 523. 'To the ostry I wente firste thynkande to herberwe me par.' De Deguileville's Pilgrimage, John's MS. ff. 127. Baret gives 'an Hostrie, hospicium.' P. also has 'Syne of an Ostry of an in.' In the Gesta Romanorum, p. 90, we read—'a faire lady was loggid in pe same ostry.' See also ibid. p. 19.

⁴ As much land as an ox could plough in a season: according to some fifteen, but according to others twenty acres. Mas de terre, an oxegang, plowland or hide of land, containing about 20 acres and having a house belonging to it. Cotgrave. 'An oxegang, mas de terre; contient 20 acres (c'est à dire, arpens d'Angleterre).' Sherwood. 'Oxgang of land. Viginti jugera terræ.' Gouldman. An old account book of Darlington states that 30 a. is an oxgang in Sedgefield, 16 at Hurworth, and 20 in Yorkshire—in some places 8 acres seems to be the quantity. The Oxgang was generally 8 to the carucate, but sometimes 4; thus the carucate being what a team (of 8 oxen) could plough in the year, the Oxgang stood for the work of one ox, and the plough being in some counties drawn but by four oxen, accounts for there being in that case but four oxgangs to the carucate, or if they be called 8, the average of each is proportionably reduced. Sir E. Coke, in his Institutes, fo. 69, says: 'Others say that a knights fee containeth 680 acres: others say that an oxegange of Land containeth 15 acres, and eight oxgangs make a plowland; by which account a plowland containes 120 acres, and that virgata terræ, or a yard land containeth 20 acres.' See a long and exhaustive note on the word in H. Best's Farming, &c. Books, p. 127.

'A page of ouris we sall nocht tyne.' Barbour's Bruce, xix. 693.

² Horman says 'Alexander played a payante more worthy to be wondred vpon for his rasshe adventure than for his manhede (rem ausus est),' answering to our expression 'played a part.' In a letter from John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the city of London, and Compiler of the Liber Albus, descriptive of the entry of Henry VI into London, February 20th, 1432, we are told that near London Bridge was prepared a giant of extraordinary size, and 'ex utroque latere ipsius gigantis in eadem pagina erigebantur duo animalia vocata "antelops." ' Liber Albus, iii. 459. See Prof. Skeat's Etymol. Dict. s. v. Pageant. Wyclif uses the form pagyn, Works, ed. Matthew, p. 206.

³ Hampole says that

'pe life of þe saule mare him [God] pays Nolo mortem peccatoris, &c.'

þan þe dede, for þus him-self says:

'Let me leve evyr to thi pay.' Coventry Myst. p. 49. Fr. payer, to satisfy, please, from Lat. pacare, to appease.

⁴ A. divides this word under the two headings of paid, and satisfied: 'Payed; pacatus, solutus. Payd; contentus, paciens.'

⁵ Paynim properly means the country of Pagans, representing the latin paganismus. In this sense it is used in King Horn, 803, where we read of 'a Geaunt . . . i-arived fram paynym.' 'Payen, a pagan, paynim, infidel, heathen man.' Cotgrave. 'A panyim, ethnīcus.' Manip. Vocab. Wyclif uses paynymes in the sense of gentiles: 'Jee forsothe ben Jentiles, or paynymes, fro the bigynyng forsaken, the whiche neuere hadden knowleche of God, but euere to deueles han serued.' Romans, Prol. p. 298; see also Prol. to Hebrews, p. 480, and Matth. v. 48. 'Paynym. Paganus, Gentilis.' Huloet.

⁶ I do not understand this. Probably we should read 'a Pale or staffe.' 'Pale or enclosure, Palus. Pale in or enclose. Palo.' Huloet. '1620, April 4. Agreed with Matthew Carter for paylinge the swyne styte with sawen ashe payles . . . agreed also with him to pale the 3earde, and hee is to sawe the rayles and postes, and to have 4^d. per 3earde for his labor.' *Account Book of H. ² Huloet gives 'Palmer to rappe one in the hande, ferula,' and the Manip. Vocab. 'a Palmer in schole, ferula.' 'A Palmer or feruler, quia puerorum palme ea feriuntur in scholis.' Minsheu. 'Ferula, a pawmere.' Medulla.

⁴ In the Pricke of Conscience, l. 9180, we are told that

'þe pament of heven may lykened be Tille a pament of precyouse stanes and perre'; and in the Gesta Romanorum, p. 81, the false Emperor orders Jovinian to be drawn 'at the horse-taile on the pament.' So in Palladius On Husbandrie, ed. Lodge, we find instructions 'for to warme the pament undir an oil cellar.' 'Whenne y was nygh the awter y put of my showys and knelyd on my kneys vpon the pament and ofte tymys inclyned my heed doon to the grownd.' Revelation to the Monk of Evesham, p. 31. 'And he shal take the holy watre in a britil vessel, and a litil of the erthe of the pament [pawment P.] of the tabernacle he shall putt into it.' Wyclif, Numbers v. 17. 'Swepte as þe pament from hilyyng of stree.' Wyclif, Wks. i. 119. Maundeville says that in the kingdom of the Chan of Chatay 'Vesselle of Sylver is there non, for thei telle no prys there of to make no vesselle offe, but thei maken ther of Greceynges, and Pileres, and Pavmentes to Halles and Chambres.' p. 220. The word is of course merely a contraction of pavement, and in some parts of England paving bricks are still known as pamments or pamment-bricks. 'Pauynge bette to trymme pament. Panicula, Tabernaculum.' Huloet. 'Hoc pavementum, a pament.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 237. 'Pavimentum, pawment.' Medulla. See Paviment, below, p. 271.

⁵ Cotgrave gives 'Pan, a pane, piece or pannell of a wall, of wainscot of a glass window; panneau, a pannell of wainscot;' and Baret 'a pane of cloth, panniculus, segmen.' 'Pane of a wall. Corium.' Huloet. In the description of the Heavenly City as given in Allit. Poems, A. 1033, we are told that

'Vch pane of þat place had þre zatez . . . And vch zate of a margyrye.'

'þe portalez pyked of sych platez

And in the description of the lady's chamber in Sir Degrevant it is said that 'the floure was paned over-al with a clere crystal.' l. 1469. See also the account in Partenay how the king was so beaten by unseen hands that 'no sleue ne pane had he hole of brede.' l. 5654.

sadel ne panel.' 'Pannel to ryde on, batz. panneau.' Palsgrave. 'Pannels, or packsaddles, dorsualia.' Baret. 'Panell of a horse. Dorsuale.' Huloet. 'Tusser in his Five Hundred Pointes, p. 36, mentions amongst the other 'Husbandlie furniture,'

'A panel and wantey, packsaddle and ped.'

Palsgrave has 'I panell a horse, I put a panell upon hym to ryde upon. Je mets vng bast. Panell my horse, I wyll ryde to market.' 'Soe soone as their pannells are on, and every thing fitted, they leade them forth.' Farming, &c. Book of H. Best, p. 101.

¹ 'Pantell, fetter or snare. pedica.' Huloet. 'A pantel, pedica.' Manip. Vocab. The form panter or pantr appears the more common. Thus we find in Metrical Homilies, ed. Small, p. 69—

'He saw how all the erth was sprede,
Wyt pantr bandes, and gylders blake,
That Satanas had layd to take

Mans saull als a fouler
Tas foules wyt gylder and panter.'

'In a panter I am caute, My fot his pennyd I may not owt.' Song in MS. of 15th Cent. 'Panthiere. A great swoope-net, or drawing net.' Cotgrave.

'So lymed leues were leyde all aboute,
And panteris preuyliche pight vpon þe grounde.'

Richard the Reddes, ed. Skeat, ii. 187.

'& þus alle þes feyned censures ben anticristis panter & armes, to lette trewe men fro þe seruyce of god almytty & to make men to forsake god in his lawe for drede of anticrist and fendis of helle.' Wyclif, Works, ed. Matthew, p. 80; see also ibid. p. 205, and his Works, ed. Arnold, iii. 200, where he speaks of 'ydilnesse' as 'þe deuelis panter.' See also Barclay's Shippe of Fooles, ii. 297. Stratmann in quoting from Chaucer's Legend of Good Women, 131, 'Foules þat of þe panter and þe net been scaped,' has inadvertently placed the word under Panter, a panther.

⁴ Cotgrave gives 'Papegay, m. a parrot or poppingay,' and Baret 'A parrot or poppingaie; psittacus.' 'Papejay, papingay, papingoe; a parrot.' Jamieson. In the Quair of James I., pr. in Poetic Remains of the Scottish kings, ed. Chalmers, p. 71, we read—

'Unlike the crow is to the papejay.'

Maundeville tells us that in the land of Prester John 'there ben manye Popegoyes, that thei clepen Psittakes in hire Langage: and thei speken of hire propre nature, and salven men that gon thorghe the Desertes, and speken to hem als appertely, as though it were a man. And thei that speken wel, han a large Tonge, and han 5 Toos upon a Fote. And there ben also of other manere, that han but 3 Toos upon a Fote; and thei speken not, or but litile: for thei cone not but cryen.' p. 274. See also Trevisa's Higden, iv. 307.

⁵ See P. Plowman, C. x. 75, where the author speaks of the poure folke in Cotes 'Charged with children and cheif lordes rento,

That þei wiþ spynnyng may spare spenen hit in hous hyre, Boþe in mylk and in mele to make with papelotes
To a-glotye with here gurlas þat greden after fode.'

Evidently the word means a sort of porridge. Compare P. Papmete for chylder, p. 382.

Cotgrave. 'Parafo, a paragrafe, Paragraphum.' Percyvall, Span. Dict. 1591.

² It was customary to pare the crust from the bread, before it was set before the guests at table. Thus in Sir Tristram, fyfte i. st. i, we read—

'The kyng ne seyde no more, Bot wesche and yede to mete;
 Bred thai pard and schare, Ynough thai hadde at ete.'

The parings as we learn from W. de Biblesworth, in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 172, were put in the alms-dish for the poor:

'Tayllet le payn ke est paree, Les biseaus (the paringges) à l'amoyne soynt doné.'

And so also in the Boke of Curtasye (Babees Book, p. 324), ll. 730-3:

'The aumenere by this hathe sayde grace, To serue god fyrst with-outen lette;
 And tho almes dysashe hase sette in place; These other lofes he parys a-boute, &c.'

Ther-in the keruer a lofe schalle sette,

Palsgrave gives 'I pare the cruste of a lofe. Je decrouste and je pare du payn. Pare your cruste away.'

'Pere a man were crystened by kynde he shulde be buried,
 Or where he were parisshene riht pere he shulde be grauen.'

P. Plowman, B. xi. 67.

 and p. 129, we are told that 'His sergant that cumbered was Wit parlesi, al hal he rase.'

In the Cursor Mundi, in the account of Herod's death, the author tells us:

'Nu bigines he to seke, þe parlesi has his a side.' l. 11817;

⁶ 'Pectorale, a breasteplate; a poytrell.' Cooper. Palgrave gives 'Paytrell for a horse, poictrel,' and the Manip. Vocab. 'Paytrell, antilena.' Baret, too, has 'Peittrell or Poitrel for an horse, antilena,' and Cotgrave 'Poictrel, m. a Petrell for a horse.' See P. Pectoral. In the Inventory, date 1506, in the Paston Letters, iii. 409, we find 'a sadyle, a paytrell, and a brydoll and ij gerthies x^s.' 'Yf I haue a sadde, brydle, a rayne, a poytrell (antilena) and a croper and gyrthes, I care for no traper.' Horman. 'Pewtrell for a horse. Antela, antilena, &c.' Huloet. It appears to have been a very common fashion to hang bells on the bridle or breast-band of the horse. Thus Chaucer describing the Monk says—

'And whan he rood men myghte his brydel heere

Gynglen in a whistlynge wynde als cleere

And eek as loude as dooth þe Chapel belle.' C. T. Prol. 169; and in Richard Cœur de Lion, 5713, the Sultan of Damascus had 'Sette in the bredde with a pele.' Horman. In the Inventory of the goods of Gerard Salvey in 1572 (Wills & Invent. Surtees Soc. i. 349) are mentioned, 'in the kitching, one Raking croke, one Iron pot, one pele, one iron coulrake, ij^s. viij^d.' In the Household Ord. p. 291, under date 1601, are mentioned 'flaskets, scoopes, broaches, peeles and such like.'

⁵ A Pele, according to Jamieson, according to the proper sense of the term, was distinguished from a Castle, the former being wholly of earth. Such is the account given by Lesly when describing the manners of the Scots borderers. The term occurs several times in Barbour's Bruce. Thus in Book x. l. 137, Linlithgow is described as 'a peill

Mekill and stark, and stuffit weill Vith ynglis men.'

See also ll. 147, 152, 193, &c. Jamieson remarks that the site of this fortification at Linlithgow is still called the Peel. Professor Skeat suggests that the source of the word may be the Gaelic peillic, a hut made of earth and branches, and covered with skins. Wyntoun in his Chronicle, VIII. xxviii. 94, says—

'The Castele of Saynt Andrewys town,
And sere Pelys, sun wp, sun down, This Edward, sa gret a lord wes then,
That all he stoffyd with Inglis men.'

See also Wallace, iv. 213. In Robert of Brunne, p. 157, the term is applied to a wooden battering tower: 'Pe Romancer it sais, Richard did mak a pele,

On kastle wise alle waïs, wrouht of tre fulle welle, Ageyns holy kirke tille Aleyse forto drawe.
In schip he did it lede, to reise vp bi þe walle,
& if him stode nede, to couere him with alle.
He reised it at meschines, of werre tiping he herd,
For þe ilde of Sarazins þer zates ageyn him sperl.
þe Romance of Richard sais, he wan þe toun.
His pele fro þat forward he cald it matz Griffoun.'

Fabyan, in his Chronicle, p. 250, says: 'Kyng Wyllyam to haue y^e countrey in the more quyet hewe downe moche of the wood, and buylded in sondry places stronge castellys and pyles;' and again, p. 512: 'threwe downe certayne pyls and other strengthis, and a parte of the castell of Beawmound.' Bellendene in his trans. of Boece, ii. 424, mentions 'the castel of Dunbriton . . . and the peil of Lowdoun.' Chaucer also uses the word in the Hous of Fame, l. 1310: 'God saue the lady of thys pel.' Ducange gives 'Pela, Castellum, arx, Anglis Pile vel Pille,' and quotes from Rymer's Fœdera, viii. 95, a charter of Henry IV. dated 1399, granting to the Earl of Northumberland the 'castrum, Pelam, et dominium de Man,' whence Peel the chief town of that island derives its name.

'Thanne boldly they buske, and bendes engynes,
Payes in pylotes, and proves their castes.'

Morte Arthure, ed. Hall, p. 254.

In P. Plowman, B. v. 78, Invidia is described as being as 'pale as a pelet.'

'Graythe gounnes stoppede those gones With peletes vs to payne.' Sege of Melayne, 1289.

The trade of a Peleter or Pelleter is mentioned several times in the Liber Albus. See also Mr. Toulmin Smith's English Gilds, pp. 28, 29, where are printed the ordinances of the 'gylde' at Norwich which 'Peltyers and opere god men be-gunne . . . in ye yer of oure lord ihesu cryst, a thousande thre hundred seenty and sexe.' 'Bot wered not pis ilk wyze for wele pis gordel,

For pryde of þe pendauntez þaz polyst þay were.'

In the will of S. Teisdel (Wills & Invent. Surtees Soc. vol. i. p. 262), dated 1566, occurs the following: 'The Napperye yt is to be kep to ye Wenche. In primis ij payre of silke sleues, one stomacher, thre peeces of read silke, . . . one thromed hatte . . . vj siluer gaudes, one whissel, one belte with one pendowes and one buckell of siluer, one girdle, one belte, two paire of siluer crowkes gilte, two siluer taches, one siluer crosse, vj pillibers, one kirchife, ij rales, one handkirchife, iiij smokes, one linen sheat, one towel.'

³ A singular instance of how a word loses its original meaning. Compare Douzeperes, in which the idea of the number twelve became at last so entirely forgotten that we find writers speaking of 'a douzepere,' or as in Sir Degrevant, l. 1853—

'Ther come in a daunce ix doseperus of France.'

See Sir Ferumbras, l. 197 and note.

¹ In Metrical Homilies, p. 63, we are told how Joseph, when there was no room in the inns at Bethlehem, was obliged to lodge the Virgin and our Lord in 'a pendize that was wawles,' and again, p. 66, it is called 'a pouer pentis.' Compare P. To-falle, schudde, p. 495. 'Hoc apendicium, a pentys.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 236. In Wyclif's version of 2 Esdras vii. 4 the marginal note runs 'housis were not bildid to enhabite, but hulkis and pentisis weren maad bisidis the wallis in the ynnere part, in whiche they myzten abide for a litil tyme, til the citee were bildid.' 'Drope of yse called an isikle whych hangeth on a house eaves or pentisse. Stiria.' Huloet. The Penthouse of a house.' Cotgrave. The MS. reads Arpendix.

² The pips or seeds in fruit. Cotgrave gives 'Pepin: a pippin or kernell; the seed of fruit.' Probably the reading of A, though itself incorrect, is the nearer to the true one, which I imagine should be 'A Pepyn of a grape.' See the account of the holy tree in the Cursor Mundi, p. 490, which is declared to have

'Com vte o þat pepin, þat þat wreche adam fell fra.' l. 8504.

The translator of Palladius On Husbandrie says that 'grapes faire and greet Pypyned harde and drie' are the best for the table, p. 63, l. 72. Wyclif, Numbers vi. 4, tells how the Nazarenes were to abstain from 'what thing may be of vyn, of grape dried vnto the pepyn' [draff P. acinum Vulg.]. The marginal note is, 'In Ebreu it is, fro the rynde til to the litil greynes that ben in the myddis of the grape.' It occurs again in Eccles. xxxiii. 16: 'as that gedereth pepynes' [draff of grapis P. acinos Vulg.] after the grape Rutterses. See the treatise on gardening from the Porkington MS. pr. in Early Eng. Miscell. (Warton Club), p. 71, where directions are given for making 'a grape to growe withowte pepyns.'

⁵ This seems to be a basket or trap for fish made of osiers. Cooper renders Nassa by 'a weele or a bownette to take fishe,' and Fiscella by 'a little basket of twigges; a frayle; a cheese fate.' Baret gives 'Fraile, a little wicker basket, a cheese fat, fiscella.' The Manip. Vocab. has 'a Piche, corbiculus.' The Ortus explains nassa as 'quoddam instrumentum ex viminibus tanquam rhete contextum ad capiendos pisces (a pyche or a fysshe lepe);' and Fiscella as 'a pyesh, basket or a cheese-fat: et est dimin. de fiscina (quæ = a cheese-fat or a fysshe lepe).' In the Chester Plays, i. 122, the word would seem to mean simply a wicker basket—

'Laye fourth iche man aleiche

And I will put fourth my piche,

What he hath lefte of his livereye:

With my parte, firste of us all there,'

Gouldman renders Fiscella by 'a little basket of twigs, a flail [frail] a wicker-basket wherein fishes are kept: a thing with twigs and strings to muzzle beasts, a muzzel.'

'No person hereafter shall have or keep any net, angle, leap, piche or other engine for the takeing of fish, other than the makers and setters thereof, and other than the owner and occupier of a river or fishery; and except fishermen and their apprentices lawfully authorized in navigable rivers. And the owner or occupier of the river or fishery; and every other person by him appointed, may seize, detain, and keep to his own use, every net, angle, leap, piche, and other engine, which he shall find used or laid, or in the possession of any person fishing in any river or fishery, without the consent of the owner or occupier thereof.' ² The tip or point. A pilgrim's staff was tipped with iron, as we see in R. Cœur de Lion, 611—

'They were redy for to wende,

Cf. also P. Plowman, B. v. 482, where Robert the robber

Topsell in his Hist. of Four-footed Beasts, p. 32, tells how they used to catch bears in Norway by sawing a tree 'almost asunder, so that when the beast climbeth it, she falleth down upon piked stakes laid underneath.' Palgrave gives 'I pycke a staffe with pykes of yron, Je enquantelle. This staffe is well pyked with iron. Pyke of a staffe, piquant.'

'Piked wyth yron, or hauynge a pycke of yron. Rostratus.' Huloet. Compare to Pike with A wande, below. In P. Plowman, C. xxiii. 219, we read of 'pikede shoon,' that is shoes with long pointed toes, afterwards called 'Cracows,' from the idea that they were originally imported from Cracow. See Mr. Peacock's note to Mirc's Instruct. for Parish Priests, l. 43, where priests are forbidden to wear 'cuttede clothes and pyked schone.'

² 'To pil of barke, decorticare.' Manip. Vocab. 'To pill off, or rather peel, as it were to pull off the skin, rinde, or the barke of a tree, decorticare.' Baret. Chaucer, C. T. 4305, applies the term piled to the bald head of the miller: 'smot this meller on the piled sculle.' 'Thanne Jacob takynge green popil 3erdis, and of almanders, and of planes, a parti vnyendide hem: and riendis drawun away; in thilke that weren pylde semede whytnes [detractis corticibus Vulg.].' ⁴ That is the common pine, on which apples (cones) grew. Thus Lyte, Dodoens, p. 769, speaking of the pine says: 'his fruite is great Bouleans or bawles of a browne chesnut colour, and are called pine-apples;' and again, p. 16, he tells us that 'the roote [of burdock] pound with the kernelles of pineapple, and dronken, is a soueraigne medicine.' In the curious treatise on gardening from the Porkington MS. ab. 1485, printed in Early Engl. Miscell. (Warton Club), p. 70, we are recommended if peaches fall from the trees to 'cleve the rotes with an ax, and in the clyft dryve a wegge mayd of a pynsappylle tre . . . and than wolle the frute abyde thereon.' ¹ I do not believe this word has anything to do with the verb to fall. It is evidently a pit-fell, that is, a trap in the shape of a pit: cf. Mowsefelle and Felle for myse, above. The change of felle to falle is probably due to the influence of the first syllable.

² Manip. Vocab. gives 'Pithye, effeaz.' and Cotgrave 'Robuste, strong, tough, sinewie, pithy, sturdy, mighty, forcible.' Palsgrave also has 'Pithe, strength, force. Pyththy, of great substance, substancieus; pyththy, stronge, puissant.' 'Pithnesse, robusteté.' Sherwood.

Barnes, Dorset Gloss. gives this word as still in use with the meaning of to bend. 'Plier, to ply, bend, bow.' Cotgrave. In Tale of Beryn (Chaucer Soc. ed. Furnivall), p. 34, l. 1062, we find—

'A plant, whils it is grene, or it have dominacioun.

A man may with his fyngirs ply it where hym list.'

'I plye or bowe, je courue. Better plye than breake. I plye to one's mynde. Je me consens. I wyll never plye to his mynde whyle I lyve.' Palsgrave.

³ A pimple. The MS. reads puscula and pusculetus. 'For hyme that is smetyne with his awenne blode, and spredis over alle his lymmes, and waxes plowkky, and brekes owte.' MS. Linc. Med. lf. 294: and in the Destruction of Troy, 3837, we find the form plucid, that is pimped, covered with pimples: 'Polidarius was plucid as a porke fat.' The word is still in use in the North; see Mr. C. Robinson's Gloss. of Mid-Yorkshire, s. v. Plook. See also Jamieson, s. v. Pluke. Bishop Kennett's MS. gives the form ploughs.

⁴ As much land as may be ploughed with a single plough in a year. But the term was also used for as much land as could be ploughed in a day: cf. P. Plowlond, bat a plow may tylle on a day. In the Coke's Tale of Gamelyn (formerly attributed to Chaucer) the knight 'Sir Johan of Boundys,' when dying and bequeathing his estate, says—

'Johan myn eldeste sone, shalle have plowes fyve,
That was my fadres heritage whil he was on lyve;
And my myddeleste sone fyf plowes of lond.'

See also 4 Kings xxi. 13 and Jeremiah viii. 8. In the account of Belshazzar's feast in Allit. Poems, B. 1533, we are told that

Per apered a paume, with poyntel in fyngres,

See also Chaucer, Somnoure's Tale, 1742. In G. Douglas, Eneados, p. 231, l. 53, we have poyntel used for an instrument of war, resembling a javelin or a small sword:

'With round stok swerdis faucht they in melle

With poyntalis or with stokkis Sabellyne;

where the latin runs, 'mucrone veruque Sabello.' At p. 187, l. 38 of the same work the word is used for the pointed instrument with which musicians play on the harp, a quill:

'Orpheus of Trace—

Now with gypm fingeris doing stringis smyte,

And now with subtell euore poyntalis lyte.'

See also the Boke of Quintessence, p. 6.

⁸ In the Knight of La Tour-Landry, p. 68, is given an account of a woman who is depicted as suffering great tortures in hell, 'for whanne on lyue she plucked, popped, and painted her usage, forto plesse the sight of the worlde, the whiche dede is one of the synnes that displeses most God . . . ¹ A breviary, or book containing the services of the Canonical Hours of the Roman Catholic Church, sometimes accompanied with musical notes. The word is found under numerous forms such as Portesse, Portous, Porthors, &c. See a long list in Canon Simmons' note to the Lay Folks' Mass-book, p. 364. Chaucer in the Shipman's Tale, 13061, makes the monk declare: 'on my Portos here I make an oth.' By the Statute 3 & 4 Ed. VI. c. x. 'all bookes called Antiphoners, Missales, Grailes, Processionals, Manuals, Legends, Pies, Portuasses, Primers in Latine and English, &c.' were 'clearly and vterly abolished, extinguished and forbidden for euer to be vsed or kept in this Realme.' In P. Plowman, B. xv. 122, the 'portous' is likened to a plough with which the priest should say his placebo or funeral service. O. Fr. porte-hors, Lat. portiforium; see Prof. Skeat, s. v. Harrison, Descript. of England, i. 112, speaking of the Clergy of his time says, 'they made no further accompt of their priesthood, than to construe, sing, read their seruice and their portesse.' The Manip. Vocab. gives 'Portesse, portiforium, breuiarium,' and Palsgrave 'Portyes, a preestes boke, breuiayre.' In 1503 Christopher Sekker, priest, bequeathed to 'William Breggs, that gooth to scole with me, myn portoose and all my gramer bokys, yf so be he be a preest' [Lib. ² A pore or young onion. It is mentioned by Tusser in his list of plants for the kitchen; and the form Porrectes appears in the Forme of Cury, p. 41. Cotgrave gives 'Porree, f. the herb called Beet or Beetes. Porie, f. Beetes, potherbs.'

³ 'Papula; a whealke or pushe.' Cooper. Baret renders papula by 'a pimple, a whelke,' and the plural papulae by 'the small poches.' Holland in his trans. of Pliny's Nat. Hist. ii. 186 (ed. 1634), says, 'There is a kind of disease (much like to purples or measles) when the body is bepainted all ouer with red blisters: a branch of the Elder tree is excellent good to lash the said wheales or risings, for to make them fall again and go down;' and Surfleet in his Countrey Farme, 1616, p. 109, says, 'I dare be bold to auouch it, that the most profitable and fruitfull prouision for the Countrey House is of such beasts as bring forth Wooll. It is true, that there must all diligence be vsed to keepe them from Cold, from the Purples, from the Scab, from two much ranknesse of blood, from the Rot, and other such inconueniences as sometimes spread and proceed from one to another, and that he hath likewise care, and doe his whole endeauour, in keeping them both in the Fields and at the Cratch.'

⁴ Trevisa in his trans. of Barthol. de Proprietatibus Rerum, 1398, iii. 15, says: 'As in hem þat haue þe pirre and styffles, and ben purseyf and þikke brepid [ut patet in asthmatis et anhelosis.]' 'Pursy is a disease in an horses bodye, and maketh hym to blowe shorte, and appereth at his noethrilles, and commeth of colde, and may be well mended.' In the Liber Cure Cocorum, p. 16, are mentioned 'clowes, maces & cuibibis:' see also ibid. p. 51. Maundeville, speaking of the balsam of Egypt, says that 'the Fruyt, the whiche is as Quybybes, thei clepen Abelissam.' p. 50. The Prior of St. Mary, Coventry, in 1480, complains of 'the pepull of the said cite carryinge their donge, ramel, and sweepinge of their houses' to some place objectionable to him. 'Quisquillie, those thynges whiche in makyng cleane a garden or orchard are carried forth, as stickes, weedes, &c.' Cooper. The word is still in use in the North. 'To lay a wal artificially and to bind the stones wel, they ought in alternative course to ride and reach one over another halfe: as for the middle of the wall within, it would be well stuffed and filled with any rubbish, rammel, and broken stones.' Holland's Pliny, Bk. xxxvii. c. 22. ³ It is difficult to identify this plant. Halliwell says that in Essex Rib means the common water-cress, but in a 15th cent. gloss. in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 226, 'rybbe' is glossed by costus, which Cooper identifies with that 'commonly called Cocus and Herba Mariae,' that is, costmary. On the other hand, the gloss. in MS. Cott. Cleop. A. iii. ff. 76 gives 'Cinoglosa, ribbe,' and so the A.-S. Gloss. printed by Wright, p. 66. In the 13th cent. trilingual gloss. of plants, ibid. p. 140, we have 'Lanceolata, launceleie, ribbe,' and so in P. 'Rybbeworte. Lanciola.' It may be worth noting, as the word does not occur in Halliwell, although it is certainly not the plant here referred to, that Lyte, Dodoens, p. 683, gives the name Ribes to the Gooseberry: 'The first kind is called Grossula rubra, Ribes rubrum: in Englishe, Redde Gooseberies, Beyon sea Gooseberies, Bastard Corinthes, & common Ribes. . . . The second kind is called Ribes nigrum: in English, Blacke Gooseberies, or blacke Ribes.' He adds that 'the rob [dried juice] made with the iuyce of common Ribes and Sugar is very good . . . it stoppeth vomitings, and the vpbreakings of the stomacke, &c.' Langham, in The Garden of Health, p. 289, says: 'Red Gooseberies, or ribes do refresh and coole the hote stomacke, and liuer, and are good against all Inflammations, and heate of the bloud, and hote agues.'

'I rysshe, I gather ruses. Je cueils des joncs. Go no more a rysshynge, Malyn.' Palsgrave. Mr. Way in his Introd. to the Promptorium, p. lxxv, explains a rush-hill as 'the stack or pile of sedge or rushes,' but it probably only means a place where rushes grow; compare Segg hylle, hereafter, which is explained as locus vbi crescunt [carices]. See Seyfe, below. 'I sette slepe nought at a risshe.' Gower, ii. 97.

⁵ 'The bandis I brest, and syne away fast fled, Among the risis and redis out of sycht.' Unto ane muddy mares in the dirk nyght, G. Douglas, Eneados, Bk. ii. p. 43.

Baret gives 'A certayne roughe & prickled shrubbe whereof bouchers make their beesoms, ruscum.' Bouchers broom or pecegrewe, ruscum. The general meaning of the word appears to have been boughs, underwood or brushwood. In the Anceren Rivele, p. 100, we read of 'hulen (tents) of ris & of leanes,' and so in the Avowing of Arthur, ii. 'þe hare þat bredus in the rise.'

'Take hem alle at thi lykyng

Bothe appel and pere and gentyl rys.' Cov. Myst. p. 22.

So in Sir Gawayne, 1698: 'Roches rounge bi rys for rurde of her hornes.' Lydgate (Lond. Lackpeny) speaks of 'cherries in the rise.' See Peacock's Gloss. of Manley, &c. Chaucer, Miller's Tale, C. T., A. 3324, speaks of the clerk's surplice as being 'as white as bloome on the rise.' Scot in his New-Year's Gift to Mary Stewart, 1562, says: 'Welcome our rubent roys upon the ryce.' In the North the farmers speak of making fences of 'stake and rice.'

'The kowschot croudis and pykkis on the ryse.'

G. Douglas, Eneados, Bk. xii. Prol. p. 403.

In the Cursor Mundi, 5614, where the mother of Moses is described as having placed him in 'a kist of risen,' the other MSS. reading 'esscen' and 'of 3erdes,' the meaning may be either branches or rushes.

'Thai trowit that bog mycht mak thaim litill waill,

² 'Lacinia est vestis lacerata, vel nodus clamidis, vel ora vel extremitas vestis: dicitur a lacerare, -as. (a hemine of clothe, or a gore, or a trayne).' Ortus Vocab. Perhaps for chate we should read clathe = cloth: but Halliwell gives 'Chat. A small twig, or fragment of anything.' In any case the meaning is clearly a torn piece of dress or cloth. The Medulla explains lacinia by 'a rent cloth or an helme [? hemme].'

⁶ The Rook or Castle in Chess. In the Tractatus de Scaccario, Harl. MS. 2253, leaf 135^b, the names of the pieces are given as 'primus rex est, alter regina, tercius roculus, quartus miles, quintus alphinus, sextus pedinus.' See also Tale 21 in the Gesta Romanorum, p. 70, and note. Compare a Pawn, above.

⁷ A Bishop's rochet is a linen vest worn under the chimere. Palsgrave gives 'Rochet, a surpys, rochet.' Cotgrave has 'Rochet, m. a frock; loose gaberdine, or gown of canvas, or coarse linnen, worn by a labourer over the rest of his clothes; also a Prelate's Rochet.' Baret and Cooper render 'In-tita' by 'a purple, a gard, a welt.' In the Destruct. of Troy, 13525, the word is used for a coarse cloak or slop: 'a Roket full rent, & Ragget above.'
 'A rochet, like a surples, for a bishop, superpelliceum.' Baret.

¹ The tenth pain of hell, according to Hampole, P. of Conscience, 7069, is gnawing of conscience—

“What avayld us pryde,” þai salle say,

“What rosyng of ryches or of ryche array?”

‘He þat sekes here to have rose, þe dede es noght worth that he dose.’

Harl. MS. 4196, leaf 58.

Orm speaks of ‘all rosinng and all idell zellp,’ l. 4962; and again, l. 4910, of ‘all idell zellp and idell ros,’ and warns us that it ‘iss hæfedd sinne To rosen off þin hærherre 33c.’ l. 4906. The author of the Cursor Mundi says that when Abraham took Sarah into Egypt,

‘All spak of hir, seo was sa scene;

þat he þam did befor him bring.’

Sua þai rosed hir to the king,

‘Shall none of þou mak þour rose or 3e go furspre.’ Song of Roland, 650.

² A tub with two handles (labra) carried by two persons by means of a pole or stang (see Sastange) passed through these handles. In Hoole’s trans. of the Orbis Sensualium by Comenius, 1658, p. 113, there is a representation of brewers carrying beer in soas. The word saa occurs in the 8th century A. S. gloss. in Corpus Coll. Camb., where it is used to explain libitorium, which Ducange describes as a censer, but which was perhaps a vessel for pouring out libations. ‘Soo, soe; a tub, commonly used for a brewing-tub only, but sometimes for a large tub in which clothes are steeped before washing.’ Peacock’s Glossary of Manley, &c. Cotgrave has ‘Tine, a stand, open tub or soe. Tinette. A little Stand, Soe, or Tub: a bathing Tub. Trinole. A little Soe, Tub, Stand, &c.’ ‘So, Soa, sb., a tub with two ears, to carry on a stang.’ Ray. In Havelok, 932, we read—

‘He kam to þe welle, water up-drow,

And filde þer a mickel so.’

In the Invent. of Robert Pral, taken in 1562, are mentioned ‘three litle pannes viij^d. Two litle saltes ij^d. ij. skelles, on soo, one kyrne with the staffe, &c.’ Wills & Invent. (Surtees Soc.), i. 208; see also ibid. p. 158 and 354. In the Fabric Rolls of York Minster, 352, the following entry is quoted from the Tynemouth Parish Register: ‘Mar. 7, 1679–80. Anne, dau. Mr. Anthony Wilkinson, of North Shields, bur. The child was drowned in a little water in y^e bottom of a soa standing on y^e backside, being y^e first burial at Christs church after Nichs. Waids.’ See Peacock’s Eng. Church Furniture, pp. 188, 212, &c. In the Invent. of John Danby, 1445, occur ‘j tob et saa xijd.’ Wills & Invents. i. 90; see also Richmond, Wills, 163.

¹ In the North Sad is still used in the sense of stiff, heavy. 'Land is sad when the frosts of winter have not mellowed it; bread is sad when it has not properly fermented.' Peacock's Gloss. of Manley, &c. In Palladius On Husbandrie, p. 50, l. 173, we find it applied to land: 'Ar then the lande be waxen sadde or tough.' Trevisa in his trans. of Bartholomæus de Propriet. Rerum, xiii. 1, has, 'Welle water þat rennep oute of sad stones [ex solida petra] is clere and clessep of most fylthe and hore.' In Sir Ferumbas, l. 3235, the French when besieged in Aigremont, 'cast out stones gret & sade oppon hem þat wer with-oute.' See also ibid. l. 3340. Gower in the Confessio Amantis, iii. 92, describes the earth as 'in his forme is shape rounde Substantiall, strong, sad and sounde.' 'Also the firmament is called heauen, for it is sad and stedfast, & hath a marke that it maye not passe.' Batman upon Barthol. De Propr. Rerum, lf. 120b, col. 2. 'Forsothe thilke auter was not sad [massye W. solidum Vulg.] but holowe of the bildyngis of tablis, and voide withynne.' Wyclif, Exodus xxxvii. 7, Purvey's version. In the account of the healing of the lame man by Peter and John the word is used as a verb: 'anoon the groundis and plauntis, or solis of him ben saddid togidere; and he lippinge stood, and wandride.' Deeds iii. 7. So also in P. Plowman, B. x. 240: 'to sadde us in bileve.' 'Euere lastende foundemens vpon a sad ston.' Wyclif, Eccles. xxvii. 24. Wyclif in his Tracts, ed. Matthew, p. 200, says, '(We) holden us sadde in verrey mercy & pacience azenst malencolie & puttynge away of reson:' and again, p. 339, 'Groundid in sad loue of ihesu crist.' Palsgrave gives 'Sadde, heavy, triste. Sadde, discrete, rassis. Sadde, full of gravityte, grave. Sadde, tawney coloured.' In the Paston Letters, ii. 137, the Duke of Norfolk writes to John Paston asking him to come to him, 'that we may comon with you, and have youre sadde advise in suche matiers.' In the same volume, p. 200, John Paston writes to his wife: 'it is god a lord take sad cowncell, or he begyne any sech mater.' 'Per he swowed and slept sadly at nyzt.' Allit. Poems, C. 442. Saunders also occurs in the list of 'Spycery' in Arnold's Chronicle, p. 234 (ed. 1811). 'Datez, j quart. de Saundrez' are mentioned in the invent. of the Priory of Durham, 1446, Wills & Invent. i. 94.

¹ In Barbour's Bruce, xvii. 356, in the account of the siege of Berwick we read—

'Quhen thai without war all redy, Thai trumpit till ane sawt in hy.'

The omission or mutilation of a prefixed preposition in words of Romance origin is very common. Thus we have say and assay, noy and annoy, sege and assege, scomfit and discomfit, and many others.

² 'Laudate eum in psalterio et cithera, his is to seye, preysithe your lord god in the sawtrie and in the harpe.' Gesta Roman. p. 138. Trevisa in his trans. of Bartholom. de Propriet. Rerum, bk. xix. c. 41, says that 'Armonia Rithmica is a sownynge melody, and divers instrumentes serue to this maner armony, as tabour, and timbre, harpe, and sawtrie and nakyres.' In Sir Degrevant, p. 178, l. 33, the hero is described as 'ffayre mane and ffree To harpe and to sawtre,

And gretlech gaff hym to gle, And geterne ffull gay.'

And in the St. John's Coll. Camb. MS. of De Deguileville's Pilgrimage of the Lyf of the Manhode, leaf 127^b, we read—'Another ther was jit pat in hire hande bare an horne where in scho made a grete sowne of orgones and of sawtrye.' In the Harl. MS. of the Handlyng Synne, 1701, leaf 32, we read—

'Yn harpe, yn thabour and symphangle, Wurschepe God yn troumpes and sawtre.'

'Thow shalt haue metynge a floe of prophetis comynge down fro the hees, and before hem a sawtrye, and a tymbre, and a trompe.' Wyclif, 1 Kings x. 5.

³ 'A scaffold, or stage where to beholde plaies, &c., and sometime the sight or plaie set forth in that place, spectaculum.' Baret. See the stage direction in the Coventry Mysteries, p. 289: 'What tyme that processyon is enteryd into the place, and the Herowdys takyn his schaffalde, and Pylat and Annas and Cayphas here schaffaldys,' where the meaning evidently is 'take their places on the stage.' Chaucer says of the 'joly' clerk Absalon that—

'Sontime to shew his lightnesse and maistrie,

He plaieth Herode on a skaffold hie.' Miller's Tale.

⁴ Browes or Brewis was prepared with boiling water, which was poured over the bread, &c.

'pe ellevend es hate teres of gretynge, pat pe synful sal scalden in pe dounfallyng.'

'Besydis the ere ther ben two,
That on a man mot ben undo.

To kepe hys heved fro evyl turnyng,
And fro the scalde, wythout lesyng.'

See also another extract in his Introduction, under Worcester. Chaucer describing the Sompnour says—

⁵ A scapulary, so called from its being thrown over the shoulders. In Wright's Polit. Poems, ii. 19, Jack Upland says: 'What betokeneth your great hood, your scaplerie, your knotted girdle, and your wide cope?' In Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, l. 550, it is said of the friars that 'Pei schapen her chapolories and strechep hem brode,

And launceþ heize her hemmes wiþ babelyng in stretes.'

'The habyte of his ordre his cope hys scapularye and cote were all wythout ony euyl corupeyon.' Caxton, Golden Legende, lf. 419, col. 4. In Holinshed, vol. iii. p. 830, the word is used for a kind of mantle, probably a monk's cloak: 'In the moneth of Maie, the king and the new duke of Suffolke were defenders at the tilt against all commers. The king was in a scopelarie mantle, an hat of cloth of siluer, and like a white hermit.' This would appear to be the meaning intended in our text, as also in the Inventory given in Paston Letters, iii. 410, where we find 'j scapelerey with an hodde.' But from a passage in the Ancien Riecle, p. 424, it is evident that it was a very light cloak, for there is permission given to anchoresses that 'inwid þe wanes ha muhe werie scapeloris hwen mantel ham heugegeð.'

⁶ 'Spiryte called a hagge, a hobbegoblyn, which appeareth in the night. Larua, lemur.' Huloet. 'Larua, a sprite appearing by night; an hegge; a goblin; a goast; a visarde; one disguised.' Cooper. 'A bugge, spectrum, larua.' Baret. The Medulla explains larva by 'a Vesere or a skerell or a deuyll.'

And that other lef to pinche, Bothe he was scars and chinche;'

and Allsaunders, 1012—

'In a castel heo was y-set,
And was deliverid liversoon,

Wyclif in his Apology, p. 105, says: 'þei ken þer tongis for to spek gret þingis, wan þei do but litil þingis: þei are largist bihiȝtars & scarciȝt geuars.' And again in his version of 2 Cor. ix. 6: 'He that soweth scarsly, schal and scarsly repe; and he that soweth in blessingis, schal repe and of blessingis.' Chaucer in the Tale of Melibeus, p. 162, (ed. Wright), says, 'Right as men blamen an averous man, bycause of his skarsete and chyncherie, in the same manere is he to blame, that seemeth ouer largely;' and again: 'And afterward ye schul use the richesses, the reten by youre witte and by youre travaille, in such a maner, that large, that is to say, over large his salary was not regularly paid says—

'Espatule, f. a little slice.' Cotgrave. Compare the Liber Cure Cocorum, pp. 43, 48. In the Forme of Cury, p. 33, it seems to mean according to the Glossary 'a flat stick,' for we are told to 'bete it well togider with a sklyce.' Holland in his trans. of Pliny, Bk. xxxiii. c. 8 says: 'As touching silver, two degrees there be of it, which may be knowne in this maner:

Acct. Books of Henry Best of Elmswell, York, dated 1641 (Surtees Soc. vol. xxxiii. p. 139), the term is applied to an instrument used by thatchers: 'A thatchers tooles are two find the verb, as in the following: 'Men vse it also to sklise it [the sea onion] and to hange it on a threde, so that one pece touche not an other, and so drye them in the shaddow.'

'At the same time word was brought out of Vmbria, that there was an Hermaphrodite or Skrat [seminas] found, almost twelve yeers old.' Holland, trans. of Livy, Bk. xxxix. c. 22. Phillips in his Dictionary explains Androgynus by 'one that is both Man and Woman, or has the Natural Parts of both Sexes: a Scrat or Will Jick, an effeminate Fellow.' 'Scrayte whyche is both male and female. Androgynos, Hermaphroditus, Verius Hermofroditus:

Hermofroditus is both man and woman.' Huloet.

³ See Scrolle.

⁴ 'Fibulatorium, amiculum quod fibulâ stringitur.' Gouldman. From this the meaning would appear to be a shred or piece of cloth, but it appears generally to be applied to fragments of bread, &c., as in the Lindisfarne Gospels, Mark vi. 43: 'genomon ða hlafo ðara screadunga tuoeif ceaulas fulle.' So in Havelok, l. 99—

'Hauede he non so god brede, Ne on his bord non so god shrede.'

and Shoreham, p. 30—

'Thaz eny best deuoured hyt, Other eny other onselthe, ech screade.'

See also Ancren Riwle, p. 416, Genesis & Exodus, 3284, and Wright's Polit. Poems, ii. 252—

'Robes made of scredes Flaterers and false dedes, Grisely othes and grete medes, Has schent Englund.'

'Generides than cut his skirt . . . For to staunche his bleding.'

And with the shredes hem he bond

Generides (Roxb. Club), l. 6118.

⁶ In hell, according to Hampole, P. of Cons. 7346—

'þe devils ay omang on þam salle stryke, And þe synfulle þare-with ay cry and skryke; and again, l. 7350—' þare salle be swilk rareyng and ruschyng,

And raumpyng of devels and dyngyng and duschyng,

And skrykyng of synfulle, als I said are.'

'Though he sore skrycke, Maye no man me whytte,

A buffite shall bytte,

Though I doe hym woe.'

In the Anturs of Arthur, xlii. 3, we read—

'þanne his lemmon on lofte scrilles and scrykes.'

² Generally used in the sense of underwood, thickets, or what is now known as scrubby ground. The word is still in use in Lincolnshire; see Peacock's Glossary of Manley, &c. Ray gives 'Scrogs, vb. black thorn.'

³ Full litill it wald delite,

To write of scroggs, brome, hadder or rammell.'

G. Douglas, Aeneas, Bk. ix. prol. l. 44.

Stewart in his version of Boece (Rolls Series), iii. 409, says—

'Fra him tha fled to mony wod and scrog, As houndit scheip fra ony masteif dog.'

In the Gesta Romanorum, p. 19, we read, 'þe wey toward þe City was stony, þorny and scroggy;' and in Morte Arthure, l. 1641, Cadur orders his men—

'Discouere; now sekerly skrogges and other,

That no skathelle in the skrogges skorne us here-aftyre.'

'Skragge of trees, Sarmenta.' Huloet.

⁴ 'I caste to writte wythine a litelle scroice,

See Scrolle and Scrawe, above.

Wright's Polit. Poems, ii. 192.

⁵ In the Inventory of Sir J. Fastolf's goods, 1459, we find mentioned, 'Item, j purpoynt white, with a scuchon after an hors wyse visure, and braunchis of grene.' Paston Letters, i. 484; see also iii. 281. In the Gesta Romanorum, p. 54, we read, 'þe first knyght is strengist of any þat is in any place, and he berith a scochon of golde, with a lion in þe myddell; the second is wys, and berith a scochon with a pecok; & þe third knyght is amorous and loving . . . and he berith a golden scochon, with a white dove.' 'A scutchion, tholus, scutulum.' Baret. 'Scochen, a badge, escuissou.' Palgrave.

⁶ 'A scullion of the kitchen, lixa.' Baret.

⁸ 'A scuttle, sportula.' Baret. 'Hotte, f. a scuttle, dosser, basket to carry on the backe: Hottereau, m. a scuttle, a small wide-mouthed, and narrow-bottomed basket: Hotteur, m. a basket-carrier, or scuttle-carrier.' In the Inventory of Anthony Place, 1570, Wills & Invent. vol. i. p. 318, are mentioned, 'in the Larder Howse, butter tubbes, scuttles and other stuff, xxvj^s. viij^d.' 'They that make the mortar have allwayes by them an olde spade to tewe it with, and a little two gallon skeele to fetch water in, and two olde scuttles to carry up mortar in, viz.; one for the server, and another for the thacker-drawer, if occasion soe require; and theire manner is to putte an handfull or two of dry-strawe into the bottomes of the scuttles to keepe the scuttles cleane, and that the mortar may goe readily out, and not cleave to the scuttles.' ² At the day of judgment, says Hampole, Pricke of Consec. 5009, the bodies of the wicked shall be ugly, but as for the good,

Thurgh outragiousste of kynd namely,

And make þa lyns semely to sight.'

So in William of Palerne, l. 49, 'Pat semliche child.' O. Icel. sæmr, sæmiligr. 'Semely, decorus.' Manip. Vocab.

³ See Halliwell, s. v. Cendal. Chaucer, describing the Doctour of Phisik, says—

'In sangroin and in pers he clad was al,

Lined with taffata and with sendal.' C. T. Prologue, 440:

and in P. Plowman, B. vi. 10, we read—

'And þe, louely ladyes, with þoure longe fyngres,

Pat þe han silke and sendal, to sowe, whan tyme is,

Chesibles for chapelleyne, cheres to honoure.'

See also Early English Poems, &c., ed. Furnivall, i. 111. Sendal or Cendal was a kind of rich thin silk used for lining, and very highly esteemed. Palsgrave, however, has 'Cendell, thynne linnen, sendal;' and Cooper renders 'Sindo,' by a very fine linnen clothe; and so in the A. V. of Matth. xxvii. 59, where Wyclif's version runs, 'Joseph lappede it in a clene sendel, and leide it in his newe briel.' The texture was probably somewhat similar to 'samite,' a kind of satin, of inferior quality; and may possibly have been a sort of taffeta, being much used for banners and gonfanons, a proof of its lightness and strength. Thus in Arthur and Merlin, p. 209, we read, 'Her gonfainoun was of cendel.' In the Liber Albus, ed. Riley, p. 727, amongst the Ordinances of the Tailors, we find: 'Item, pur j robe longe pur femme, garnisse de soy et sendal, ij soulds, vi deniers;' and in Morte Arthure, 2299, we are told that the bodies of the Roman Emperor and his chiefs were embalmed, and 'sewed in sendelle sexti-faulde aftire.' Neckam in his Treatise de Uten- silibus speaks of sendal as a material for shirts and sheets: 'Camisia (chemise) sindonis

(de sandel) vel serici (soye), vel bissi (cheysil) materiam sorciatur (i. capiat) vel saltem lini: Dehinc lintheamina (linceus) ex syndone (de sendel) vel ex bisso (cheysil) vel saltem ex lino (lin) vel lodices (lauges) supponantur.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. pp. 99, 100. In the reign of Edward I it was enacted, by royal proclamation, that no woman of ill fame should wear the fur called 'minever,' or sendale upon her hood or dress, under pen-cation.' Liber Albus, Introd. p. lii.

Chaucer, in the Prologue to the Canterbury Tales, l. 386, tells us that the Cook

'On his schyne a mormal hadde he, For blankmanger that made he with the beste.' See also Schanke.

the Frisian and Flemish forms. Compare also 'Schoups. The hips. N.' Halliwell. 'Scop-choup-tree.

³ In Morte Arthure, l. 4144, Sir Idrus says—

'Bot I forsake this gate, so me gode helpe,

And sothely alle sybredyne bot thy selfe one.'

and at l. 691, Arthur begs Mordred to accept the office of Viceroy 'Ffor the sybredyne of me.' In the Cursor Mundi, ed. Morris, p. 729, l. 12673, we are told of St. James, that

'Thesu brother called was he For sibrede, worshepe and beaute.'

A. S. sibraden. See also Wyclif, Select Works, ed. Arnold, i. 318, 376, &c. Hume in his Orthographie of the Briton Tongue, p. 21, says that 'c and k are sa sib that the aue is a greek, and the other a latin symbol of one sound.' 'Til hir scho cald her sibmen.' Cursor Mundi, 20243.

⁷ In the Cursor Mundi, p. 311, l. 5313, we are told of Jacob that 'His berde was side with myche hare.'

This is the original meaning of the word. Thus in Beowulf we read: Helm ne gemunde by man side.' Lazamon frequently uses side as an adverb, with the meaning of widely, far, in the phrase 'wide and side' = far and wide. Thus in l. 4963 we find—

So also l. 17,018: 'Pa fonden gunnen riden widen & siden;' and 29,902: 'His sone wes itald wide & side.' So, too, in the Ormulum, 5900:

'Forr wide & side spelledd is Off ure Laferrd Jesu Crist

Purh heore fowwre bokess & hu mann birrþ himm þeowwtenn.'

and again, l. 9174: 'Ta wass Romess kinedom Full wid & sid onn eorþe.' The form 'side and wide' occurs in Cædmon, p. 8, and in Arthur & Merlin, p. 9, l. 200. In P. Plowman, B. v. 193, Langland says of Avarice that 'As a letheren purs lolled his chekes, Wel sydder þan his chyn þei chiuelf for elde.'

'Thei nakiden hym the side coote to the hele [tunica talaris].' Wyclif, Genesis xxxvii. 23. Fitzherbert in the Boke of Husbandry, fo. xxxiib, mentions amongst 'the ix. propertyes of a foxe. The fyrste is: to be prycke eared . . . the fourth to be syde tayled;' and again, he complains of the 'mennes seruantes [being] so abused in theyr aray, theyr cotes be so syde that they be fayne to tucke them vp whan they ryde, as women do theyr kyrtels whan they go to the market or other places, the which is an vnconuenient syght.' fo. liii. In gobettis smalle, Syr, levys me.'

In hir owne blode seyn or sylud clene;'

and at p. 17, 'sethe and syle hit thorowghe a cloth.' Still in use: see Mr. Peacock's and Ray's Glossaries. In the Invent. of Robert Prat, taken in 1562, we find mentioned, 'one kyrne with the staffe, one syell, j vergeus barrell, vj mylk bowlls, ij kyttis, &c.' Wills & Invent. (Surtees Soc.), ii. 208; see also p. 224 and i. 207. In the Boke of Curtasye (pr. in Babees Book), l. 695, one of the Ewer's duties is stated to be that he

'thugh towelle syles clene His water into þo bassynges shene.'

In some of the Northern Counties a heavy downpour of rain, falling perpendicularly, is said to 'sile down,' as though it had passed through a sieve. Palsgrave gives 'I sye mylke or clense. Je coulle du lait. This terme is to moche northerne.'

⁴ 'Bysse, sorte d'étoffe de soie.' Roquefort. In the Gesta Romanorum, p. 38, the king of Hungary is described as 'y-clothid alle in purple and biase.' So in Wyclif, 'Sum man was clothed in purple and bysse' (where the A. V. reads 'fine linen'). Cooper renders Byssus by 'a maner of fine flaxe; silke.' 'Silke; fine flaxe, byssus.' Baret.

⁴ Still in use in the North for 'a dairy vessel;' see Mr. C. Robinson's Gloss. of Yorkshire, and Ray. From this word we have the diminutive 'skillet,' a little pot or pan, also still in use. In the Inventory of Bertram Anderson taken in 1570 are given the following articles: 'In the mylke Howse—thre shelve for cheases hanginge iiij^a.—lxxxiiij cheases iiij^a—a call and vj Chearnes xx^a.—lxxxx mylke bowles iiij^a.—x mylke skeltes v^a.—a castar for lyinge cheases of ij^a.—viij skelles iiij pynnes for caryage of drenk a feld—a Cheese Trowe.' Wills & Invent. (Surtees Soc.) i. 341. At p. 278 of the same vol. the form skill occurs, and at p. 207, in the Invent. of Robert Prat taken in 1563, are mentioned 'ij great bowells, iiij wodd skalles, one zyle, &c.' see also ibid. vol. ii. p. 27. Festes l'enfaunt une bavere (a brestclout,) where the Cambridge MS. for 'brestclout' has 'slaving-clout.' 'I slaver, I drivell. Je baue. Fye on the knave, arte thou nat a shamed to slaver lyke a yonge chylde!' Palsgrave. Bavoso, slaving, a snail, Salinosus, limax. Percival, Span. Dict. In the Allit. Poems, C. 186, Jonah is described as having 'slypped vpon a sloumbe, and sloberande he routes.' In Henryson's version of the fable of the Wolf and the Lamb, Moral Fables, p. 85, the former

W. de Bibbesworth, in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 143;

'With girnand teeth and awfull angric luke

Said to the Lambe, Thou Catue wretched thing

How durst thou bee so bold to fyle the bruke

Where I should drinke with thy foule slavinging ?'

'And David . . . shewed himself as he had been madd in their handes, and stackered towards the dores of the gate, and his slauerynges ranne downe his beard.' Coverdale, 1 Kings, xxi. 13.

'Calendrer, to sleeke, smooth, plane, or polish.' Cotgrave. 'Amechon. A slyke ston.' Medulla. The version of the gloss. on W. de Biblesworth printed in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 172 differs from that in Mr. Way's note, being as follows:

'E dy d sonette ke ele lusche (slike, szhike)

De une lechefneyre (a slikestone) sur la husche.'

'Beslichten. To Slick, Plaine, or Make even.' Hexham Dutch Dict. 1660. 'Slyckestone, lisse à papier, lice. I sleeke, I make paper smothe with a sleke stone. Je fais glissant. You muste sleeke your paper if you wyll write Greke well.' Palsgrave. 'He sett up there an Image of E. Guido Gyant like, and enclosed the Sylver welles in the Meadowe with pure white slicke Stones like Marble, and there sett up a praty House open like a Cage covered, onely to keepe Comers thither from the Raine.' Leland, Itinerary, iv. 66. We have the verb used figuratively in the Owl & Nightingale, l. 839:

'Alle thine wordes beoth i-slied, That alle theo that hi afoth,
An so bi-semed and bi-liked, Hi weneth that thu segge soth.'

² Souse or Sowse was the technical name for the pickled feet and ears of a pig. Harrison, Descr. of England, ii. 11, gives the following account of its preparation: 'he [the boar] is killed, scalded, and cut out, and then of his former parts is our brawne made; the rest is nothing so fat, and therefore it beareth the name of souse onelie, and is commonlie reserved for the seruing man and hind, except it please the owner to haue anie part therof baked, which are then handled of custome after this manner. The hinder parts being cut off, they are first drawne with lard, and then sodden; being sodden they are sowed in claret wine and vineger a certeine space, and afterward baked in pasties and eaten of manie in steed of the wild bore, and trulie it is verie good meat.' 'Hoc succidium, A^{oe} sowse.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 199. Tusser in his chapter on 'The fermers dailie diet' (p. 28, ed. 1878), speaks of souse as a dish usually eaten first at Michaelmas:

'All Saints doe laie for porke and souse For sprats and spurlings for their house.'
A 'clark of the souce-tub' is mentioned in the Entertainments at the Temple in 1561, pt. in Nichols' Progress of Q. Elizabeth, i. 137. Fitzherbert in his Boke of Husbandry, fo. xxxvii^{bk}, recommends the keeping of boars, 'For a bore wyll haue as lytell kepyng as a hogge, & is moche better than a hogge, and more meet on hym and is redy at all tymes to eate in the wynter season, and to be layd in souce.' 'I souce mente, I laye it in some tarte thyng, as they do brawne or suche lyke.' Palsgrave. Derived from Lat. salsus.

³ The author or copier has made a strange mistake here, in treating auster and boreas as identical in meaning.

'Thenne oure fader to þe fysch ferslych biddeþ,

See the directions for thatching in the Farming Book of H. Best, of Elmswell, 1641, p. 148: 'fasteninge it aboute euerie sparre as they goe, and allsoe sowing once aboute a latte, ever betwixt sparre and sparre.' In the Inventory of Robert Atkinson, taken in 1596, are mentioned 'v. bunche of lattes 2s. 6d. Fyve skore and x fir sparres, 18s. 4d.' Wills & Invent. ii. 263. See also Cursor Mundi, 8796.

² A battle axe or halberd. Chaucer in the Knights Tale, 1662, says: 'he hath a sparth of twentie pound of wighte.' See also the Romaunt of the Rose, l. 5978. Trevisa in his trans. of Higden, l. 351, says that the 'Norwayes brougt first sparthes in to Irlond [usum securi-um qui anglice sparth dicitur . . . comportarunt];' and again p. 353, he describes the Irish as fighting 'wip tweie dartes and speres, and wip brode sparthes;' see also i. 357. In Sir Gawayne, l. 209, the Green Knight is described as bearing in his one hand a 'holyn bobbe,' and

'An ax in his oper, a hoke & vn-mete,
A spetos sparþe to expoun in spelle quo-so myt;
þe hede of an elnþerde þe large lenkþe hade.'

'Sparthe an instrument.' Palsgrave. Icel. sparða. Cooper renders sparus by 'a kinde of small dartes used in war.'

'Loke me my sparthe wher that he stande,

That y broughtt with me in my hande.' Tundale's Vision, l. 87.

'Doun swakkis the knyght, syne with ane fellow fare,

Founderis fordward flatlingis on his spald.' Ibid. Bk. x. p. 352.

'Ly stille therin now and roste, Ne noghte of thi spalde.'

I kepe nothyng of thi coste,

Perceval, 796.

Spenser also uses the word in the Fuery Queen, II. vi. 29—

'Their mightie strokes their haberjeons dismayld,
And naked made each others manly spalles.'

'Sum stikkit throw the coist with the spalis of tre, Lay gaspand.'

G. Douglas, Æneados, B. ix. 296.

Compare P. Spalle or chyppe, and O. Icel. spjall, spjald, a lath or thin board, whence the modern spill. In Morte Arthure, 3699, we have the verb:

'Be thane speris whare spronnene, spaldyd chippys';

and in l. 3264, Fortune's wheel is described as 'splentide alle with speltis of siluer.' Assula, a spell or broken piece of stone, that cometh off in hewing and graving.' Gouldman. In William of Palerne, l. 3392, we find the word in the form speld:

'Spacli þe operes spere in speldes þan wente'; see also ll. 3603, 3855.

⁵ Apparently the meaning is special, peculiar, and the word is connected with species not with speak, but probably there is some corruption or omission.

Salt ele, salt makerelle, & also withe merlynge.'

J. Russell, Boke of Nurture in Babees Book, p. 173.

In the Manners and Household Expenses of Eng. p. 545, under the date 1464, occurs a payment 'for a c. sperlyng, ij^d.' Tusser, in his Husbandrie, p. 28, ch. xii. refers to the eating of sperlings at Michaelmas:

'All Saints do lay for pork and souse, For sprats and spurplings for their house.'

In a recipe for 'Risshens' in the Liber Cure Cocorum, p. 39, we read:

'Lay hit in a roller as sparlyng fysshe, Frye hit in grece, lay hit in dysche.'

See also ibid. p. 54. 'Spurlings are but broad Sprats, taken chiefly upon our Northern coast; which being drest and pickled as Anchovaes be in Provence, rather surpass them than come behind them in taste and goodness. . . . As for Red Sprats and Spurlings, I vouchsafe them not the name of any wholesome nourishment, or rather of no nourishment at all; commending them for nothing, but that they are bawdes to enforce appetite, and serve well the poor mans turn to quench hunger.' Muffett, p. 169. The English name is a corruption of the French eperlan, a title given to the fish to describe its pearly appearance. In Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 222, is given, 'Hic sperlyngus, Hic thimalus, a sperlynge;' and at p. 189 'sperlyng' is glossed by gamerus, which we have already had as the Lat. equivalent of Bafynstylkylle, p. 17. ³ A stag is properly the male of any animal: cf. Stegge=gander. 'Stag, a colt, a young cock.' Peacock's Gloss. of Manley, &c. 'Pullus, the younge of everything; a foale; a chicken.' Cooper. The word is generally taken as meaning a young horse 'under 3 years old,' but the following quotations from the Wills & Invent. vol. i. disprove this. Probably it is an unbroken horse, for though R. Claxton bequeaths 'an ambling stagg,' yet one mode of teaching a young horse to amble was to strap his fore and hind legs together while he was yet in the field and before he was broken, and thus let him teach himself. The word certainly had no reference to colour or sex, nor, I think, to any particular age. They might be old enough to breed from: thus John Sherwode in 1533 bequeathed to Isabel his wife 'a graye mayr and a stagge withe there folowers.' p. 111. 'To John Cowndon & Richard Fishborne either of them a colt stagge.' Will of John Trollope, 1522, p. 106. 'Item I gyue to thomas pereson my graye fillie stagg. Item I gyue to George Marley the yonger my other colt stagg.' Will of T. Wrangham, 1565, p. 245. 'I geve to George Claxton my sonne one bay meire. I geue to Christofer Claxton my sonne one whyt felly stagg two yeres old. I geve to thomas Claxton my sonne a folle of a yere old . . . I geue to my said wyf Agnes Claxton my steaplead and one gray amling stagg.' Will of Rauf Claxton, 1567, p. 275. 'To Henrie Riddell my hole part of the cole mynes, att St. Edmunds, in Gatishhead, one stagg of fower yere old, and 6^h. 13^s. 4^d.' Will of Ralph Richeson, 1585, p. 109. 'Item, I bequeath to y^e said Richard Preston, my servant, a stoned stagg of ij yerres old.' Will of Francis Mauleverer, 1539, p. 16. 'Also I gyue vnto hym my bay horsse and my yowne merke gray stage, of iiij yerres of age with all my bokes in my stody.' Will of C. Pickering, 1542, p. 34. 'Unethes may I wag, man, for-wery in youre stablelle, Whils I set my stag, man.' Towneley Myst p. 311.

⁴ See Stowre.

⁵ See note to Mughe, above, p. 245, where the distinction between the two terms is explained in a quotation from W. de Bibbesworth. 'A stacke, strues.' Manip. Vocab. 'Then if there bee any hey to spare for which wee wante howse-rooms, wee either stacke it abroade, or doe make it up in a pyke, setting our stacke or pyke in our barrenest close.' *Farming, &c. Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 264. Staggard or staggarth, i.e. stack-garth, the enclosure where the stacks are kept, is of frequent occurrence; compare H. Best's Farming, &c. Books, p. 39: 'Of these [grasse cockes] the little staggarth had seaven;' and p. 60: 'a good thatcher will in one day thatch a whole side of the stacke that standeth on the longe helme in the staggarth.' The corresponding term in Ireland is Haggard or Haggarth=hay garth, which we also find as a not unusual surname.

² Cotgrave gives 'Estamine, f. the stuffe Tamine; also a strainer, searce, boulder, or boulding cloth, so called, because made (commonly) of a thin kind thereof. Estaminer; to straine, searce, bould; to passe through a searce.' See Ancren Ricle, p. 418, where we read that anchoresses were allowed to wear this material: 'Stamin hadde hwose wule, and hwose wule mei beon buten.' Another form of the word was stamell. Thus we find 'Two peticotts thone of skerlet thother of stamell xxxv,' in the Invent. of Marg. Gascoigne, in 1567. Wills & Invents, i. 273. 'Steming, stemyng. The cloth now called tamine or taminy.' Jamieson. By the Act 25 Henry VIII, c. 5, it was enacted that 'no person vsing the Craft or Mystery of Dying of Worsteds, Stamins or Sayes, or any of them . . . shall vse to Callender any Worsteds, Stamins, or Sayes, or any other commodities made of Worsted Yarne.' The material was of wool and linen mixed, of a coarse texture, as we see by its being used by penitents in the place of the hair shirt. Thus Caxton says: 'He puttyng his fleshe under the seruytude of the spyryte ware for a shyrt a stamyn or streynre clothe.' Golden Legende, p. 432. See Halliwell, who explains the word by 'a kind of linsey-woolsey; or a dress made of that material.' Compare P. Stemyne, p. 474, and Strayle, bedclothe, p. 478. The above is most probably the meaning here, but as there is no latin equivalent it may be well to point out that in the Morte Arthure, 3658, the word occurs with the meaning of the stem or bows of a ship: the sailors, we read,

'Standis styffe on the stamyne, steris one aftyre.'

³ In the Seven Sages (Weber, iii. 10) the Sages try the skill of a young prince by placing 'Under ech stapd of his bed' four ivy leaves: where the meaning is apparently the posts of the bed. In 1569 Elizabeth Claxton bequeathed vnto 'An Jaxsonn one Cheast wth halthe a sneck locke wyth a coffer. It^m one other cheast wth hayl'

Sterne; vbi felle (A.).

Sterke; supra infra (A.).

†a Stere tre⁶; stiua, regimen.

to Stere; regere.

¹ There is evidently some corruption here, which I cannot explain.

² Still in use in the North for a gander. Mr. Peacock in his Glossary gives 'Stegg, a gander (obsolete).' 'Item, vj gees with one stegg.' Inventory of Thomas Robinson of Appleby, 1542. It also occurs in Ray's Gloss. of North Country Words. 'A steg, gander, anser.' Manip. Vocab. In the Inventory of Richard Cook, 1570, we find mentioned 'vij geysse and steggs, price iij^s.' Richmondshire Wills, p. 229. 'One goose, j stegg, vj yong geise at Belsis 4^s.' Invent. of John Eden, 1588; Wills & Invents, ii. 329. Cf. a Sstagge.

³ Probably a stile (see Stile, below), which is still so commonly pronounced in the North. In the description of the heavenly Jerusalem in Allit. Poems, A. 1001, we are told that amongst the precious stones which composed the foundation,

'Saffer helde þe secounde stale;'

where the meaning is a stage: and again C. 513, God says that in Nineveh there are many who

'bitwene þe stele & þe stayre disseme not cunen;'

where the word would appear to be used in the sense of the steps of a ladder, as also in Shoreham, p. 3—'This ilke laddre is charite. The stales gode theawis;'

and in the Ancien Ruele, p. 354—'þeos two stalen of þisse leddre.' Compare P. Steyle and Stile.

⁴ See Schyfe, above. The use of stepmother as an attributive here seems strange; stepmothers do not, as a rule, have the credit of giving cakes or such like to their step-children. Perhaps, however, colirida is to be taken as defined by the Ortus, 'a thynne shyue of brade, or a cake.' Hic lesca, A^{ca}. scywe. Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 198.

⁵ In that time, so it bifelle.

A riche king, and swythe stark.

Was in the lon of Denemark

Havedok, 341.

Into that land ane stark castell their stude, Vpoun ane craig besyde ane rynnand flude.

W. Stewart, Cronicles of Scotland, l. 24,444.

'This hounde ladde this holi man to an halle fair y-nou3, Gret and sterc and swythe noble.' St. Brendan, l. 121.

And in Wright's Lyric Poetry, xxx. p. 87—

'Ne is no queene so stark ne stour, Ne no levedy so bryht in bour.'

See Starke, above.

⁶ Anything used to steer or guide by. Thus we find it used in the Towneley Myst. p. 31, for the rudder or rather the tiller. Noah addressing his wife says:

'Wife, tent the stere-tre, and I shalle asay

The depnes of the see that we bere, if I may.'

Wyclif, Proverbs xxiii. 34, uses the form 'steerstaf.' The simple form steer or stere for a helm is common: see for instance, Purvey's version of Wyclif, Prov. xxiii. 34; Barbour's Bruce, iii. 576, iv. 374, 630; Chaucer, Leg. Good Women, 2413. Compare Stert and Sterne of y^e schyfe, below. In King Horn, 1421, stere is used in the sense of stern, the part of the vessel where the steering was done, and in the Land of Cockayne, (Early Eng.

Poems, ed. Furnivall), p. 160, we have 'wip oris and wip stere,' the meaning being rudder. We find the word also used for the handle of the plough, that by which it is guided, which, judging from the latin equivalent, is most probably the meaning here (see Plewghe handylle, above). Thus in the Invent. of Robert Prat, taken in 1562, we find 'one hande sawe, one horse loke xvjd., ij plewghes, j culter, on socke, iij^s. iij^d., xxij fellows, v donge forokes, x pleughe heads, vi plewe sheares, ij stere tres, foure showells, two spades vj^s. viij^d.' Wills & Invent. i. 207; so also ibid. p. 260, where are mentioned 'ij mould bordes with plew heads, handells, sheirs and stertrees ij^s.' see also Richmond, Wills, &c. p. 138, where, in the Invent. of Francis Wandysforde in 1559, we find 'pleugh heames, heds, shethes, stere tres, handles, &c.' W. de Biblessworth mentions amongst the parts of a plough, 'Le chef (the plou heved) e le penoun (and the foot), Le manuel (the handele) e le tenoun (the sterte).' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 168; and again, in the next page moundiloun is glossed by 'the ploustare.' 'Stere for the ploughe. Trio.' Huloet.

Squyr of Lowe Degre, 56.

'Staare, a byrde, estourneaux.' Palsgrave. 'Estourneau, m. a stare or starling.' Cotgrave; see also s. v. Sansonet. This name is still in common use. In the account of the Flood as given in the Cursor Mundi, we read, l. 1789—

'Til oþer did na beist vn-quert þe sparhawk flough be þe sterling.'

'Wip mouth þan chetereþ þe stare.' Trevisa's Higden, i. 239; see also ibid. iv. 307. Sir T. Elyot in his Governour, p. 40, ed. 1580, says: 'he that hath nothing but language onely, may be no more praised the a popiniay, a pye, or a stare, when they speake feately.' A. S. ster, O. Icel. stari. 'Estourneus, sterlinges.' W. de Biblessworth, in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 151.

² The regular northern form of the word. Thus in the Pricke of Cons. 995, Hampole tells us that in heaven

'Par es na corrupcion, but cler ayre, And þe planettes and sternes shynand.'

See also ll. 7571-2, in the former of which occurs the adjective sterned = starry:

'Sere hevens God ordaynd for sere thyng, . . . þare þe planetes and þe sternes er alle, Ane es, þat we þe sterned heven calle, þat men may se here, on nyght, schyne.' A. S. steorra. Cf. Icel. stjarna, Dan. stjerne. In Metrical Homilies, ed. Small, p. 66, we find—

'The Lord that syttes heght in troune,
And schope hath sterne, sone, and mone.'

'þat grete lightnesses maked he; þe mone and sternes in might of night,' þe sunne in might of daies light, Early English Psalter, Psalm cxxxv. 9.

³ See Brand's Popular Antiquities, ed. Hazlitt, iii. 345-357.

⁴ Originally the rudder of a vessel. 'Timón, the sterne wherewith a ship is guided. Timónear, to steare at the rudder or helme.' Minsheu, Span. Dict. 1623. 'Aplaster, A sterel of a shyp. Remez, A rothere off a sterysman.' Medulla. In P. Plowman, A. ix. 30, we have—

'þif he ne rise þe rapen, and rauhte to þe steorne, þe wynt wolde with þe water þe Bot ouer-prowe.'

and in Wyclif, Proverbs xxiii. 34, one MS. has 'the steorne ether the instrument of gouernail.'

'þen hurled on a hepe þe helme and þe sterne.' Allit. Poems, C. 149.

'How shold a shippe withouten a sterne in the great sea be governed.' Chaucer, Test. of Love, Bk. i. p. 272, ed. 1560. See also Hous of Fame, 437, and Wright's Polit. Poems, ii. 109, where, in a poem dated 1401, we read—

'Ne were God the giour and kept the stern . . . al schulde wende to wrak.'

This sense remained till the 17th century. In 1565 Churchyard in his Churchyard Chippes, p. 192 (ed. 1817), writes: 'Who can bring a sternlesse barke aboute?' and in 1647 H. More in his Poems, p. 82, has 'withouten stern, or card, or Polar starre.' 'Stere or roder in a shyp, gouernail; sterne of a shyppe, gouernail.' Palsgrave. See also Douglas, Aeneas, p. 131, l. 21. Compare Stertre, above. Icel. stjorn, a rudder.

Compare Barbour's Bruce, iii. 704. where we find the expression, 'a gret sterling off schippys.' See Startle in Jamieson. Chaucer, Legend of Good Women, l. 1202, speaks of 'a coursere startlyng as the fire:' and in Tyndale's version, Mark v. 13 is rendered: 'And the heerd starteled, and ran hedlyng into the see.' 'Pere was at Rome a bole of bras in þe schap of Iupiter ouercast and schape to men þat loked peron; þat boole semed lowynge and startlyng.' Trevisa's Higden, i. 225. 'I startell as a man dothe that is amased sodaynly, or that hath some inwarde colde. Je tressaule. As soone as he sawe me come in a dores, he starteled lyke one that sawe the thyng whiche lyked hym nat over well.' Palsgrave.

² Originally meaning a tail. A. S. steort. We frequently find this word used, as here, for a handle or anything resembling a tail. In Havelok, l. 2823, Godrich being bound

'Vpon an asse swithe unwraste His nose went unto the stert.'

Andeloug, nouht ouerthwert,

Fitzherbert in his Boke of Husbandry, fo. Di. uses the word in the sense of a stalk: 'Dernelde groweth vp streyght lyke an hye grasse, and hath longe sedes on eyther syde the stert.' We have already had manutentum as the latin equivalent of the 'hande staffe' of a flail: see Flayle, p. 133. Compare P. Ploustert. 'Stert of a plow, queue de la charrue.' Palsgrave. 'Rough start which the tylnman holdeth. Stiva.' Huloet. The word is still in use in the North. See Stertre, above. 'Stiva, solow-borde.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 180. 'Le chef [the plow-heved] e le penoun [and the foot].'
Le manuel [the handle] e le tenoun [and the sterte].'

W. de Biblesworth, in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 168.

³ Here probably the meaning is the same as in Palsgrave, 'stert of frute, queue de frut.'

⁴ A cloth embroidered or worked in colours. In the Inventory dated 1502 and printed in the Paston Letters, iii. 408, we find: 'Item, a steynyd clothe, a crucifix xx^d.' Amongst the 'gods of Thomas Arkyndalle' in 1499, are mentioned 'a steynyd clath vj^d. A wyndaw clath iij^d, &c.' Wills & Invent. i. 104. See also Pecoek's Repressor, pt. ii. p. 258, where describing some tapestry the author says: 'in this steyned clooth King Herri leieth a sege to Harfleur.' John Baret in his Will, dated 1463, printed in Bury Wills, &c., p. 33, bequeathed 'to the seid Jone Baret, my nece, ij. sponys of silvir, a long grene coors of silke harneysid with silvir, and my steynyd cloth w^t vij. agys, and a competent bed with ij. peyre shetys and al othir shetys and stuffe longyng to a bed, such as my executours wil assigne and delyue' accordyng to here degre, and othir stuff of housshold as they thinkke necessaurye for hire.' 'Pollimita, a steyned cloth or a chekery. Pollimitarius, a motle wevare. Pollimitus, diuerse coloure.' Medulla. In the Invent. of the Wardrobe of William Duffield, Canon of York, in 1452, we find the following entries: 'De xij^s, de pretio ij costers panni linei, steynyd [printed steynynd] cum ymaginibus Sanctorum Johannis Evangeliste et Sancti Johannis Beverlaci. De xv^s, de pretio iij costers, steynyd cum angelis. De ij^s, vij^d, de pretio ij auterclothes stened cum ymaginibus Trinitatis et Beate Marie, &c.' Test. Eborac. iii. 135; and in 1479, Joan Caudell left 'to Cristian Forman, my servaunt, a halling of white steend with vij warkes of mercy.' Ibid. p. 246.

⁵ 'Stewe or hotehouse, hypocaustum.' Huloet. 'A stewe, hypocaustum.' Manip. Vocab. Baret also gives 'a stewe; vide Hot house and Bath. A bathe, stewe or hoate house, vaporarium, hypocaustum. A Bayne or stewe; a washing place, nympharium; the place in the house where the bayne or stewe is, Balnearium; the mayster of baynes or stewes, balneator. An hoat house or drie bayne or stue, laconicum, hypocaustum.' Cotgrave has 'Estuves, f. stewes; also stoves or hot-houses.' 'She hyryd suche as were about hym to consent to hir iniquytie, so that vpon a season, whā he came out of his stewe or bayne, he axyd drynke, by the force whereof he was poysoned, and dyed soone after.' Fabyan, c. cxxv. p. 106. See the directions in Russell's Boke of Nurture (Babes Book), p. 182, for 'A bathe or stewe so called.' 'Secretely he gan himself remue To be bathed in a prieyu stue.'

² Used both for a bullock, and a young horse or cob. 'A stot, bullock, juvencus.' Manip. Vocab. In Piers Plowman, B. xix. 262, we are told how Grace

'Gaue pieres of his goodnesse foure stottis, Al þat his oxen cryed þay to harwe after.' 'Stotte, boucau.' Palsgrave. In the Towneley Mysteries, p. 112, we find 'aythor cow or stott.' Icel. stuttr, a bull: Swed. stut, a bullock: Dan. stod, an ox. William Allanson in his will, 1542, bequeathed 'to my sunne Gwe one siluer deghte dagar, vj syluer sponithz, one iryn speitte, one great braspot, one chyste, ix iryn strakethz, with all ye dulle edges, and two stottithz, one white and one donnyd. The same meaning appears in Best's Farming, &c., Books, p. 144: 'On Sunday, the 4th of September, wee sette open Mr. Hodgson's Sikes gate, and gave our kyne the groue of that close, which was well come on; there was at that time a bull, eleaven milch kyne, two fatte kyne, two fatte stottes, two leane stottes, eight calves, two leane whies and fower horses.' The word is still common in this meaning. In the St. John's Coll. MS. of De Deguileville's Pilgrimage, lf. 97^b: 'Sum says I am a yonge hus-bande, I pray you giffe a stotte or twa to my plught;' the meaning may be either bullock or horse. Chaucer on the other hand applies the term to a saddle-horse. When describing the Reeve, C. T. Prol. 617, he says

'This reeve sat upon a wel good stot, That was a pomely gray, and highte Scot.'

³ 'A stouke of corne, strues manipulorum.' Manip. Vocab. 'Stooks, s. pl. sheaves of corn.' Mr. Peacock's Gloss. of Manley, &c. A word in common use. H. Best in his Farming, &c., Books says: 'When corne is fully ripe, and not infeckted with weedes, it needs not stande above a weeke in the stooke to harden, but if it be either greenish, or softe, it would stande nine or ten dayes afore it be ledde. There should be in everie stooke 12 sheaves; and their manner in stookinge of winter corne is to sette nine of the sheaves with their arses downe to the grownde, and their toppes caven up so that they stand just fower square, having three sheaves on every side, and one in the midst; and then doe they take the other three sheaves that remaine, and cover the toppe of the standing sheaves' p. 45. He also uses the verb to stook, p. 43: 'Those that binde and stooke are likewise to have 8^d a day; for bindinge and stookinge of winter-corne is a man's labour and requireth as much and rather ability and toyle then the other.' 'One stooker will stooke after two binders or sixe sythes, and oftentimes after seauen or eight leyes, if the binders fauour him but soe farre as to throwe all his sheaves to one lande, but wee seldome desire to haue them stooke after aboute sixe sythes.' ibid. p. 48; see also p. 54. ¹ '(1) A short coat worn over the other garments; especially the long & flowing drapery of knights, anterior to the introduction of plate armour, & which was frequently emblazoned with the arms of the family: a tabard. (2) A short robe worn by females at the close of the eleventh century, over the tunic, and terminating a little below the knee.' Fairholt, Hist. of Costume. Harrison, Descript. of Eng. i. 125, tells us that a Knight of the Garter is to wear on St. George's day 'his mantell with the George and the lace, without either whood, collar or surcote.' In Sir Gawayne, l. 1929, the knight is described as wearing 'a bleaunt of blwe, pat bradde to þe erþe,

His surkot semed hym wel, pat softe watȝ forred;'

and in Emare, l. 652, we are told 'Her surcote that was large and wyde,

With the hynther lappes.'

Therwith her vysage she gan hyde,

Arthur in his dream saw

'A duchess dereworthily dyghte in dyaperde wedis,

In a surcott of sylke fulle selkouthely hewede.' Morte Arthure, 3252.

'And Eduard hys sone that wes ying,

And surname off Wyndyssor.'

In England crownyt wes to king, and in the Metrical Chronicle of England, l. 982, printed in Ritson's Metrical Romances, ii. 311:

Anon afterward, Reignede ys sone Richard,

Richard queor de lyoun, That was his surname.'

The author of the Catholicon, however, seems to take the word to mean a family name, a surname in the modern sense, as also does Huloet, who gives 'Surname. Agnomen, Cognomen, Cognomentum, whyche is the fathers name. Surnamed, or called after the fathers name. Agnominatus, Cognominatus. Surnamen. Agnomino, Cognomino.'

⁵ To play with swords was the usual phrase for fencing and gladiatorial contests. Compare a Bucler plaer, above, p. 46. In the Ancren Riwle, p. 212, we have the expression 'pleieð mid swordes.' In Holinshed's Chronicle, vol. iii. p. 1333, we read of 'tigres, panthers, beares, and swordplaiers' encountering one another to the death; and in Giraldus' Hist. of Ireland, in Holinshed, ii. 27, is mentioned 'the plaie or game of swordplaiers or maisters of defence.' ¹ The bar that swings at the heels of the horses when drawing a harrow. R. Holme, 1688, says: 'These are made of wood, and are fastned by iron hooks, stables, chains, and pins to the Coach-pole, to the which Horses are fastned by their Harnish when there is more then two to draw the Coach.' Bk. iii. ch. viii. n^o. 33. 'They [the horses] must have hombers or collers, holmes withed about theyr neckes, tresses to drawe by, and a swyngletre to holde the tresses abrode, and a togewith to be bytwene the swyngletre and the harowe.' Fitzherbert, Boke of Husbandry, fo. C 5. 'If it be Horse, then they are two-fold, as single or double; single, as when they draw in length one horse after another, and then there is needfull but the plow clevis, and a swingle-tree, treates, collers, harness, and cart bridles.' G. Markham, The Countrey Farme, 1616, p. 533. 'A swingle-tree. Projectorium,' Gouldman. The word was also used for a flail or instrument for dressing flax, as in the quotation from the Wright's Chaste Wife given above. 'I bete and swingile flex.' Reliq. Antiq. ii. 197. 'Swingle-staff, or bat to beat flax. Scutula,' Gouldman.

² This appears to be the same as Swingle-stock. Huloet gives 'Swynglyngbatte, or staffe to beate flaxe. Scutula,' which is also probably the same.

³ A disease amongst swine, also called swine-pox. Baret renders porrigo by 'Scurf or scales of the heade.'

⁴ MS. Swynpylle. 'A swipple. The part of a flail which strikes the corn: the blade of a flail as it were.' Halliwell. H. Best in his Farming, &c. Books, p. 143, says: 'each of them [thrashers] shall have a threave of strawe every weeke, which is supposed to bee allowed for buyinge and furnishing them with swipples and faile bandes.' See the account of the fight in the Tournament of Tottenham, 167:

'Of sum were the hedys brokyn, of sum the brayn-pannes, Wyth swyppying of swepyla.
And yll were thay besene, or thay went thanns,

'Wit suire and scantilon sa euen, Pat may reche heghur þan heuen'; and again, l. 1664, God tells Noah to make the ark 'o suare tre.' See also ibid. l. 8808. 'I squyer, I rule with a squyer, as a carpynter doyth his worke or he sawe it out. Je equarre. Squyer this borde or you sawe it.' Palgrave.

⁶ I can make nothing of this, unless it means to mow grass in swathes.

⁷ 'Ilka vayne of þe man's body, Had a rote festend fast þarby,
And in ilka taa and fynger of hand War a rote fra þat tre growand.'

Hampole, P. of Cons., 1910.

Douglas, Æneados, Bk. ix. p. 305, has 'standand on his tip-tais.' A. S. tā.

⁸ According to Strutt the Tabard was 'a species of mantle which covered the front of the body and the back, but was open at the sides from the shoulders downwards; in the early representations of the tabard it appears to have been of equal length before and behind, and reached a little lower than the loins.' 'Tabard, a garment, manteau,' Palgrave. 'A jaquet or sleeveless coat worn in times past by noblemen in the warres, but now only by heraults, and is called theyr coat of armes in servyce,' Speght's Glossary, 1597. The tabard worn by Chaucer's Plowman was probably like our smock-frock.

⁵ 'A paire of Tables to plaie at dice, or the boxe out of which the dice are cast: a chesse boorde or tables, alucius, alveolus: They spend whole daies in plaieng at tables or chestes.' Baret. Amongst the articles enumerated in the Paston Letters, iii. 436, as having been taken away at the Duke of Suffolk's attack on Helleston, is 'Item, a payr of large tabelles of box, pris vj^s. viij^d.' See Boke of the Duchesse, l. 50. The author of the Ayenbite mentions as 'þe tende bo3 of auarice . . . kneade gemenes, ase lyef þe gemenes of des and of tables.' p. 45. In Sir Ferumbras, l. 2225, Naymes describing the amusements of the French, says: 'Summe of hem [pleych] to iew-de-dame, and summe to tablere.' See also Life of St. Alexus, p. 65, l. 989. 'Tables to playe wyth dice and men. Tabula. Table playing. Alca. Table player. Aleator.' Huloet. Francis Pynner in his will, 1639, bequeathed to his son-in-law his 'inlaid playeing tables.' Bury Wills, &c. p. 180; and in the Will of Joan Stevens, of Bury, 1459, occurs, 'vnum par de tablis cum chesemen et tablmenys.' Lib. Hawlee, p. 65.

⁶ Compare P. Hand Tabylys. Here perhaps the meaning may be the original one, viz., tablets containing the names of the dead for whose souls the priest was to pray, which were hung up in the porch or some other public part of the church.

*Tabour, tympanum, tympanizo, to playe on a tabour. Tabourer, tympanista.' Huloet. Tympanys* and taubernis.' Douglas, Eneados, Bk. ix. p. 299. See also Lyndesay's Monarchie, i. 2505.

'In me weore tacched sorwes two.'

Robert of Brunne says, p. 30, that Charles the king of France sent to Athelstane

'A suerd of gold, in þe hiltē did men hide Tached on þe croyce, þe blode þei out lete.'

Two of þe nailes, þat war þorh Ihesu fete and in Sir Gawayne, l. 219, the Green Knight's axe is described as having 'tryed tasseles þerto tacched.' see also l. 2176:

³ Harrison in his Descript. of Eng. ii. 20, divides the fish of this country into five sorts, the first of which, the flat-fish, he again subdivides into three classes, and says 'of the third are our chaits, maidens, kingsons, flash and thornbacke.' Cooper renders 'uranoscopus' by 'a certaine fishe, hauing one eye in his heade.' 'A thornbacke, fish, achantia.' Manip. Vocab. Probably the ray, for which we have had the same latin equivalent, see p. 299. 'Uranoscopus, a plays or a thornbak.' Medulla.

It thaweth, as the weather dothe, whan the frost breaketh. Il desgele.' Palsgrave. 'Degelat, thowes.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 201.

⁵ Still in use in the North, and generally taken as a measure of twenty-four sheaves or two stooks of corn. The word occurs in the Townley Myst. p. 12—

'I wille chose and best hafe This hold I thrift of all this thrafe.'

In the Invent. of William Lawson, taken in 1551, are mentioned 'An c threve of wheat and rye at ij^s. vi^d. a thraue xv^s. A cxx Thraue of otts at xij^d. a thraue, vj^s.' Wills & Invent. i. 34: and in the Invent. of Christopher Thomson, 1544, we find, 'Item ten threffes of rye, vj^s. viij^d. Item, three threffes of wheat, iij^s. Item xxij threffes of oytts, vij^s.' Richmond. Wills, &c. p. 53. ⁶ To twist or turn. Still used in Scotland, where a perverse or obstinate person is said to have a thraw or twist. 'To thraw or turne, tornare.' Manip. Vocab. Mr. Peacock in his Glossary of Manley, &c., gives 'Thraw, a turning lathe.' See also Halliwell, s. v. The verb throw is still used for the winding or twisting of silk, and the person who winds or twists the silk is termed a throwster. W. de Bibbesworth, in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 170 says: 'a l'entre del hus est la lyme [the therswald].' 'Dame tonge the maystresse is pute oute of hyr place, by cause of her ryote, and not by the dore but vnder the threshfold drawn oute.' Lydgate, Pylgremage of the Soule, ed. 1483, Bk. iii. c. ix. fol. 56. Wyclif uses the forms threhold, threswald, &c., as in Exodus xii. 23: 'whanne he seeth the bloode in the threwald'; and verse 7: 'in the threshewoldes of the howses.'

'Tho to the dur threswald cummin are thay.' G. Douglas, Aeneidos, p. 164, l. 7.

² In the Will of John Baret, 1463, we find the expression 'sum thrifty man,' the meaning being well-to-do. Bury Wills, &c. p. 26. The use is not yet obsolete in the provinces.

³ In the Early Eng. Psalter, Ps. lxxii. 22 is thus rendered—

'And I am to noghte for-þi Thryngen, and na-thing wist I;'

see also v. 20. In the Owl and Nightingale, 794, we have—

'Tweie men goth to wraslinge An either other faste thrynge.'

Chaucer, Troilus & Cressida, iv. 10, has: 'He gan yn thrynge forth with lordis old; see also Merchant's Tale, 1105. In Sir Eglamour, 1023, the hero, we are told,

'Waxe bothe bolde and stronge; Ther myst no man with-sytt hys dynte

Yn yustying ne yn tournament,

But he to the erthe them thrynge.'

Wyclif's version of Luke viii. 43 runs: 'And Ihesus seith, Who is it that touchide me? Sothli alle men denyng, Petre seide, and thei that weren with him, Comaundour, cumpanyes thryngeu, and turmentyn thee, and thou seist, Who touchide me?' In the Song of Roland, l. 290, the word is used apparently in the sense of cover, load: 'his thics thryngid with silk, as I say.'

³ The ball or apple in the throat, commonly called Adam's-apple. See Chaucer, Reeve's Tale, 353, where the Miller is described as having

'By the throte-bolle caught Alleyn, And on the nose he smot him with his fest.'

And he hent him dispitously ageyn,

Early Eng. Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 70.

In the Ancren Riwe, p. 378, we have 'ine stonene þruh biclosed hetaeste.' In the Early English Psalter, Psalm lxxviii. 7 reads—

'Als-awa þai þat smertes ai, þat herde in throghe, night & dai;'

where Wyclif reads sepulchra. See also Destruction of Troy, l. 11820.

'The cors that dyed on a tre was berid in a stone,

Sir W. Scott uses the phrase 'through-stane,' in the sense of a grave-stone, in the 'Antiquary,' chap. xvi and xxiii. 'Mausoleum. A graveston or A throw.' Medulla. A. S. þruh. See Jamieson, s. v. Thruich stane.

¹ 'The extremities of a weaver's warp, often about nine inches long, which cannot be woven.' Halliwell. Horman says, 'The bauldy thrummes of the carpettes toke me faste by the feet, Sordidi tapetium et gausapium fratelli pedes mihi implicuerunt.' In the Manners and Household Expenses of England (1466), p. 346, the word is used for coarse yarn: 'Item, paid for thrommes for hyche mapolles, ij^d.' Lyte, Dodoens, p. 203, applies the term to thread-like appendages of flowers: 'out of the middest of this flower [Dogges Tooth] there hange also sixe smal thrommes or short threds, with little titles or pointed notes like as in the Lillies.' In the Will of Edmund Lee, executed in 1535, the testator bequeaths 'to Alys Mannyng iij^s. iij^d. and on new thrombyd hate.' Bury Wills, &c. p. 126. Here the meaning probably is a hat with a very long nap, resembling shaggy fur. A 'sylke thrummed hatt' occurs in the Will of Eliz. Bacon of Hessest. in 1570. 'Irto, thrommed, rough, heauie.' Thomas, Ital. Dictionary, 1548. In the Invent. of Sir J. Byndley, 1565, we find 'ij thrommed quishings.' Wills & Invents. i. 220.

R., in his translation of Mouffet's Theater of Insects, p. 1048, says of the wood-louse: 'The Latines call it Asellum, Cutionem, Porcellionem; Pliny said not well to call it Centipes, since it hath but fourteen feet: the English from the form call them Sowes, that is, little Hogs: from the place where they dwell, Tylers-louse, that is, Lice in roofs of houses: they are called also Thurstones, or Jovial Lice, from a spirit that was not hurtful, to whom our Ancestors superstitiously imputed the sending of them to us. In some places also they call them Cherbugs, and Chedlips, but I know not why.' According to Halliwell the millipede is called a Hob-thrush-louse. I can offer no suggestion as to the origin or meaning of the latin equivalents here given.

³ 'Timpus, þunwang.' Aelfric's Gloss. in Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 42. Compare Walter de Bibbesworth, as quoted by Mr. Way in note to Thun wonge:

² The branches of the horns. Markham in his Countray Farme, 1616, p. 684, says, 'You may likewise judge of their age by the tynes of their hornes.' The word is still in common use in the West and North for the teeth of a harrow, as well as for the branches of a deer's antlers. In Allit. Poems, A. 76, we find it used for a branch of a tree:

'As bornyst syluer þe lef onsydeþ, þat þike con trylle on vcha tynde.'

In Lydgate's Minor Poems, p. 203, we have—

'Maale deer to chause and to fynde . . . Vndir hire daggyd hood of green;'

That weel can beere with a tynde and Douglas, Encidos, vii. p. 224, speaks of a

'hart of body bayth grete and square, With large hede and tyndis birnist sare:'

Here the meaning evidently is blade, that which cuts.

³ 'The primary meaning of this word (trutannus) has not been accurately ascertained, but it seems to have been most generally used for a person who wandered about, and gained his living by false pretences, or passed himself under a different character to that which really belonged to him. It is applied sometimes to abbots and priors who lived abroad, and neglected their monasteries, or to monks who had quitted their houses, as in a passage of Giraldu Cambrensis (Wharton, Anglia Sacra, vol. iii. p. 575). Note by Mr. Wright in Political Songs, Camden Soc. p. 376, on the following line from a song on the Scottish Wars, temp. Edw. I: 'Fallax die praelii fugit ut trutannus.' Caxton, in the Golden Legend, fo. 359, col. 4, applies the term to vagrancy: 'There were thenne two felawes one lame and that other was blynde The lame taught the blynde man the weye and the blynd bare the lame man and thus gate they moche money by truandye [mendicantes].' Cotgrave gives 'Truand, m. a common beggar, vagabond, rogue, a lazie rascall, an upright man [see Audeley & Harman, ed. Furnivall, p. 4]; also a knave, varlet, scowndrell, filthy or lewd fellow. Faire le goupillon, to play the Truant.' Baret has 'Truand, he that loitereth, wandering abroade, or lurking in corners, emaneor, vagus.' Wyclif in his Controversial Tracts, Wks. iii. 421, has, 'þer is no witte in þo wordes þat treuants casten oute in þis mater.' ¹ A basket used for conveying large parcels of goods. Called also a trussing-basket. In the Paston Letters, iii. 432, Margaret Paston writes to her husband—'I can not ner Daubeney nowther, fynd your wyght boke: it is not in the trussing-cofyr, ner in the sprucheste nothyr.' 'There few men here dessyre his retorne hythir agayne. He came hythir with a smale male, but he comyth whom with his trussing coffers.' State Papers, 1535, Henry VIII, vol. ii. p. 244. In the Invent. of the goods of W. Duffield, Canon of York, taken in 1452, are mentioned 'j paris Gardeviance iij⁴. iij⁴.; et j paris trussing-coffers ij⁶.' Testam. Ebor. iii. 134; see also ibid. p. 163.

'Nowe putte amonge the shepe thaire tuppes white;' see also ll. 76, 77, and 95. 'See soone as our sheepe beginne to ride wee fetch hoame our riggons and young tuppes.' Best, Farming, &c. Book, p. 28. The word is used as a verb. ibid. p. 3: 'some of the ewes will tuppe, and come later.' It is still in use.

'This tournyng stayre gothe so rounde that it maketh me tourne sicke, if I go up hastely: Ceste vis va si ront quelle me bestourne si je monte hastiuement.' Palsgrave. Jamieson quotes from Wallace, ix. 510:

'A cruell portar gat apon the wall,
Powit out a pyn, the portculys leit fall—
Rychard Wallace the turngreys weill has seyn:
He folowit fast apon the portar keyn.'

and he also gives Turn-pyke or Turnepek as used in the same sense:

'Syne the colis and crelis wyth-all A-pon the turne-pyk lete he fall.'

Wyntoun, viii. xxxviii. 74.

'His luddokys thai lowke like walk-mylne clogges;'
 and in Holland's Pliny, Bk. xxxv. c. 11, 'Simus took pleasure in painting a yong boy lving asleep in a waulke-mill or Fullers worke-house.' In the Destruction of Troy, 1587. 'And the trades of Troy are mentioned wrightes, websters, walkers of clothe.' Trev.

'I shal warnestoure myn hous with toures, swiche as han Castelles, and othere manere edifices.' Chaucer, Tale of Melibee, l. 2523 (6-Text edition). 'Warnstoringe . . . of hegh toures and grete edifices apperteined som time to finde.' ibid. In the Cursor Mundī, 1698, God bids Noah to 'mak a boure. For to hald in þi wernestore;' where the other MSS. read warnestoure, warnistoure, and wardestoure. See also William of Palerne, l. 1121.

⁶ See P. Wose, p. 532. The author of the Fardle of Facions, speaking of the Ichthiophagi, says that 'they builde them preaty cabanes of the ribbes of whales. . . . Those do they couer with the woose, and the wiesdes of the sea tempered together.' Pt. i. ch. vi. p. 105. Trevisa, in his trans. of Higden, i. 63, says: 'in þe sides of þe hulles of Caspij salt weynes mullep and wooth oute humours.' In the Tale of Beryn, 1742, we read of ships being 'nat yit ysetelid, ne fixid in the woose.' 'Whan the heete is sharped by drynesse heete dealyth the humours, and the humours soo dealed. woosyth outwards, and makith the thyng safe and smothe.' Glanvil, *De Propr. ² The second best quality of bread, the best being simnel; and the third cocket. Mr. Wright (Vol. Vocab. p. 198) suggests that the origin of this word is the old Fr. gastcau, a cake. Baret renders Libum by 'a kinde of bunne, or cake; a wafer made of cleane wheate with honie and oyle; gastcau.' Cotgrave has 'Gastcau, a great cake; gasteld, a little cake.' Rerum*, 1582, Bk. viii. ch. xxxii. ff. 134, col. 2, we are told: 'Where starres be conijunct nigh togethe[r], they give the more lyght, and bee more fayre and bright. As it fareth in the Seuen Starres, & in the stars of the circle the which is called Galaxia, that is Wattlingstrete.' In Henryson's 'Traitie of Orpheus,' Edinburgh, 1508, he is represented as going to heaven to seek his wife:

'By Wadlyng strete . . . but tarying.'

'In the stil heuin mone cours we se

circulus lacteus, the quihlk the marynalis callis vallant streit.⁵ Other countries have also named this 'pathway in the sky' after terrestrial roads; thus Aventin, a German writer of the 10th century, called it Euring Strasse, after Euring, a mythological hero. The Italians, similarly, named it 'Santa Strada di Loretto,' and in the North of Spain and South of France it is known as Jacob's Way, Jacobstrasse. Similarly, Mahomedans call it the 'Hadji's way,' and in Norfolk it was known as Walsingham Street, as though pointing the way to the famous shrine at Walsingham.

⁴ Enlarged and inflamed glands in the neck. Baret has 'A kernel, a hard impostume gathered in the bodie, scirrus: a waxe kernell about the eares, or necke; parolis, glans.' 'Glandula, nodus sub cute, a waxynge curnelle.' Medulla. In the Royal MS. 17, C. xvii, de infirmitatibus are mentioned 'Glandulli, wax kyrnell.' 'Waxynge kyrnells; glande, glanders, Kyrnell or knobbe in the necke, or other where; glandre.' Palsgrave. 'Waxynge kernell. Tolles.' Huloet. Andrew Boorde, in his Breviary of Health, 1552, devotes three chapters to 'lytle cornells' or 'carnells' in the flesh: 'The cause of harde Carnelles cometh of colerycke humours, and the softe carnelles doth come of corrupt blood myxte with fleume.' ch. clxv. fo. 59; see also chh. xiv. and lxxix. Lyte, Dodoens, p. 719, says that 'The leaues of the figge tree do wast and consume away the king's euil or swelling kernelles in the throte.'

⁵ Webbe (A. S. webba) is a male weaver in Chaucer, Prol. 362; the feminine is both webbe (A. S. webbe in Beowulf, ed. Grein, 1942) and webster as here. Compare spynnsters in P. Plowman, B. v. 216, and wollewesteres in B. Prol. 219. The distinction between the forms does not appear to have been strictly adhered to. Thus in P. Plowman, C. vii. 221, we find—'My wif was a webbe, and woollen cloth made.' Similarly, in Wright's Vocab. p. 214, baxter and brewster are masculine, while at p. 216 they are feminine. 'Hic tektor, A. webstere.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 194.

² Douglas, in his trans. of Virgil, Bk. viii. p. 251, uses this word in the sense here given of strangle:

'twa grete serpentis perlay, The quhilk he weryit with his handis tway.'
 Jamieson quotes from the Lamentation of Lady Scotland, A. iii. a 6—

'Sum wyrreit was, and blawin in the air.'

Wyntoun, III. iii. 129, has the word in its modern use of worry:

'It hapnyde syne at a huntyng Wytht wolwys hym to weryde be;'
 and also Douglas, Bk. x. p. 394—

'He has . . . werryit the noithird on the plane.'

In Havelok, 1921, we read—

'On the morwen, hwan it was day, Ilc on other wirwed lay.'
 See also ibid. l. 1915. Hampole tells us the world is like a wilderness

'pat ful of wild bestes es sene, pat wald worow men bylyve;'

Als lyons, libardes, and wolwes kene, where the Addit. MS. 11305 reads for the last line,

'The whilke wol a man strangly and destrye.'

'Wesant of the throte. Curculio.' Huloet. 'Hic ysophagus, A. waysande.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 185. Compare Throttle bolle, above, p. 386. In one MS., Harl. 4789, of Trevisa's trans. of Bartholomæus De Propr. Rerum, wosen is constantly used where other MSS. read arteries. Thus in bk. v. ch. xxxvii. lf. 40^b, he writes: 'In a man þe herte is as a rote and a more in a tree ¶ þe wosen þat comþ of þe lifte wombe of þe herte is licke þe stok & þe body of a tree ¶ & fer fro þe tree hert he wexþ forke in tweye partyes, one . . . vpward & þe oþer dounward ¶ & þilke partyes ben y-braunchid & i-forked and departed as a zerd y-made of rys & of sprayes, bowes & twygges in to alle þe body y-sprad anon to þe weyes of here in þe skyn. ¶ & whan þe hert closeþ, þei closen also;' and again, ch. lxi. lf. 49: 'And alle þe weynes be made of [o]cortel and nouȝt of two as þe arteries ben & wosen, for þe arteries fongen spirites & kepeþ & saueþ hem. Also þese arteries ben made & compouned of two small lederne pipes þat ben cleped curteles.'

¹ In Ray's Gloss. of North Country Words, ed. Skeat, is given 'Whye, sb. juvenca Danis hodiernis et Scotia quie—Nicholson. Whee, or whey, sb. an heifer. The only word used here (in the East Riding of Yorkshire) in that sense.' 'Why, an heifer,' also occurs in Thoresby's Letter to Ray, 1703. Jamieson gives 'Quey, Quy, Quoy, Quych, Quoyach, Quouch, Quoych, s. A cow of two years old.' Cf. Dan. quie, a heifer. 'Hec juvenca, Anglice quie.' Wright's Vol. of Vocab. p. 204. Poems*, C. 1577: 'wyches and walkyries wonnen be þat wale.' Trevin, in his trans. of Higden, ii. 321, renders augures by wiches: 'þat þe wiches sate answere;' and again, iv. 167, he says of Julian the Apostate, 'þat Julianus in his childhode lerned nygromancie and wichecraft . . . and a fend shewed hym to hym by the doynge of a wicke [magis mediante apparuit].' 'In þat tyme þat he began þat wiche craft [ars magica] in Nemproot þe geauntes tyme.' ibid. i. l. 100-101, 177, and v. 87. The Whoope or dunghill Cocke, a bird that nestles in mans ordure.' Cooper, in his Thesaurus, says 'Vpupa. A birde no bigger then a thrush, and hath a creste from his bill to the vttermost parte of his heade, which he strouteth vp, or holdeth downe accordynge to his affection: wherefore it can not be our lapwyng, as it hath been taken for. ² Festnes es Laverd him dredand to,

And his wite-word [testamentum] þat he schewed in þo.

Early Eng. Psalter, Ps. xxiv. 14.

In the Kirkton-in-Lindsay Church Accounts, under date 1513, is an item, 'Received for Will. Briggs bereall and for his wyrtward vj^s. viij^d.' The verb to wite = to bequeath seems very commonly in 15th and 16th century wills. Thus in the Test. Ebor. iv. 41, in the Will of Robert Pynkney, Chantry-priest at Hornby, in 1489, we read: 'for my mortuary I wite my best moveable. Also I wite v pund of wax to be burnyd at myn obiet. Also I wite to evere preist dwelling in Hornby forsaid viij^d.' And again, p. 77, in the Will of John Brown, of York, 1492, 'I wite a grete brasse pot to Seynt Anton gild, to be prayed for.' 'The residue, my dettes paid and my witeworde fulfilled, I wite to Richard Wynder, Pewterer, and to Robert Preston, glasier.' Test. Ebor. iv. 88, Will of W. Wynter, 1493. 'My witeword fullyllyd, then I will that my wyfe have hal the tone half.' Will of John Ferryll, 1470, Test. Ebor. iii. 180. In the York Hours of the Cross, pr. in the Lay-Folks New-Book, p. 86, l. 55, we read—

'At þe tyme of none iesu gun cry, he wytte his saul to his fadyr.'

See the Editor's note at p. 309.

² A week. A.S. wece, wuce. In the Cursor Mundi, 2857, is a curious legend about Lot's wife, that 'anes o þe wok day And þan þai find hir on þe morn, þan es sco liked al away, Hale als sco was ar be-forn;' where the other MSS. have woke, wouke, and wike; see also l. 11012; Morte Arthuri, l. 354; Tale of Beryn, 19; and the Knight of La Tour Laundry, p. 12. Maundeville says that 'in the Kyngdoms of Georgie, of Abchaz and of the little Armenye, ben gode Cristene men and devoute. For thei schryneu hem and howsele hem evermore ones or twyes in the Woke.' p. 261.

'She drof forth hir dayes in hir depe thoght,

With weping and wo all the woke ouer.' Destruct. of Troy, 495.

Barbour, in his Bruce, xiv. 132, has 'refreschit weill ane ouk or mair;' where other MSS. read wouk, oulk, and weeke; and Lyndesay, Dreme, p. 284, ed. 1866, has—

'He mycht pas round aboute, and cum agane,

In four jers, saxtene oukts, and dayis two.'

In the Ordinances of the Gild of St. George, Norwich, is one that 'ye pouer brother or suster shall hane, in ye woke, viij^d.' Eng. Gilda, p. 18. Trevisa, in his trans. of Higden's account of Britain, says that 'þere beþ salt welles fer fram þee see, and beeth salt alle þe woke longe forto Saturday at none; and fresche fram Saturday at none for to Monday; l. 25; and again, v. 415, he says of 'Seynt John þe Aumener, patriark of Alexandria,' that 'he vsede twyes a wooke to sitte al day to fore þe chirche dore for to acorde men þat was in stryf.' See also Genesis xxix. 28, and Exodus xxxiv. 22. The form wouke occurs in the Ormulum, 4173, and Genesis & Exodus, 2473. 'Ape was the pharisee that with oun shewede him clothed with bountee, counterfetinge that he was iuste and liuede wel, and, as he seyde, fastede twyes in the woke.' De Deguileville's Pilgrimage, p. 122. 'Dienst, the woke day. Ebdomadās, a woke.' Medulla.

REPORT OF THE COUNCIL OF

READ AT THE GENERAL MEETING

ON THE 2ND MAY, 1882.

THE Council of the Camden Society elected on the 2nd May, 1881, deeply regret the loss of one of their number—

FREDERIC OUVRY, Esq., V.P.S.A.

Mr. Ouvry was one of the original Members of the Camden Society, and to the day of his death continued his services on its Councils, and in every way promoted its interests. A highly cultivated, genial, and active man, he was ever ready to assist his brethren on the Council with opinions of the kindest as well as of the most business-like character. Much of the valuable work done by the Society since its foundation has been helped forward through the late Mr. Ouvry's attendance and thoughtful advice at its Councils. The Council feel satisfied that the Society will wish to join them in expressing sincere regret at the loss of so valuable a Member.

The Council have also to regret also the loss of

The Rev. S. BENSON.

The Rev. W. H. CARTWRIGHT, M.A.

JOHN O'REILLY, Esq.

The Very Rev. the DEAN OF WESTMINSTER.

The following Members have been elected during the same period:—

W. H. BOTHAMLEY, Esq.
Professor MONTAGU BURROWS.
J. J. CARTWRIGHT, Esq.
RICHARD J. DAY, Esq.
F. DE M. LEATHES, Esq.
Miss LENA MILMAN.
W. NESBITT Esq.
WALTER B. SLATER, Esq.

In consequence of the unusual bulk of The Puritan Visitation of the University of Oxford, edited by Professor MONTAGU BURROWS, and of the heavy expenses attending its issue, the Council have been compelled to offer it in return, not merely for part of the Subscription of the year 1880-81, but for the whole of the Subscription of the year 1881-82.

In the hope of an increased number of Members the Council have issued from 600 to 700 pages of printed matter in the course of each year—the limit fixed when the Society was more prosperous than it is at present. The time has however now arrived when, in order to keep the expenditure within the income of the Society, it will be necessary to diminish the amount of printed matter given.

The books of the present year will therefore be:—

- I. The Catholicon. Edited by SIDNEY J. HERRTAGE, Esq.
- II. The Index to the First Series of Publications, Letters A and B.

The Council regrets the necessity of coming to this decision all the more from the fact that an unusual amount of most valuable Historical matter has been offered to them recently by competent editors, which for want of larger funds cannot be published as early as they could wish.

The Council venture to hope that every effort will be made by the Members to add to their numbers, in order that the above-mentioned difficulties may be overcome and the work of the Society may proceed with undiminished activity.

On the 7th day of December the Secretary acquainted the Council that he had received a letter from Mr. Chappell resigning the post of Treasurer to the Society. The Council immediately directed that a Resolution be entered on the Minutes in the following words:—

“ The Council wish to express their extreme regret at the resignation of Mr. Chappell, and at the same time to tender to him their warm acknowledgment of the many zealous services rendered by him to the Society from its commencement, and more especially in his capacity of Treasurer for seventeen years.

“ They venture to hope that they may long continue to have the benefit of his advice at the Meetings of the Council.”

The Council feel sure that the Society will adopt in the fullest manner possible the expressions they have made use of with regard to their sense of the valuable services rendered to the Society by Mr. Chappell during so many years, and will unite with them in thanking him for having occupied the post of Treasurer for so long a period and with such advantage to the Society.

By order of the Council,

SAMUEL RAWSON GARDINER, Director.

ALFRED KINGSTON, Hon. Secretary.

REPORT OF THE AUDITOR.

I, the Auditor appointed to audit the Accounts of the Camden Society, report to the Society, that the Treasurer has exhibited to me an Account of the Receipts and Expenditure from the 1st of April 1881 to the 31st of March 1882, and that I have examined the said accounts, with vouchers relating thereto, and find the same to be correct and satisfactory.

And I further report that the following is an Abstract of the Receipts and Expenditure during the period I have mentioned :—
